SALISBURY (AP) — Four black supporters of Rhodesia's transition government were found shot dead after trying to distribute posters backing the new bi-racial administration, officials said.

Fish Talks Seen As Threat to City

PARCHED? I tell you, fella, this weather's enough to drive a man to drink. June's arrival with record-matching temperatures seems to produce that reaction from four-year-old Simon Burgers, right, as he enjoys a quick slurp from the drinking fountain courtesy of friend Steven Keskeny, 5. Both youngsters attend the James Bay preschool. Forecast is for the warm weather and clear skies to continue until the weekend. (See story on Page 9).

Victoria's economy will be seriously damaged if the federal government doesn't change its stand on West Coast fishing boundaries being negotiated with the U.S., says a B.C. submission to Ottawa.

The B.C. paper says Ottawa must negotiate a boundary giving more rights to B.C. fishermen on the Prairie Banks outside the Juan de Fuca Strait or significant economic hardships both to the fishermen and to the fish-processing sector, particularly in Victoria, will result.

The proposals are contained in a position paper presented by the provincial government to the federal negotiating team hammering out the new fishing agreement.

The paper, made public Wednesday by Prince Rupert NDP MLA Graham Lea, also wants Ottawa to negotiate a northern fishing boundary giving Canadians a big chunk of the Alaska Panhandle fishery.

Lea's release of the B.C. paper brought an angry response from Premier Bennett, who accused the MLA and his party of jeopardizing the negotiations "for the sake of cheap political headlines."

He said Ottawa had asked B.C. to keep the paper secret so the Canadian negotiators could present a united front to the Americans.

"It's a tragedy what he has done," Bennett said. "The effects will have to be measured against the request of the negotiators for confidentiality. They, the leader of that party, the member from Prince Rupert and the caucus, have set themselves up as perhaps the villians."

But Lea later replied everyone but British Columbians knew the content of the B.C. position paper.

He said Canadian contacts in Washington heard Americans talking freely about the B.C. paper at cocktail parties.

They obtained a copy and Lea later got it from Canadians in Canada.

He said he feels the B.C. position is a good one, but if an unfavorable decision comes down B.C.'s good position will be lost once it's over.

Now that it has been made public, British Columbians will know if they've been sold

Man Held After Gun Incident

Greater Victoria police's emergency response team spent a tense two hours in Saanich early today trying to talk an armed man into surrendering.

A Saanich police spokesman said Tattersall and Savannah residents heard two shots shortly after 2 a.m. and saw a man walking down the street carrying either a rifle or shotgun.

Police arrived just in time to see him enter an apartment at 944 Tattersall.

Members of the specially-equipped response team were called in and for two hours tried to contact him by phone and loud-hailer.

There was no response. At one point a muffled shot was heard from the apartment.

At 4:30 a.m. officers wearing bullet-proof vests burst into the man's room and found him lying on a bed . . . drunk.

The spokesman said the man had apparently been involved in a fight in a beer parlor earlier in the evening and received superficial cuts.

He was treated at hospital and then kept in custody to appear in court later today on charges of dangerous use of a firearm and causing a disturbance by discharging a firearm.

Food Prices Up 13.9% In Past Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canadian food prices over-all were up 13.9 per cent from a year ago as of May 19, according to an Anti-Inflation Board survey released today.

Higher prices for beef caused most of a 3.2-per-cent rise in food costs during the four weeks ending May 19.

The board said retail beef prices now are 13.5 per-cent higher than a month ago as strong demand combined with the start of a long-anticipated decline in supplies affects the market.

Further substantial increases in beef prices can be expected during the next few years as cattle slaughter continues to decline, the board says.

The board said price movements for other foods are comparatively modest.

Dairy product prices rose by 1.2 per cent between mid-April and mid-May, with the largest increase for powdered skim milk. The termination in April by the government of a 34-cent-a-pound subsidy on skim milk resulted in price increases of up to 50 per cent, the board says.

Ice cream prices were up four per cent in the month due in part to higher industrial milk prices and the board says cheese prices will also rise as a result of the new dairy policy although it may be several weeks before consumers feel the bite.

Pork prices rose by 2.2 per cent since mid-April, reversing an earlier decline. Poultry prices rose 4.1 per cent in the last four weeks and egg prices rose 4.5 per cent.

Improved supplies of tomatoes and lettuce resulted in price declines for those vegetables, but there were higher prices for potatoes, carrots, cabbage and onions.

Fresh fruit prices were up 3.7 per cent in the four-week period.

BANNED DES TRACE FOUND IN LIVER

TORONTO (CP) — DES, an artificial hormone banned in Canada, has been found in nine out of 10 samples of beef liver purchased in stores here, according to CBC radio

Diethylstildestrol, a growth promoter used to fatten cattle in the United States, was banned in Canada in the early 1970s as a health hazard, possibly a cancer-causing agent.

A spokesman said the CBC decided to have imported beef liver tested and, as a check, liver sold as Canadian was also tested.

The spokesman said DES levels as high as 1.94 parts per million were found in the Canadian liver while results showed as much as 3.72 parts per million in U.S. liver.

CLC Boss Rapped

VANCOUVER (CP) — Statements by Dennis McDermott, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, that a 32-hour, four-day work week is impractical drew sharp criticism Wednesday from two of British Columbia's top labor leaders.

Len Guy, out-going secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said "there just doesn't appear to be any consideration any more for the considerable number of unemployed or the disasterous results if that situation is not turned around."

Guy said the Canadian trade union movement should be taking care of the citizens of Canada.

Roy Gautier, secretary of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council, said the trades wanted to "completely disassociate themselves from McDermott's position.

Guy said that while the number of jobs decline and corporations increase their profits through technological change, some of the "profits could go to paying the cost of the shorter work week."

McDermott said in Toronto this week that the 32-hour, four-day work week — a resolution adopted in April by the CLC — would place Canadians in an extremely uncompetitive position in trade relationships.

Gautier said his reaction was a mixture of "anger, dismay and frustration." He said the CLC president was going contrary to Congress policy and "there has to be some rebuttal from the trade union movement.""

African Involvement Feared by Trudeau

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday cautioned against turning Africa into another East-West battleground as a two-day NATO summit meeting ended here.

He told a news conference he does not want to get involved in "African adventures" and advised other foreign powers to keep out of Africa.

His comments came as he was asked about a Paris meeting of Western powers next week called to discuss ways of countering Soviet and Cuban influence in Africa. Trudeau said Canada has not been invited and probably would not have gone anyway.

While Canada disapproves of Cuban military activity in Africa, it believes Africans should be helped in peaceful ways, particularly through development aid, the prime minister said.

"I think external powers should keep out of Africa — the Africans should attempt to solve the problems themselves," he said.

"I predict that those who attempt to solve these (problems) for them will get no thanks from the Africans in the long run, whether they be Cubans or anyone else."

Trudeau's stand on Africa contrasts with statements by U.S. officials who have urged a tougher Western response to the Communists in Africa. He found an ally in British Prime Minister James Callaghan who said some members of the U.S. administration seem to be over-reacting

Macdonald Roles Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative MP said today he questions whether it was proper for former finance minister Donald Macdonald to accept appointment to the boards of directors of three major companies.

Ray Hnatyshyn said he worries there is a danger of conflict of interest and plans to raise the issue with Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons today.

Macdonald resigned as finance minister in September and from the Commons in February.

Since then, he has accepted appointments to the boards of McDonnell Douglas Corp., Shell Canada Ltd. and Boise Cascade Corp.

McDonnell Douglas has a $2.3-billion bid to provide new fighters for the Canadian forces. Shell is involved in talks on a proposed new multi-billion dollar plant for the Alberta oil sands.

Macdonald was defence minister from 1970 to 1972 and energy minister from 1972 to 1975.

Hnatyshyn said even if there is no direct conflict of interest, Macdonald as a cabinet minister would "have vast knowledge of government intentions" in many fields.

B.C. NOW TOPS IN DIVORCES

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta, long the divorce haven of Canada, has lost that title to neighboring B.C.

But it's still the province with the highest marriage rate, the latest Statistics Canada figures show.

For many years, Alberta led Canada in the number of divorces granted — and Edmonton had the highest divorce rate of any Alberta city, making it Canada's divorce capital.

Statistics Canada official Dhruv Nagnur said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that B.C. now leads all provinces in divorce rates.

In 1976, the latest figures available, there were 333 divorces per 100,000 people in B.C., compared to 310 divorces in Alberta. The national divorce rate in 1976 was 235 per 100,000.

In 1975, the last year Alberta was the divorce leader, there were 309 divorces per 100,000 in Alberta and 306 in B.C.

Marriages, however, remain Alberta's strong point. In 1976, there were 9.7 marriages per 1,000 people in Alberta, compared to 8.7 marriages in B.C. and a national rate of 8.4 marriages.

More Travel Agent Failures Predicted

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Public are not travelling as much or as far this year and as a result 20 to 30 marginal travel agencies will likely fold by the end of the year, B.C.'s registrar of travel agents said today.

Alec Burden said the problem is it was not a buoyant winter for the travel industry and the summer isn't expected to be much better.

"When you have two troughs in a row without being able to pull out, the marginal operators will automatically topple," Burden said.

He said it appears the politicians are right, that Canadians have come through a tough 12 months.

"People appear to be saying we had better hang on to some of our money."

Burden said those in the industry had thought the days had passed when the holiday was the first thing to go during periods of restraint.

"Perhaps the holiday is not on top of the list but it is certainly among the top 10 of the things that are affected," Burden said.

Burden is the province's first registrar of travel agents. The Travel Agents Registration Act under which he was appointed came into effect Feb. 21.

Since that date, travel agents must register with his office. And agencies must pay into a fund which will cover bills for B.C. tourists who have paid for their vacation but get stuck when an agency folds.

Burden said despite the fact that it is tougher now to get into the travel industry and to stay in more people are registering.

Something Scary About This Farm

But a group of provincial investigators are uncertain about what, if anything, is taking place.

More than two months ago members of the family began to complain of headaches, nausea, dizziness, skin burns and difficulty in breathing.

The symptoms were evident while the family was in the farm house or in the yard but did not occur when they left. Visitors did not experience the same conditions.

Whelan turned the mystery over to the provincial Emergency Measures Organization (EMO).

"I've never experienced anything like this since I've been director of EMO," Jim Eaton, head of the emergency measures organization, which is being assisted by the departments of environment, labor and health and the Saskatchewan Power Corp.

John Tkachuk, an official of the SPC, said his department has done extensive tests in the home.

Supply lines were tested and no gas leaks discovered. The power corporation also tested power lines and connections in the yard and in the house.

The environment department took soil, water and air samples for analysis and conducted radiation tests — and got no answers.

The agriculture department did testing for insecticides and herbicides and found nothing.

Tests were also done on the family's cat and budgie, both of which had died.

Dr. Russell Kelly, a veterinary pathologist, said he suspected the cat died of a vitamin B deficiency.

Dr. Kelly said it is possible a dormant allergy could be responsible for the skin and respiratory problems.

But, he said, he is having trouble establishing a relationship between the family and pets and stories of paint peeling off machinery on the farm.

The Bradfords have bought a trailer and placed it two miles away from the farm.

Bradford, 69, and his wife, Alice, 67, are reported to be recovering from whatever illness they are suffering.

Their son Cecil said that one would have to live on the farm for at least a month to experience the phenomena.

He said there are patches of ground on the farm on which one can experience a tingling numbness on the face, arms and shoulders. Other strange events include earth tremors and blistering bark on trees.

The family has moved its equipment off the farm and refuse to go anywhere near it, even to seed.

Pubs Soon Go Metric

B.C. pubs will soon convert to metric glasses — and imbibers will get a little less beer in the bargain.

Within the next few weeks beer parlors will start to change from the nine-ounce beer glass to the quarter-litre glass. The metric glass contains about one-fifth of an ounce less.

The price is expected to remain the same.

Test H-Bill First: Gibson

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson led an opposition attack on the government Wednesday for going ahead with its contentious heroin treatment legislation without first testing its constitutionality in the courts.

Opposition members said if the legislation fails a court test, it will have wasted a great deal of taxpayers money.

Gibson asked Attorney-General Garde Gardom to take the legislation to the B.C. Court of Appeals before more money is spent on the program, and time taken up debating the bill in the legislature.

Gardom said such a decision is not up to him alone, but would be a cabinet decision.

Meanwhile, Health Minister Robert McLelland insisted the new program will not drive drug users out of the province.

He made the statement in an interview after being told of a Winnipeg report saying that Manitoba health officials fear the treatment proposal will result in a large number of addicts moving to Prairie cities.

The minister said he feels the reverse will be true — addicts from other provinces will flock here to be cured.

In Vancouver, Bryan Williams, president of the B.C. Branch of the Canadian Bar Association, asked the government not to push through the act because it denies access to due process of law and fundamental principles of justice.

"Our position has been that the policy for the treatment of heroin addicts is a matter for the government and not the bar," Williams said in a news release.

"But any statute which would permit the state to take control of an individual, whether a heroin user or not, and require his confinement — whether in a hospital with bars or a prison with bars — must of necessity only be done in circumstances and within a process that affords that individual complete access to the due process of law and fundamental principles of natural justice."

"To permit a statute to operate other than within those perimeters would be an extremely dangerous precedent, since that system could later be adopted for persons with other problems, or indeed almost any 'excess' or non-conformity."

SHIELD APPEAL NEAR GOAL

The appeal has reached $165,000, camgaign chairman Harry Young said today.

Young said the appeal won't end until everyone who wants to help has had the opportunity.

Sunday Hours Issue Delayed

A discussion on Sunday closing was put off by Victoria council's finance committee today because two aldermen were absent.

Ald. Bill Tindall, acting as chairman in the absence of Ald. Murray Glazier, said the matter is too important to discuss with key members of the committee away.

Ald. Ron McKenzie was also absent.

The issue was brought up by Western Teak Interiors, a furniture store which wants to continue operating on Sundays.

Store manager William Vasilopoulos appeared before the committee in response to a petition the committee had received more than a week ago from a number of furniture stores who wanted a Sunday closing bylaw brought into force in the city.

In his submisson, Vasilopoulos said that by maintaining Sunday hours his store has been able to reduce costs and maintain competitive prices.

"The majority of petitioners have never maintained Sunday business hours in Victoria and therefore are unable to present any concrete evidence whatsoever to council that doing so inflates the price of furniture," said Vasilopoulos.

He also argued that approval of a Sunday closing bylaw would encourage the movement of established and new investment from Victoria to more favorable market locations.

Fish Talks Seen As Threat to City

down the river by the federal negotiators, Lea said.

B.C. wants the proposed boundary jutting out from the Juan de Fuca Strait to dip further south to prevent dividing the Prairie Bank ground habitually fished by B.C. fishermen.

B.C. doesn't want its fishermen excluded from part of an area which yielded four million pounds of groundfish in 1976.

The province also calls for a "special circumstance" off the Alaska coast. Instead of a line heading due west out of Dixon Entrance between the Queen Charlotte Islands and the Alaska Panhandle, the boundary should turn northwest, giving B.C. fishermen the right to fish within the U.S. 200-mile limit off Alaska.

This would accord B.C. fishermen an equitable share of the halibut fishery off that coast, the paper says.

B.C. takes the position that the shelf off the panhandle is actually a natural extension of the land mass of Canada and therefore the U.S. shouldn't be able to claim the whole continental shelf.

The boundaries may also be important in the future if minerals or oil and gas are discovered, the paper says.

Tests indicate there is potential for gas and oil and also possible copper reserves of considerable value.

The paper says it finds totally unacceptable the U.S. position on the Dixon Entrance boundary line.

The U.S. position would deprive B.C. of a large proportion of its halibut, salmon, sole and cod fishing in the area, as well as deny it access to areas for sole and shrimp fishery development.

If the boundary is moved southward, U.S. fishermen will intercept even more Canadian salmon.

"The course currently pursued by the government of Canada can only work to the disadvantage of the province of B.C.," the paper says.

Even if the Juan de Fuca line goes where B.C. suggests it should, B.C. provincial trollermen will lose half their coho and chinook catches in the area south of Cape Flattery.

If it goes where the Ottawa proposes, the losses will be even greater, the paper says.

the weather

Map valid until midday Friday

Record temperatures for May 31 were established or tied at several B.C. locations. The oldest of these was at Terrance where a reading of 26 tied the record set in 1956. Other records were at Tofino, Comox, Victoria, Nanaimo and Williams Lake. Another warm sunny day is expected Friday with possibly more record temperatures.

Possible Collusion Seen In Hydro's Columbia Job

Possible collusion among contractors bidding on the $75 million Arrow Dam on the Columbia River was the subject of questions put to B.C. Hydro officials Wednesday by the legislature's committee on Crown corporations.

The project near Castlegar was completed in 1968 and cost nearly $20 million more than the $55 million target price bid by the successful bidder, a joint venture by Foundation Co. of Canada and Dravo Co. of Canada.

Originally, Foundation alone had bid $69.7 million on a firm price basis and Mannix Co. Ltd. had bid $71.8 million, when the first tenders were opened Feb. 8, 1965.

This bidding was cancelled by Hydro and target price bidding, a form of cost-plus contracting, was invited from Foundation, Mannix and another company.

The second bids were opened Feb. 26, 1965, and Foundation-Dravo got the job for the target price of $55 million.

Hydro witnesses told the committee that Dravo had some advance expertise on the project because the company had been part of the Mannix group of potential bidders. Dravo dropped out just before bidding because another job came up in the United States, but then on the second target price bid, Dravo joined Foundation.

Gerry Strongman (SC—Vancouver South) said he could not understand how companies could work out an arrangement like that of Foundation and Dravo in what amounted to a period of 10 working days, on such a massive project.

"It seems to me that because of the time frame, it leaves Hydro open and these various firms open to the possibility of people thinking that there's collusion — that there's an agreement behind a boardroom," he said.

W.D. Mitchell, Hydro legal chief, said that if contractors got together it would have been because of concern over building on a previous river bottom and uncertainty over whether the project could be completed before an April, 1969 deadline.

Later, Jack Kempf (SC—Omineca) blamed Hydro for adding to overruns of almost $30 million at the project because it arranged a labor package where there was no incentive to keep labor costs down.

Hydro also told the committee that not only did its Arrow contract include a no-strike, no-lockout agreement between the contractors and all labor unions, but also a labor escalation clause that committed Hydro to picking up 100 per cent of labor increases.

CONSULTANTS UPSET GIBSON

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson said Wednesday that engineering consultants who draw up estimates for B.C. Hydro power projects should become more accountable for their predictions.

Gibson said in an interview he is upset by the inaccurate estimates provided by consultants to the Crown-owned Hydro.

Consultants' estimates have been discussed during deliberations's of the B.C. legislature's Crown corporation reporting committee, of which Gibson is a member.

The Liberal leader said consultants should be paid on the basis of how close their estimates are to the actual cost of the project.

Dams Total $2B

Final costs of the Columbia and Peace River power projects are expected to be more than $2 billion, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said Wednesday.

He tabled details of costs in response to questions by Don Lockstea (NDP—Mackenzie).

The report showed that as of Feb. 28, the total cost of the Columbia River project was $1.25 billion, with a further expenditure of $37.69 million.

LOCKSTEAD KEEPS PUFFING

Non-smoking day elicited a little humor and some serious talk in the legislature Wednesday.

Chain-smoking MLA Don Lockstead (NDP—Mackenzie) rose in the house to remind people the day was for non-smokers.

Lockstead urged those who were able, to do without the addictive drug — "but those who can't I'll meet you out in the hall in 15 minutes."

Lockstead is often seen slipping out of his legislative seat to snitch a few puffs in the Speaker's corridor.

The MLA was also the only member to oppose the recent bill doubling the provincial tax on tobacco.

Health Minister Bob McClelland a few minutes later told the house the "expensive, anti-social habit that poses a terrible threat to health" costs the province a conservative $45 million to treat smoking related illnesses.

In 1977, 997 fires killing 31 people and causing $4.5 million property damage were started by careless smoking.

Careless smokers also started 302 of the province's forest fires contributing to the over-all loss of 9,000 acres of timber last year.

The government has urged hospitals to restrict smoking and while some have complied, "I must say that I have been disappointed by the lack of action on the part of many of our hospitals," McClelland said.

Lang, Bennett Discuss the BCR

Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang and Premier Bill Bennett met briefly Wednesday to discuss port development, airport facilities, urban transportation and railways, the two men said.

Lang told a news conference following the meeting that "we made some progress on a number of fronts," but no agreements were reached.

He said there will likely be decisions reached in a couple of weeks as a result of the progress made during the meeting.

Lang said he agreed with Bennett's statement earlier Wednesday that the United States and Canadian federal governments should take the major responsiblity in forging a B.C. to Alaska rail link.

But opposition leader Dave Barrett, in a separate statement, said Bennett's statement that Americans must provide the bulk of financial support has effectively killed BCR's Dease Lake extension.

The NDP leader said any link with Alaska would involve extension of a completed Dease Lake line in northern B.C. Current plans call for the Dease Lake extension to stop about 200 kilometres short of the Yukon border.

Stop the Foot-dragging

So many thousands of people have walked over the west coast trail between Port Renfrew and Bamfield and so much work has been done to restore the old lifesaving path that it is accepted as fact that it is part of the Pacific Rim National Park.

Not so. Long Beach and the Broken Islands group in the mouth of Barkley Sound were formally dedicated as part of the park some years back, but complications prevented the west coast trail from being added as well. Its status is confused at present, and jurisdiction overlaps between Ottawa, British Columbia, private landowners and logging companies.

The province appears to be chiefly at fault. It has dragged its feet so long that now the entire trail is endangered. According to federal Parks Canada officials who are eager to get on with making the trail part of the park, B.C. has lollygagged along for so many years, stretching out the detailed negotiations with the logging companies who now control much of the designated park land, that the price may be prohibitively expensive.

Many outdoors enthusiasts remember the controversy several years back over the Nitinat triangle, whether or not Tsusiat, Squalicum and Hobiton lakes and their watersheds could be saved from clear-cut logging and included in the park. The fuss petered out with most people expecting that B.C. would arrange a swap with the forest companies.

The trail along the shore of the Pacific itself was thought to be inviolable; environmentalists were only fighting to have a quiet and charming corner of Vancouver Island included as a postscript.

But now everything is up for grabs, according to Parks Canada. Why the question of the trail's status should have dragged on until now is unfathomable. Has the provincial government been so slow and inept that the trail will be obliterated by the whine of powersaws and logging trucks? Or is this stupidity intentional?

Whatever the reason, it's time for an end to foot-dragging. Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf said on this page yesterday he was dedicated to preserving the province's wildlife. He is not responsible for federal parks, but he should give a hard nudge to Forests Minister Tom Waterland, whose department bears most of the responsibility for the current impasse.

A Bastion Maintained

El Vino, a Fleet Street drinking-place beloved by London's lawyers and journalists, resounded last week with toasts to a county court judge who had upheld the tavern's right to serve drinks at the bar to men only. Ladies are permitted to bend their elbows only while seated at tables.

The rule was challenged by Miss Sheila Gray, who was refused a drink at the bar. She claimed this was a breach of Britain's Sex Discrimination Act and, supported by two civil rights groups, brought action for unlawful discrimination against El Vino.

Judge Ruttle's award against Miss Gray was acclaimed not so much as a victory for male chauvinism as a triumph of judicial ingenuity. He ruled that the Sex Discrimination Act and similar laws are designed to achieve harmony and cannot be applied in a legalistic vacuum. In his opinion El Vino's house rule was operated out of motives of chivalry — i.e. for the ladies' own protection — and for administrative convenience.

"Disgraceful!" snorted Miss Gray. "The judge obviously does not know what it's like to be discriminated against."

While patrons of El Vino and the London clubs which are male preserves heaved sighs of relief, they did not lose sight of the fact that Miss Gray is a formidable fighter. An appeal against Judge Ruttle's judgment is considered certain and this time the ramparts may fall. Watch out, Union Club!

Right to Work

The Independent Contractors and Businessmen's Association of British Columbia by its recent large scale advertisement in the provincial press is peforming a service to the province which may be of lasting benefit to all the residents of B.C.

A good response to the questionnaire will indicate the feelings of British Columbians.

I would suggest the ICBA ensure compilation of their statistical report be affirmed and verified by some agency which will nullify any suggestions that it should not be accepted as authentic.

Undoubtedly the present trend of public opinion is going against the belligerent attitude of many unions and if this is overwhelmingly demonstrated in the survey, it will cause union membership to take a second look at their leadership and question their degeneracy and development into an autocracy.

The politicians of all parties will gain an insight into the feelings of the populace and hopefully either stand on their own convictions or band together regardless of party for the good of the province against any segment of the population attempting to impose its will in contravention of the laws of the land and dictates of Parliament.

Our legislators might be encouraged to promote legislation in freedom of information that:

Whereas the highest courts in the land are open to public scrutiny and,

Whereas labor courts or negotiations affect the whole country,

Therefore labor negotiations, labor courts and boards should be open to the same public scrutiny.

Finally, Allan McKinnon, Conservative member of Parliament for Victoria-Oak Bay should be given credit for instigating the obtaining of information by questionnaire.

His recent "Do you favor right to work" movement question really upset the big guns of the labor movement when his questionnaire showed 73.5 per cent voted yes, 11.7 per cent voted no, 13.0 per cent undecided from about 7,000 replies.

If you failed to complete the questionnaire, stop complaining about the power of the unions. — Ken Burns, 401-640 Dallas Road.

Teacher Librarians

I am pleased to see your newspaper take an interest in the state of education in our district. I must, however, clarify some points made in the article that appeared May 27 (Board Rapped by Librarians).

The Greater Victoria School Librarians Association is indeed very concerned about the loss of large numbers of teacher-librarians in the elementary schools of the district. The association takes the point of view of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, that there should be no staff cuts until our district has equalled the recommended staffing ratios as suggested by the B.C. Teachers Federation. We look upon the decline in enrolment and the loosening of space restrictions as an opportunity for the district to improve all of its programs while trained people and space are available.

With regard to "the school board building", I believe my comments were that some district staff such as program co-ordinators were also returning to the classroom in an attempt to hold down the pupil-teacher ratio. I said that I felt that librarians and program co-ordinators could be looked on as support staff in addition to the basic classroom teachers and therefore, they should not be counted in the basic pupil-teacher ratio. — G. Rupert, 2829 Inez Drive.

In the News

Three headlined articles appeared in your paper of May 16:

1. Corporate Tax Cuts Suggested. It took three years and $3 million for a royal commission to come up with that suggestion. Their stated reason is that there is a serious scarcity of investment capital in Canada.

I have a better suggestion: No corporate tax cuts; restrict the export of capital derived from profits made through our natural resources and the labor of our people. My reason for making it is that those profits belong in our country and should be invested in Canadian enterprise. Otherwise, accelerate corporate taxes.

2. Notices Explain Tax Hikes. This article states that Saanich taxpayers will be sent notices explaining why their taxes are so high this year. That explanation will point out that apartments and commercial properties have been given relief at the expense of the homeowners. Credit the B.C. government's property assessment changes that load a greater cost of municipal government on to the small home owners. Credit Ald. Ian Cass for opposition to it and the Saanich council for its action standing up for small homeowners. All other municipal councils should do likewise. Councils should also take some action to prevent accommodation rents from going sky high, now that the provincial government is phasing out rent controls.

3. $14 Million Saving Seen for Woods Firms. That deals with sharp increases in royalty and rental rates for woods firms; however, it also states that big reductions will be made in logging taxes, so much so that the woods firms will benefit to the tune of $13 million a year. In view of the fact those firms have been and are now committing "genocide" at an accelerated rate on our prime forest areas, I find it difficult to understand government policy unless of course the supporters are in some way to become beneficiaries.

No doubt if a proper tax level was levied on big concerns that are drawing high profits from their activities in our country, there would be no need to impose the various high taxations on the majority of people who are striving to maintain a good standard of living on moderate and low incomes. — D. Frankham, 23-2161 Haultain Street.

Captain Cook

I feel that the records should be made straight, for Captain James Cook seems to have been maligned beyond reason these last few months. I refer to the article Who Can Blame the Indians? (Times, May 11), concerning Mr. and Mrs. Gibson who live in Cook's birthplace, Middlesbrough, England.

It's a small point, but Cook was born at Marton, a village, which has now been absorbed by the urban sprawl of Middlesbrough. The point is, however, that when Cook was born in this quiet picturesque village, there was no such place as Middlesbrough. The latter mushroomed in the early nineteenth century with the discovery of iron ore deposits in the local Cleveland Hills and continued to expand in recent years with the growth of vast chemical works on the Tees Plain. Marton has almost lost its original characteristics, but Cook's actual birthplace remains for the inquisitive visitor. A monument to Cook, on Eston Nab, overlooks his birthplace and a small schoolroom that he attended at Great Ayton, a place as yet unspoiled by the tentacles of urbanization.

He first gained his love for the sea at Staithes, a fishing hamlet, nestled into the northeast coast of Yorkshire and later sailed on his infamous journey from Whitby, 12 miles south of Staithes. Cook would be appalled at the industrial pillage of his home area and the irreconcilable consequences of a society metamorphosed by dramatic, technological advancements. He would be equally shocked to learn that he was the founder and cause of a parallel social degradation in the New World.

Cook was a man of high principle, honesty and integrity and had a great respect for the indigenous people of the lands he visited. Perhaps Cook should be remembered more for his sense of adventures and personal attributes in this bicentennial year. Because of his somewhat retiring and totally humble attitude, he would certainly not have enjoyed the publicity. If anything, he would rather be remembered for his toleration and understanding of the individual, something that all people, regardless of their origins, might take as their commemorative theme at this time. — D.C. Bird, 35-3987 Gordon Head Road.

Economic 'Reconquest' of Quebec

After decades of disinterest, French-Canadians are moving into positions of power in Quebec business.

MONTREAL — In the concrete and glass office towers of downtown Montreal a quiet struggle for economic power is being waged that may determine the political ~~future~~ of Quebec within Canada.

The balance of business power is shifting slowly from anglophone to francophone Quebecers, aided by tough language legislation protecting French and by new attitudes toward business in the francophone community.

And in the process, many century-old grievances of "economic inferiority" felt by French Quebecers within Confederation are being removed.

Francophone business leaders interviewed here recently predict that Francophones will occupy a "normal" share of senior business positions in Montreal within 10 years.

Economic Inferiority

"Montreal is undergoing a very profound change right now," says Andre Bisson, vice-president of the Bank of Nova Scotia. "The movement is irreversible. In 15 years, business in Montreal will be largely run by francophones."

To many observers, the issue of economic power in Montreal is the heart of the political problem in Quebec.

A 1973 brief to the Quebec government by the Montreal Chamber of Commerce stated: "The basic cause of the problems facing the francophone majority of Quebec, be they social, economic or linguistic, is the domination of the largest economic institutions by the anglophone minority."

Says Maurice Sauve, vice-president of Consolidated-Bathurst: "French-Canadians could accommodate themselves to practically any form of federalism if this unbalanced economic situation did not exist.

"Economic inferiority becomes intolerable when it coincides with an identifiable cultural group."

The main goal of Bill 101, the Quebec government legislation making French the sole official language of the province, is to bring about "the economic reconquest" of Quebec by francophones, admits Camille Laurin, minister responsible for the law.

Since the mid-1950s, increasing numbers of Quebec Francophones have sought careers in business, but many found their way blocked by the weight of history and tradition.

Generations of young francophones traditionally were discouraged from entering business by a nationalistic and church-dominated educational system.

"Many teachers told their students that they would be assimilated if they went to work in English businesses," says Andre Bisson of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

"When I came to work here in 1971, I still had to make excuses to my father for working in an English company," he says. "But now nobody questions that anymore and nobody accuses me of selling out Quebec."

"Quebecers were raised in small villages to become priests and lawyers or doctors and dentists" says Camille Dagenais, head of Canada's largest industrial engineering firm, Surveyer, Nenninger and Chenevert.

"To be a businessman was considered a lousy profession."

While Catholic teachers preached against the moral decadence of the business world, Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis further encouraged French Quebecers to stay out of business during the 1940s and 1950s.

His determination to keep Quebec a basically rural society in which the francophone elite would aspire only to professions like medicine, the church and law delayed their economic advancement by 20 years.

"Business was not discussed at the kitchen table in those days," says Guy St. Pierre, president of Ogilvie Mills Ltd. and a former provincial cabinet minister. "A young boy growing up in Victoriaville would hear about Jean Beliveau and the Montreal Canadiens but not about marketing."

Those francophones who did go to work in private industry found "an alien world" more suited to anglophone family traditions, says Pierre Laurin, director of the University of Montreal's business school and younger brother of PQ cabinet minister Camille Laurin.

Isolated from contact with their own linguistic group, many would abandon business careers after a year or two, Laurin said.

The Gendron commission which studied the language issue in Quebec for the Bourassa government, found that fear of losing the French language and culture was a major deterrent to francophones entering business.

Even when the anti-business bias began to break down among French Canadians they ran into hardened English Canadian attitudes.

"There was a negligence of the French fact and a private club mentality" in the English business world, according to Pierre Laurin, which kept many capable French Quebecers out of senior positions.

"When people feel excluded they seek other outlets. Men of action in Quebec went into politics and the public service instead."

The result has been an unhealthy split between an English-dominated business world and a French-dominated public service.

According to SMC boss Camille Dagenais, the place to start hiring competent francophones is at the top of the corporate ladder, where they will be a visible example to students contemplating a business career.

Spurred on by developments in Quebec since the Quiet Revolution, many firms have adopted just such a policy, including SMC, Alcan and Bell Canada.

But a recent study by Maurice Sauve, of Consolidated Bathurst, shows that 43 of the largest 105 firms in Quebec with 1,000 employees or more still have no francophones in senior management positions.

And in only 14 of these 105 firms are French-Canadians a majority of the management board.

Sauve found that 82 of the 91 most important Quebec companies have anglophone presidents or chief executive officers.

Although progress at the top level is slow, Sauve's study notes that the number of francophones in senior management positions has doubled in the last 10 years.

And it is considered only a matter of time before the upward pressure of francophone talent creates more top-level job openings.

"A French-Canadian president will have more contacts with the French-Canadian milieu and can more easily attract French-Canadian applicants for positions in the company," says Sauve.

Running into Trouble

"French-Canadians in the senior management of a company will more easily open the company onto the French-Canadian professional world of engineers, architects, entreprenurs and suppliers."

Most large corporations in Montreal will have to "francize" their operations by the mid-1980s according to Bill 101 regulations, but executives interviewed here agreed companies will have no major problem adapting to the law.

What worries people like former industry minister Guy St. Pierre is the continuing lack of Quebecois directors on the boards of important Quebec companies such as those in the natural resource sector.

As a cabinet minister, St. Pierre urged such companies, like the Iron Ore Co. of Canada, to appoint two French-Canadian directors to avoid "token representation."

"The companies without francophone directors are the ones running into trouble in Quebec," St. Pierre says.

Europe Has Big Stake in Congo

By JOHN PALMER

Manchester Guardian

The biggest and most lavish of the opulent fin de siecle suburban mansions of the Brussels well-to-do are known as maisons Congolaises. It is a reminder of how much of Belgium's modern wealth and prosperity was originally based on the fortunes made in the royal slave colony of the Belgian Congo. The Congo was a personal obsession of Leopold I who, in his efforts to get international financial backing for the exploitation of the Congo, broke most of the known rules of royal propriety and a goodly number of financial regulations as well.

The development of the lucrative rubber and coffee plantations of the Congo was accompanied by the most appalling brutality. The extent of that brutality was first exposed to the amazed liberals of the Edwardian era by a British colonial civil servant, Roger Casement. Later knighted for his expose of similar atrocities in South America, Casement was in the end shot as a traitor by the British for his attempt to stir up an Irish rebellion during the First World War.

Katanga, or as it is known today, Shaba, has always been the wealthiest of the provinces of the Congo — now Zaire. It is one of the world's largest exporters of copper and produces some 80 per cent of Zaire's foreign exchange income. Without it Zaire would be just another poor, underdeveloped African state. In spite of the precipitate decision of the Belgians to pull out at the time of the Congo's independence and the bloody civil war aftermath, there has been no decline in Western economic interest in the region.

The European financial and business stake in Shaba has survived both those upheavals and the subsequent nationalization of many famous concerns such as Union Miniere French and Belgian investments are still believed to total more than $25 billion. The extent of the nationalization was not surprising given the complicity of many of the British, French and Belgian companies in backing the secessionist forces of the Katangan leader Moise Tshombe in the early 1960s.

The process of "Zairisation" of Western economic interests was carried through largely under the Mobutu regime. In late 1973 some $500 million of foreign assets in the mining industry were taken over. However, foreign investors have since been offered back 100 per cent of these holdings on condition that 40 per cent is sold to Zaire business interests over the following five years.

In spite of the policy of forcing Western companies to share the spoils with the rising Zaire middle class, several thousand Europeans, mainly Belgians, continued until the recent fighting to be directly employed in posts as managers and expert advisers. Some even believe there were as many Belgians in Zaire as before independence in the early 1960s.

Recent years have seen Mobutu's high hopes for a rapid economic transformation of the economy dashed. The biggest single blow has been the collapse of the world copper price and the rocketing cost of the wide range of industrial imports on which the Zaire economy continues to be dependent. The Mobutu regime raised large amounts of foreign aid in the years of the copper price boom in the early 1970s and the total national foreign debt, much of it due to be paid back now, is about $3 billion.

In the years to come uranium supplies from Shaba could prove very important for the European community's expanding nuclear energy program, with supplies of uranium from the United States and Canada far from assured because of differences over questions affecting nuclear safeguards. Alternative supplies become much more significant.

French legionnaire hunts rebels in Kolwezi house after Zaire battle last week

Given the decision by the French govenment to embark on a massive program of nuclear energy, it is not surprising that the French have taken the leading role in the recent military intervention. Certainly there are far fewer French civilians in Shaba than Belgian. In addition President Giscard d'Estaing has made no secret of his intention to back the military dictatorship of General Mobutu politically, militarily, and economically. The French are convinced that the Mobutu regime is the only real guarantee of the continuing unity of Zaire, and thus of access to Shaba's wealth.

The other European Community governments are far from convinced about this. Some of them would not be dismayed if the Mobutu dictatorship were to be overthrown. But all of them would be alarmed at the secession of Shaba, the more so if a "left" regime looking for support to the Soviet Union were to come to power.

There is, however, precious little evidence that the Russians and the Cubans have orchestrated the latest rebellion. In spite of the "left-wing" ideolgy claimed by the leaders of the Congolese National Liberation Front, most of them appear to be connected with the ruling families of the Lunda tribe.

Whatever the outcome to the latest fighting, there is no way that the French or Belgian forces can remain long on the ground in Shaba. Indeed, the Belgians are obviously anxious to return as soon as possible. The forces of Mobutu's army seem reluctant to fight with any real commitment. There are limits, then, to the support which the Europeans can give at long distance to the Kinshasa regime.

Economic aid will, almost certainly, be forthcoming when a special 16-nation conference on Zaire's economic problems is held in Brussels next month. But, in the months ahead, it would not be surprising to see some of the European governments, as well as the United States, making discreet contact with the disparate anti-Mobutu opposition — if only as an insurance policy for the future.

Children Sickly on Poisoned Farms

By JOYCE EGGINTON

A child population far more sickly and susceptible than average is growing up in the state of Michigan. To the concern of doctors, several hundred of these children are not only frequent victims of a whole range of medical conditions which are only occasionally found in healthy youngsters from similar middle class homes: many of them also fail to respond to antibiotics.

All the affected children have been living on farms which were contaminated by the highly toxic industrial chemical, PBB (polybrominated biphenyl). This poisoning began in September, 1973, when, as a result of a human error which has still not been fully explained, Michigan Chemical Company sent a quantity of PBB — which was manufactured as a fire retardant for plastics — to a large farmers' co-operative instead of an order of magnesium oxide, commonly used as a nutrient in animal feeds.

Since the appearance of the two chemicals is similar, workers at the co-operative mixed the PBB into quantities of feed which was distributed to farmers in many parts of the state.

Cattle killed

By the time the mistake was discovered almost eight months later, thousands of head of cattle had been poisoned. Many more months passed before it was realized that this was not just an agricultural problem but a disaster which potentially affected all the nine million people in Michigan, since by then milk, meat and eggs from contaminated farms had been widely sold in local supermarkets. The people most at risk, however, are families from contaminated farms who ate their own produce.

Last month, after lengthy bureaucratic delays, a massive health study was started on at least 3,000 people throughout the state to determine how much town dwellers, as well as farming families, had been affected. This is an extension of a study done in 1976 of a much smaller number of people living on contaminated farms — most of them under the leadership of Dr. Irving J. Selikoff of Mount Sinai Hospital, New York, who is widely regarded as America's leading expert on environmental medicine.

Toenails

Even in these early stages of their state-wide study, Selikoff's researchers are confirming their belief that a large segment of Michigan's rural child population is "different".

These children suffer from a wide range of disorders which seem to be incipient and which cause them to be constantly below par, ready victims of any infection which happens to be around. The symptoms most commonly complained of are inexplicable weakness and fatigue; digestive disorders including abdominal pain and frequent diarrhoea; the loss of appetite; frequent colds, headaches and sore throats.

One strange symptom — observed in almost 10 per cent of the Michigan farm children and in none of the Wisconsin farm children who were studied as a comparison group — is abnormal thickening and ridging of the toenails. What is disturbing about this and all other symptoms is that every one of them duplicates in some respect physical effects upon the animals who were poisoned by the PBB. The early signs of poisoning among cows included weakness, weight loss, diarrhoea, abnormal hoof growth and resistance to antibiotics.

The later symptoms in cattle (and it is yet too soon to tell whether, and how much, these may apply to people) included reproductive problems and abnormal births.

Dr. Mason Barr, who is in charge of the pediatric aspects of the Selikoff studies, said he is seriously concerned about the farm children. "Mostly we see common complaints among them but with greatly increased frequency," he said. "There is quite definitely something different about these children."

It is so different that one day last week, when his group was examining a number of children in urban areas of Michigan, two doctors, working separately from one another, both came to the conclusion that the children in two of the families had this striking difference. Unlike all the others that were being examined that day, these looked like children from PBB farms. The doctors checked their addresses and found this to be so.

Saved by milk

"There was another farm family with multiple symptoms who had one young child who was in better condition than the others," said Barr. "When we questiond the mother she told us that this child," who was about four years old, had not eaten well in babyhood and so she had supplemented his diet with powdered milk. It is interesting to speculate that the child may have been spared the symptoms of the others because of its dependence on powdered milk which came from outside the state and therefore was not contaminated."

A statistical analysis, which he and his co-workers have just completed, is "particularly disturbing," Barr said. "We found a negative correlation between the extent of symptoms and the amount of PBB in the blood. The higher the blood level of PBB the fewer the symptoms, and vice versa. Most toxins work the other way round. We are at a loss as to what conclusions to draw. There are so many unknowns."

Tyranny of Powerless

ROSABETH MOSS KANTER

(Professor of sociology at Yale University, Kanter is the author of "Men and Women of the Corporation." She wrote this for the New York Times )

Lord Acton did not tell the whole story. Powerlessness corrupts. In modern bureaucracies, at least, it is powerlessness — not power — that breeds dictatorial, rules-minded, punitive styles.

The arrogance of power is a common public theme. Less often discussed, but clear to me after 10 years of observation and as a consultant to major organizations, are the numerous petty tyrannies of powerlessness.

It is the powerless in positions of responsibility that construct fiefdoms out of functions, coerce when they cannot persuade, and count the paper clips rather than encourage independent action. After all, the ultimate weapon of the powerless is to hold everyone else back.

For the people called "leadership" in a large organization, power is supposedly an automatic part of their functioning. They are given the formal titles (director, manager, supervisor) and they are expected to aid the mobilization of others toward the attainment of objectives. They have responsibility for results, and they are accountable for what gets done.

But as everyone knows, power does not come automatically with the formal designation of who's in charge. It takes an established record, political connections, and freedom from routine to translate assigned authority into the capacity to mobilize people to get things done.

Power comes in part from doing the extraordinary — creating, inventing, planning, behaving in not-yet-predictable ways. But leaders are often bogged down in details, in trivial problems calling for instant solutions that are seductive because of the illusion of accomplishment they provide. And for those middle managers and supervisors with even less formal mandate to exercise discretion, the bureaucratic maze of rules, regulations, accepted procedures and veto barriers may increase the feeling of powerlessness. They cannot influence the environment to get what they need to get out the work. And they may be undercut by their own management should they even try to initiate or invent or promise rewards. In turn, the people under them stop taking them seriously.

Anticipating resistance in all directions, the powerless become more coercive downward. People often have a neurotic need to dominate when they feel anxious or helpless, inferior or insignificant. As a protection and a defence, the psychologically powerless turn to control over others. They may want to be right all the time and are irritated at being proved wrong. They cannot tolerate disagreement. In short, they become critical, bossy, and controlling.

The powerless inside an authority structure often become rules-minded in response to their limited bargaining tools, insisting on obeisance to "the rules" where friendly personal persuasion will fail. Furthermore, getting everything right is the response of those who lack other ways to impress their own bosses to justify their worth. In turn, they demand this kind of ritualistic conformity from subordinates, like school-teachers more concerned with a paper's neatness than its ideas.

In response to insignificance in an organization, officials also turn to their own small territory, their own little piece of the system: their subordinates, their function, their expertise.

They guard their domain jealously, narrowing their interests to focus exclusively on it. They try to insulate and protect it and to prevent anyone else from engaging in similar activities without their approval or participation. But that, in turn, disempowers those in neighboring functions and spreads powerlessness downward and outward in the system.

The powerful, in contrast, can afford to look like generous, democratic leaders. They can suggest or indicate or hint and know that people will respond — sometimes before a formal request is even issued. They are rich in the resources that known power brings and can give more of them away. The expansion of their territories makes necessary the empowering of subordinates so that they, too, can grow into greater responsibilities. And the powerful are often too busy politicking and making deals with the environment to have much time to interfere in subordinates' autonomy.

But the powerless are forced to operate differently.

Powerlessness can affect the top of an organization, too. Top leaders need to insulate themselves from the routine to develop and exercise power. But insulation itself can create powerlessness. Leaders are sealed off in large, distant offices, babied and flattered by aides who often prevent them from knowing what's really happening in the name of protecting the big boss from trivia. They are often frustrated by their distance from the real action of the organization at the same time that they are surrounded by people exactly like themselves — or the younger versions that enhance leaders' sense of immortality but keep them from learning anything new.

There are other sources of powerlessness at the top besides distance from the capacity to directly mobilize the organization. The environment presses regardless of leaders' grand plans. The population shifts (from college age to older, from Cleveland to California), the government regulates, suppliers raise their prices and are impervious to persuasion. Access to resources is reduced as influence outward declines.

Inside, constituencies fragment, special-interest groups demand, and common purpose — that traditional source of instant co-operation — is lost. So leaders may also face a more resistant population inside, a set of human resources harder to arouse to do more, to do better, to change course.

There are signs that organizational powerlessness may be the experience of more and more people. Economic growth is shutting down. As organizations mature, they tend to centralize and add insulating layers of hierarchy between decisions and action. Many jobs are becoming more routinized, their procedures pre-determined. Regulatory pressures are only one force decreasing idiosyncratic — or sometimes merely discretionary — action.

The usual responses to powerlessness — to control more tightly, punish by firing, set more limits, permit fewer risks — only spreads the mentality of powerlessness further, until the whole organization becomes sluggish.

The alternative is to empower more organization members. Delegate, decentralize, debureaucratize, cut down on insulation layers — and put the capacity to act back at the point of action.

today's markets

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market reversed a morning advance to decline moderately in active mid-session trading.

Declines edged advances 178 to 172 with 208 issues unchanged.

Among industrials, Pacific Petroleums dropped 1⅛ to $33⅝, Canadian Cablesystems A ¾ to $16¼, Texasgulf ½ to $24, Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to $28⅞ and Cominco ⅜ to $28¾.

Peoples Jewellers C gained 1⅝ to $10, Consumers Glass ⅞ to $17¼, Cara Operations ¾ to $17¾, Genstar ¾ to $28⅜ and Ashland Oil Canada ½ to $19⅛.

Campbell Red Lake Mines fell ¼ to $37¾, Anglo United Development 16 cents to $2.11 and Gibraltar Mines ⅛ to $5⅞. Conwest Exploration climbed ⅝ to $6¼ and Placer Development ¼ to $24¾.

Numac Oil and Gas slipped 1½ to $32¼, Czar Resources ⅜ to $19⅞ and PanCanadian Petroleum ⅜ to $32½. Siebens Oil and Gas rose ¼ to $27¼ and Coseka Resources ¼ to $5½.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted today, most prices rising and falling within a narrow range as investors tried to figure which way the financial winds were blowing.

"The market is trendless today," said Monte Gordon, an analyst for Dreyfus Corp. "Nothing has happened that has been strong enough to make people buy or sell. The market's waiting for a lead."

Brokers said that investors were analyzing the U.S. government's report on leading economic indicators, which are designed to signal the directionthe economy will take. The indicators rose a moderate 0.5 per cent in April, about what Wall Street expected.

The market has been edgy lately about inflation as investors worry that a rapid expansion in the economy could force prices up. Wall Street also was waiting for the weekly figures on the amount of money in circulation in the economy. That data, scheduled to be released immediately after the close of trading today, gives a clue to whether the Federal Reseve Board will tighten credit to slow the monetary growth and fight inflation.

Sears Roebuck, which reported a 10-per-cent increase in retail sales for May, was heavily traded, climbing ⅛ to $24⅝.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were slightly lower in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Texasgulf slipped ¼ to $24½, CP Ltd. ⅛ to $18⅝ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ⅛ to $28⅞. Bank of Montreal rose ¼ to $21⅝ and Provigo ½ at $18. Among speculative issues, Mount Jamie Mines declined two-and-a-half cents to 42 cents on a volume of 3,000 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices retreated from earlier highs near the close of light trading on the London stock market. The Financial Times index was up 0.2 to 479 an hour before the close. Leading equities moved lower following lower-than-expected British Petroleum Co. Ltd. first-quarter earnings. Gold shares dropped sharply on lower international bullion prices, while platinums advanced. Canadian issues eased.

Bowater

Bowater Mersey Paper Co. Ltd. reports an increase in sales to $58,118,000 in 1977 from $43,784,000.

The company, which produces newsprint at a pulp mill here, attributed the improvement to increased sales and to gains from the premium rate on the American dollar.

Net profit tripled in 1977 to $5,944,000, compared to $1,973,000 in 1976.

The company paid dividends amounting to 70 cents a share in 1977. Total dividends on all common and preferred shares amounted to $2,227,000.

B.C. Sugar

British Columbia Su[illegible] Refinery Ltd. reported net earnings in the six-month period ended March 31, 1978 were $2,756,000 or $1.12 a share, compared with $2,811,000 or $1.14 a share in the corresponding 1977 period.

The company said in a news release sales were $106.3 million compared with $82.4 million in 1977.

Peter A. Cherniavsky, company president, said earnings in the first half of 1978 lagged behind the rise in sales because of reduced income from packaging operations.

He said packaging earnings were affected by the start-up costs of two new plants, as well as highly competitive marketing conditions in the packaging industry.

Cherniavsky said the sugar beet industry throughout North America is experiencing difficult times because the world price of sugar remains at depressed levels.

M-F Ltd.

Massey-Ferguson Ltd. suffered a net loss of $16.7 million (U.S.) or $1.03 a share for the second quarter ended April 30 compared with profit of $2.1 million and a loss of two cents a share in the comparable period a year ago.

The company has a $38.7 million loss in the first quarter.

Second-quarter sales totalled $777 million, up from $661 million in the comparable 1977 period.

Albert Thornbrough, president, said savings from the company's reduced workforce—down 5,900 from the 67,000 employed worldwide last Oct. 31—will not have their full effect until 1979.

Federal Ind.

Federal Industries Ltd. has announced a net loss of $2,515,543 or 73 cents a common share for the year ended March 31.

Excluding an extraordinary loss of $2,498,327, the loss amounted to one cent a share.

The company had reported earnings, including extraordinary items, of $1,481,880 or 43 cents a share in the previous 12 months.

The directors have declared a quarterly dividend of five cents a share on Class A and B common shares, payable July 1 to shareholders of record June 9.

The company's annual report is to be mailed to shareholders on June 14, together with a notice of the annual meeting set for June 30.

HB Mining

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. has offered to purchase all of the shares of Whitehorse Copper Mines it does not already own for $4 a share. The offer, which expires June 19, was mailed to Whitehorse shareholders May 29. Hudson Bay Mining already owns 1,396,230 of Whitehorse's 3,406,102 outstanding shares.

Minorities 'Squeezed-Out'

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Securities Commission report says minority shareholders in some companies are becoming victim of a growing number of "squeeze-outs" by majority interests.

A new set of rules to regulate such situations is recommended in the report to the commission by Charles Salter, staff director.

The commission, headed by chairman James Baillie, will hold a public hearing June 19 to consider the proposals.

Salter defined squeeze-out as the use of corporate control by majority shareholders "to eliminate minority equity interests from the corporation, reduce their voting power to a level of relative insignificance or otherwise deprive them of the rights and privileges traditionally associated with stock ownership.

"Although squeeze-outs are not a new development, they have received considerably more prominence and have been utilized more frequently as a result of the recent 'going-private' phenomenon."

Salter said some owners can use "strategic position, inside information or some legal device" to squeeze out others.

A squeeze-out generally increases the equity position of the control group members and often insulates them from changes in control, he said.

"As a result, although such transactions are fundamental corporate changes, they do not fit within the economic justification of greater efficiency."

Man Jailed For Assault

A 22-year-old Langford man will spend the next 30 weekends in jail for indecently assaulting his family's babysitter last August.

Richard James Mitchell was found guilty by a county court jury May 15 of the offence on the 15-year-old girl.

Judge Leslie Cashman said deterrence is important in cases involving young persons who are victimized by adults.

Giving way to passion while drunk is not a defence, he said. But he noted Mitchell's spotless record, that he is married with two children, is steadily employed and his employer spoke well of him.

Mitchell will be on probation while serving the 60-day intermittent sentence involving two-day weekends in jail.

In another case, Cashman fined John Daniel Vosper, 21, of Langford $500, in default 60 days in jail, for dangerous driving March 29, 1977.

Prosecutor Don Laughton said Vosper drove for four miles on the Pat Bay Highway at speeds of 100 to 110 miles an hour pursued by police, overtaking 20 to 30 vehicles and abruptly changing lanes half a dozen times. Vosper has two previous convictions for dangerous driving.

Vosper said there wasn't that much traffic, he wasn't drinking, no one was hurt and that he was doing 80 to 90 miles an hour.

Cashman noted the offence took place more than a year ago and that Vosper is trying to reconstruct his life. But he warned him that it is unlikely he will get a fine for another driving offence and if he appeared before him again, he would certainly go to jail.

to Cuban and Soviet action in Africa.

In a reference to the Carter administration's escalating criticism of Moscow and Havana, Callaghan told reporters he wasn't sure that he heard a clear voice coming out of Washington.

"I hear several voices," he said. "There seem to be a number of Christopher Columbuses setting out from the United States to discover Africa for the first time . . . It's been there a long time."

French newspapers also said the NATO meeting marked a cooling of relations between the West and Moscow and that Washington's position on Africa is confused and full of contradictions. Le Monde said it indicated the "helplessness of the Carter administration."

However, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who has been Carter's most persistent European critic in the past, told a separate news conference that he could understand "the noise about Africa."

It was important, Schmidt said, for the United States to impress on Moscow that it views Soviet interference in Africa with the utmost seriousness and to make clear that continued Soviet drives for global power could have a domestic U.S. impact, making it difficult for Carter to win Senate approval of a strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) agreement.

"The atmosphere and content of the talk with President Carter again confirmed the solid partnership and close friendship between the two governments," he said.

VICTORIA LOSES BID FOR SUMMER GAMES

Richmond will host the 1979 B.C. Summer Games, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said today.

A joint bid for the games by the four Victoria core municipalities and the Greater Victoria Regional District was unsuccessful for the second successive year.

Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt along with the Juan de Fuca Recreation Commission bid for the first-ever B.C. Summer Games which were awarded to Penticton and will take place this August.

Richmond will host the second summer games in August, 1979.

Bawlf said 1979 is the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of Richmond and the municipality wanted to centre its centennial celebrations around the games.

The provincial government wil give Richmond $180,000. A further $70,000 will be granted as "a legacy for amateur sport in Richmond to reward the volunteers for the efforts they will put forth over the next year."

At the Penticton games Aug. 17-20, 3,460 athletes are expected to compete.

The 1979 B.C. Winter Games will be held in Kamloops March 1-4.

Drivers May Soon Charge Around Town In Electric Vans

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Two Victoria business partners are using a converted Volkswagen to spark interest in electric cars.

Wayne Allen and Bill Pipes have a management company, as yet unnamed, which proposes to lease their version of a battery-powered delivery pickup for urban-oriented commercial firms. The project started after they did some convincing research on the subject.

Between them, they tore the engine from a Volkswagen beetle, sliced half the body off, installed a deck and replaced the power with batteries and electric motor that can give 30 to 40 miles on a single charge at a penny-a-mile for electricity.

Just under the deck are 12 high-output six-volt storage batteries connected to solenoids that deliver power in either of two ranges with or without the standard Volkswagen transmission. The motor, bolted at right angles to the differential housing, is a surplus aircraft direct current generator.

The result is a pollution-free, pint-size, manoeuvrable delivery van ideal for short runs along busy streets. From a standing start, its low-range torque is something to behold.

Ultimately there will be opportunity for domestic electric autos, but for two years at least Allen thinks the best prospects are for commercial and industrial vehicles running comparatively short distances at low speeds.

He noted that battery technology so far has not developed electric car capacity to equal the speed and range of the internal combustion vehicle for practical highway use.

But he points out that anyone who believes in the future of the electric car might justifiably buy one today using conventional batteries, then switch to super duty batteries when they are perfected.

"Batteries are the big thing," Allen said. "A person could buy a car now and when batteries improve put in a new one, and you've got an improved version of the electric car. Can you see doing that with a gasoline engine?"

He put the approximate cost of the prototype delivery van at $7,000 — about the same as conventional full-size pickups and vans. But he said he prefers to quote cost in terms of monthly leasing at $175 plus three cents a mile including electricity for battery charging. Rates for gas-powered trucks are comparatively higher.

In addition, Allen said the costs of buying or leasing can be spread over a longer period because the vehicle will last longer than internal combustion autos.

As electric cars become established it is anticipated that hydro companies will offer lower rates for charging batteries during off-peak hours, thereby dropping operating charges even lower.

Within a few days the electric pickup will become a service truck for the business machine firm of J. R. Pipes, first in Victoria to switch on electrically.

Temperature Ties Record; Sunny Skies Forecast

Temperatures matched record highs Wednesday and the sunshine is expected to continue until the weekend, chief forecaster Norm Dressler said today.

The temperature hit 26 degrees, matching the previous high for May 31, which occurred in 1964.

Dressler said the weather outlook is for sunny skies and a stable pattern, which is a break for the weather office as well as for the public.

"Nothing is more pleasing than to have a nice, stable weather pattern, especially a sunny one," Dressler said.

Most days the job is much tougher — because he has to make one forecast for two very different areas.

"The weather at Pat Bay is not like the pattern in downtown Victoria," he said.

North of Royal Oak the weather is cloudy, cool and wet, compared to the banana belt of Victoria City.

For example May was dryer than normal south of Royal Oak — but wetter than normal to the north.

Rainfall in the downtown area totalled a mere 15.4 mm, the length of an average fingernail, down from the average May rainfall of 22.3 mm.

But north of Royal Oak it was a wet month. The precipitation totalled 42.3 mm, almost enough to come to the top of a man's shoe, compared with a normal rainfall of 30.9 mm.

But May was cooler than normal both north and south of Royal Oak.

At Gonzales the average night-and-day temperature during the month came to 11.7 degrees, down from the normal average of 12.1.

Out at Pat Bay, the average temperature was 11, down from a normal average of 11.9.

Unfortunately one of the cool periods came during the Victoria Day weekend when daily highs slipped from 16 down to 14.4 at Pat Bay and to 13.2 in downtown Victoria.

The cool weather stayed until May 27.

While it was nippy on occasion, the sun shone often. There were 320 hours of sunshine in downtown Victoria during May, up from the normal 277.2 hours.

At Pat Bay there were 287 hours of sunshine, up from 260.8 hours.

Since Saturday, the weather has been good over all of southern Vancouver Island, thanks to a high pressure ridge both at ground level and aloft.

"All the Pacific storms are being diverted to Alaska or The Yukon," Dressler said.

"This pattern should continue until the weekend. The long-term outlook is for clouds to begin forming on Monday."

. . . SO THEY BOOKED HIM

The Greater Victoria Public Library at 1153 Esquimalt Road has been broken into several times in recent months.

But an early morning break-in today is one police and library staff will be talking about for a while.

A nearby resident spotted a man on the roof of the library at 2:15 a.m. and watched as he broke a skylight and disappeared inside.

Police surrounded the building and ordered the person to give himself up. Soon a young man crawled out a rear window (the doors were locked).

Police asked him what he was doing.

"Reading," he replied.

That was too much to swallow and a search of the man revealed $3 in small change which police believe was taken from the staff coffee fund.

An 18-year-old was to appear in court today charged with breaking and entering and theft.

Police Team Mockup Study

A team policing squad will be set up on paper to demonstrate what effect the deployment of necessary manpower will have on the over-all efficiency of the Victoria police department.

The team policing mockup was ordered Wednesday by the Victoria police board, as the first step towards possibly establishing a pilot project somewhere in the city.

If team policing looks good on paper the board is likely to put the squad into operation, possibly in James Bay or Fairfield, for a test run. If succesful in the second stage it could lead to the entire force switching to the team policing method.

MOTTERSHEAD STEPS DOWN

Deputy city police chief Les Mottershead is stepping down for health reasons, Chief Jack Gregory said Wednesday.

Mottershead will become an inspector in the patrol division.

Mottershead had asked to be reasigned to a position of less responsibility on the advice of his physician.

Gregory said the deputy is not moving because of any conflicts.

The chief said candidates to replace Mottershead will be interviewed between now and mid-July.

Lukewarm Support For Beer

Victoria city council's downtown economic development committee today gave lukewarm support to a proposal to have a beer garden on the Inner Harbor this summer.

Mayor Mike Young and Ald. Robin Blencoe voted to endorse the plan put forward by Dave Gerrand of the Associated Canadian Travellers Club.

Gerrand asked for permission for his association to sell beer at either the Black Ball ferry site or the old Ocean Cement location from July 25 to 30 inclusive. He said all the profit would go to charity.

Gerrand said it would cost around $7,000 to set up the beer garden and he planned to have about $20,000 worth of beer in stock.

The beer garden would operate from noon until 3 p.m. and then again from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The proposal is subject now to approval by city council and will not get the go-ahead if there are any problems providing electricty and water to the site.

Car Crash Fatal

A 63-year-old North Saanich woman died early today of injuries from a single-car accident in the 9600-block West Saanich Road Wednesday night.

Sidney RCMP said Kathleen Peters of 1268 Lands End Road died in Saanich Peninsula Hospital three hours after the 10 p.m. mishap.

A spokesman said Mrs. Peters apparently lost control of her car when she reached for some eggs which had fallen to the floor.

Philip Here Aug. 7

Queen Elizabeth will not accompany him despite a long-standing invitation from Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy.

The royal couple will be in Edmonton for the opening of the Commonwealth Games. Philip will fly to Victoria, arriving at 11:30 a.m.

He will be greeted by newly-appointed Lieutenant Governor Henry Bell-Irving and government officials.

His overnight stay includes a visit to the legislature, a reception at CFB Esquimalt, a Government House garden party and a concert by the Victoria Symphony at Centennial Square.

Local officials say Philip will travel to Government House by "the most publicly exposed route."

While at Government House he will present Duke of Edinburgh awards for physical fitness to young people from around the province.

There will also be an 8 p.m. dinner for him at Government House.

Rip-Offs Feared On Tourist Digs

The Visitors Information Centre today expressed concern that some Victoria homeowners may turn into rip-off artists by charging tourists too much for emergency accommodation this summer.

VIC accommodation committee chairman Ken King said: "It will give Victoria a bad name if they charge too much or offer unsuitable accommodation to tourists."

He said homeowners wanting to open their homes to tourists should list with the Causeway tourist bureau and have their homes inspected.

"The inspectors will decide whether the accommodation is suitable and will suggest a rate."

The rate would be about what similar accommodation would cost in a motel.

King said the bureau already has a list of 70 homes willing to participate and is hoping for at least 30 more.

As soon as the 100 are in, VIC inspectors will begin making their rounds, he said.

He said his greatest fear is that some homeowners might advertise directly to tourists offering accommodation that has not been inspected and approved by the VIC.

If this happens, the tourist office could be receiving complaints about poor accommodations that it did not have the chance to inspect.

Those householders operating through the VIC will have the advantage of being part of the emergency housing program for the summer, he said.

The VIC office on the Causeway has a status board listing all the VIC member hotels and motels in the region. At a glance it will be evident if there are any hotel or motel rooms available.

If the sold-out sign goes up, the householder book will be opened and tourists will be directed to these homes which have been inspected and for which a rate has been indicated in advance.

"Some householders want to provide accommodation for nothing or for very little. Many people want to help. Others are asking the going rate."

Some have put restrictions — asking for an elderly couple or specifying no children.

The householder units are expected to be needed in July, especially during the period of from July 20 to 24 when the tall ships arrive. They may be needed in August as well.

The emergency accommodation service will be operated through a special phone number, 388-4313.

DIAL-A-CLAIM BEGINS MONDAY

The Insurance Corp. of B.C. will begin a dial-a-claim service in Victoria on Monday to eliminate lengthy waiting periods at the local claims centre and speed up the estimate process.

The move follows pilot projects conducted in Prince George, Kamloops and Duncan which ICBC says resulted in a good start-up ratio of 60 per cent of claims being phoned in.

Under the new system, a motorist who has a claim or is involved in an accident will telephone the Victoria claims centre and report the details to an adjuster.

If there is vehicle damage, an appointment will be made for the driver to bring the vehicle to the claims centre at a convenient time for appraisal by an estimator.

Tom Holmes, senior vice-president, auto insurance, said those in Sooke, Port Renfrew and Jordan River can call collect at 388-7822 to report their claims.

Indian Curse on Developer?

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Bad luck will befall Victoria businessman Bob Wright and his associates if a housing development is allowed on 15 acres on a peninsula on Tsehum Bay, the site of an ancient Indian burial ground, Gus Bill of the Tseycum Band at Patricia Bay said today.

Bill submitted a band letter at a Wednesday night meeting of the North Saanich advisory planning committee protesting Wright's plan for housing units on the peninsula and expansion of the North Saanich Marina, formerly Bosun's Marina.

Bill said the spirits of the dead will haunt Wright who is president of North Saanich Marina Ltd., owner of the land and marina.

Wright's proposal was rejected by North Saanich council last year after nearly 1,500 residents signed a petition against the project, but it was submitted to the planning committee for further study.

After hearing submissions including one from Wright, the committee decided to hold a further public meeting Tuesday, June 27, at 8 p.m. at Parkland Secondary School, 10640 McDonald Park Road.

The band letter noted that "our ancestors buried their dead at the place, under the presumption that they would rest in peace forever. This procedure was a sacred tribal ritual and that area was to remain undisturbed for all times."

"Our people wish to protest any land alterations which might disturb our forefathers in any way," the letter added.

Bill, 65, a staunch Roman Catholic, has appealed to Bishop Remi de Roo to help stop any development on the burial site.

BILL
. . . ancestors threatened

The ex-chief today elaborated on the reasons the band opposes development in the area.

"Indians have a lot of respect for the dead," he said. "They (the developers) should not be allowed to bother our ancesters."

He said the graves are no longer visible on the peninsula because trees have grown over them but "the spirits of our ancestors still wander over the land that was ours."

He recalled his mother, Josephine Charlie, who died 10 years ago at the age of 104, was the last Indian born on a reserve adjacent to the burial site.

"Just before she died she was taken in a car to have a last look at her birthplace and at the burial grounds," he said.

He noted there are a few private dwellings on the peninsula but these are not on the burial grounds.

He said if the land is disturbed for housing development, the spirits of the dead will work against Wright and has associates.

"Sometimes the spirits of the dead work on your behalf or against you," he added.

"All I can say is if the burial ground is disturbed, the spirits of the dead will work against those responsible. It will bring about bad luck."

Bill also said the band was opposed to expansion of the marina because it would encompass the habitat of migratory waterfowls.

"We are not against development," he said, "but we say nature comes first.

"Man depends on nature, but non-Indians don't like to to recognize this."

Victim 'Senseless'

VANCOUVER (CP) — When Larry Sheffield wakes up in the morning, nurses have to dress and feed him.

Then he his wheeled to a lounge area where he spends most of his day gazing about vacantly. The routine is broken only by meals, medication and visits from friends and relatives.

"I don't believe he knows who he is," says Virginia Austin, his sister. "He does react to me — I can make him laugh — but he's completely senseless."

Sheffield, 43, was the victim of a Jan. 28 beating in an East End rooming house.

Francois Quesnel, 25, was sentenced to 4½ years for wounding. His brother, Vincent, 20, received four years for what the judge said was an unmerciful beating. The brothers are from St. Albert, Ont., 40 kilometres southeast of Ottawa.

Vincent said Sheffield had called him a frog and invited him to fight.

Court was told that the 155-pound Francois and the 175-pound Vincent entered Sheffield's room and kicked and punched him. The victim was dragged by his heels down a hall, a flight of stairs and outside onto a sidewalk where Vincent kicked him in the head repeatedly.

The 130-pound Sheffield was treated at hospital for fractured ribs, internal bleeding and head injuries. While in intensive care, he suffered a heart attack.

$61,428 Awarded

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-eight criminal injury awards totalling $61,428 and two pensions amounting to $412 were awarded by the Workers' Compensation Board of British Columbia during April, the board said Wednesday.

The largest award of $8,907 went to a 28-year-old Fraser Valley man who was beaten by two assailants after helping an elderly man who had been attacked by the thugs. He received compensation for loss of wages and injuries suffered during the attack.

A 36-year-old Surrey man was awarded $6,348 for loss of wages and injuries suffered after he was beaten and robbed by an unknown assailant. The victim was disabled for three month.

MoT 'Not Liable'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday he sees no evidence of departmental liability in the findings last week of a Cranbrook coroner's jury, which cited poor communications as a contributing factor in the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jet.

Lang, here for a speech to the Vancouver Board of Trade, said in an interview he does not feel there was any negligence involved in the Ministry of Transport's air traffic control services. Forty-three persons were killed in the crash and six survived.

The coroner's jury said poor communications between Calgary air traffic controllers, the Cranbrook municipal airport radio operator and the flight crew of the Boeing 737 led to the presence of a snowplow on the runway when the aircraft came in to land. The plane crashed after aborting its landing attempt.

The jury also cited a lack of clearly-defined procedures in the ministry's air traffic control operations and recommended a thorough study of air traffic control communications procedures.

He said he will decide whether to order a full public inquiry into the crash after he receives the final report of the transport ministry's air accident investigation team in late June.

TRIAL SET WITHIN TRIAL

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — County court Judge David Hinds decided Wednesday to hold a trial-within-a-trial to hear testimony from two 14-year-old girls in the sex case of Raymond Rodgers, 42.

Although the two witnesses are not related to the case at hand, Hinds ruled that "similar fact evidence" was an acceptable form of testimony.

Rodgers is charged with having sexual intercourse with a 13-year-old girl.

Once the testimony from the two girls is heard, Hinds will rule on the admissibility of their evidence.

Hydro Buying Up Ranchland?

ASHCROFT (CP) — The president of the Ashcroft Ranchers Association says he is concerned that a vast amount of agricultural land has been bought during the last few months by Montreal Trust on behalf of a client whose identity is secret.

The ranches that have been bought are the 1,200-acre Semlin Ranch, a few kilometres east of Cache Creek, and the 3,700-acre Basil Jackson Ranch, just north of Cache Creek.

Association president Tim Rolph said ranchers suspect British Columbia Hydro has bought the ranches "to have land to offer in trade to the Hat Creek people and to Indians in the area" if the Hat Creek open pit coal mine and thermal generating plant are developed.

B.C. Hydro spokesman Dave Robertson, asked if the Crown corporation is the purchaser, said: "We don't want to confirm or deny it."

The corporation has already openly bought several ranches in the Hat Creek area of southeastern B.C. but many property owners are determined not to sell.

"Hundreds of these acres are the highest yielding alfalfa land in the province," said Rolph. "What concerns me as president of the ranchers' association is what is going to happen to this land. It's an awful lot of land to be owned mysteriously."

The Basil Jackson Ranch sold for about $2 million and the Semlin Ranch changed hands so recently that the sale has not yet been registered at the Kamloops land registry office.

Montreal Trust is listed as purchaser of the Basil Jackson Ranch.

Company lawyer Peter Watts declined to identify Montreal Trust's client, saying "one of the conditions of the sale was that the name of the other party not be released."

Kamloops lawyer Ken Houghton, representing the estate of rancher Basil King who died last Christmas day, said if B.C. Hydro is behind the purchases "then Hydro controls almost the whole of the Ashcroft range district."

Ashcroft rancher Stan Rowe, who has invested his life savings in his ranch, said he fears that Hydro purchases may upset the balance of the entire ranching community in the area.

"Hydro is distorting land values by keeping prices artificially high because Hydro doesn't have to worry about profit or loss as ranchers do," said Rowe.

"Hydro is not in the ranching business. It doesn't have the feel of an agricultural community."

Meanwhile, Cache Creek rancher Alan Parke, who has sold considerable ranchland to Hydro during the last few years, said the Crown corporation is not irrigating the huge ranch he sold it last December.

"The land under production hasn't had a drop of water apart from nature and the alfalfa is burning up right now," he said.

Pointing to the mountain ridge outside his living room window he said: "There were 2,000 cows on that mountain last year and there isn't one now."

UIC FRAUD CHARGED

MATSQUI (CP) — An investigator for the Employment and Immigration Commission says he has uncovered 12 fraudulent claims for unemployment insurance benefits filed by employees of one Fraser Valley farm.

Richard Beaudette was testifying at the provincial court trial of Harbhajan and Gurmit Hayra, proprietors of the farm, and their sister, Baldish Deol, charged with conspiracy to commit fraud.

Beaudette told Judge A. H. Kelly that the claims, which were disallowed, were filed by workers who had been employed in the summer of 1976 as berry-pickers at Hayres Fruit Farm in Abbotsford.

Prosecutor Wally Oppal said the accused devised a scheme in which their farm workers paid to them kickbacks in exchange for falsified work records, with which the workers applied for unemployment insurance benefits.

The three are charged with unlawfully conspiring by deceit, falsehood or other fraudulent means to defraud Her Majesty the Queen (the commission) of a sum in excess of $200.

The Crown says that the accused guranteed to provide their summer employees, who usually worked for no more than six weeks, with falsified employment records indicating that they had worked at least eight weeks.

Saskatchewan Roughriders have hit the jackpot in the greatest recruiting job in the history of Canadian football—a signing that literally could save the franchise and make the Riders a contender for the next decade.

Regina has signed up cable television.

Yes, the city that has made do with the CBC and CTV, the city where Big Event in the TV listings means they're rerunning the 1966 Grey Cup film, the city where the afternoon soap opera is Father Still Knows Best—Regina, Sask., has discovered the wonders of NBC, ABC and CBS.

And do you know what that means? It means Ron Lancaster will play forever.

This was going to be Lancaster's 16th and final season as quarterback. I mean, really. The Riders were so sure they went out and paid serious money to lure Larry Dick from U of Maryland so they'd have a genuine quarterback ready for 1979. And now it turns out they wasted the money. The cable has finally arrived.

Pack your bags, Larry Dick. Don't send out your laundry, Kenny Washington. The Little General has established permanent camp.

For Ronald Lancaster, who will be 40 this year, life in Regina has always held one major hangup. He is one of the true television sports junkies.

He'd have quit football long ago, except that the road trips get him into cities where he can shoot up on NFL, NBA, World Championship Tennis and Battle of the Network Superstars.

But home stands have been hell, and winter meant going virtually cold turkey. It was driving him mad—indeed, it was driving him into retirement. He said it more than once: let his kids get out of high school and boom, the Lancasters were off to multi-channel civilization.

Now he doesn't have to. The best quarterback in the country can stay another decade or so, throwing touchdown passes, getting his uniform dirty maybe three times a year, and dashing home Saturday afternoons to watch the Pro Bowlers' Tour.

It is the best news coach Jim Eddy has received in a year when he could use plenty. Because the Riders missed the playoffs for the first time in 15 years last season, and he has a club full of question marks.

There is the large matter of tight end Bob Richardson, a Canadian currently employed at Chuck's Bargain Centre in downtown Regina. Richardson played out his option and is now negotiating with the Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, thus giving the world a new definition of Hobson's Choice.

The Riders' depth chart currently lists only one tight end, an import named Bob Bruer, not terribly impressive last year. Eddy must be worried. He's giving a tryout to Brian Jack, ex-Alouette and contemporary of the Piltdown Man.

There is the problem of replacing halfback Molly McGee, who runs well but often forgets to take the football with him. The leading candidate is—would I kid you?—Joe Smith, who rushed for more than 4,500 yards in four seasons at Henderson State College, which is in Arkadelphia, Ark., and is said to be faster than a speeding bullet and capable of leaping tall grain elevators in a maximum two bounds.

Eddy wants to find a flanker to replace Joey Walters, but has Walters in camp just in case. Frank Russell, who caught Dick's passes at Maryland and was the New York Jets' final cut last year, is said to be Rhett Dawson with speed. This time of year, who isn't?

Lief Pettersen, of whom Lancaster is alleged to have said "I'll play a man short before I'll throw to him again," was traded to Hamilton for Canadian lineman Joe Worobec. Eddy hopes Worobec can be a regular on the offensive line and give him a chance to use two import running backs if Steve Molnar doesn't cut it as a starting fullback.

The man he'd like to play there is Courtney Snyder, who set career rushing records at U of Indiana despite missing his entire senior year with a broken tailbone. Snyder is attempting a comeback at 23 after two years out of football, but has a knee that is said to be suspect.

Defensively, Eddy appears to be rebuilding his line, pinning his hopes on Eary Jones, 6'5", 265-pound tackle from Los Angeles Rams and two grads of the Regina Rams—6'4", 262-pound Bob Poley (forever doomed to be called Rollie) and Bryan Illerbrun, a 6'4", 270-pounder who's played junior football for five years and still has two seasons eligibility left because he started when he was 16.

Bill Baker is stalling again, threatening retirement because he doesn't know which he dislikes most, training camp or Eddy.

This time the Riders have given him until Monday to decide whether he's retiring or not. "Otherwise," Eddy says, "we'll go without him." The ultimatum has caused considerable laughter in downtown Regina, where the customers have seen the movie before. If Baker shows Tuesday—or Wednesday, or Thursday, or Friday, chances are Eddy will offer to lace up his boots.

The heat is more legitimate, after a bad year at cornerback, on Paul Williams, especially since Hamilton safety Steve Gelley has signed on and Eddy can do some juggling.

So, in Regina, some things change and others remain the same. And just when you think the town is growing up, well:

Former SFU defensive back Preston Young intercepted a pass in practice this week, fell, and broke two fingers. Caught his hand in a gopher hole.

Batters Spark Seaboard Win

Seaboard Construction batters pounded out 17 hits Wednesday en route to a 16-5 romp over Juan de Fuca Builders in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League play at Central Park.

The win boosted league-leading Seaboard's record to 10-2.

Tom Robertson, Mike Taaffe, Brian Grexton and Wayne Forland led the hitting assault.

Robertson connected for a home run and three singles in four trips to the plate to score three times and drive in three runs; Taaffe was four-for-five to score four and drive in two; Grexton hit a triple and a single in three trips to score twice and drive in three; and Forland blasted a homer and a single in four trips to score twice and drive in three.

Barry Wilkin recorded the pitching victory, striking out six and scattering eight hits while going the distance.

At Hyacinth Park, CJVI Vicettes blanked Combos 11-0 and MacDonald's Furniture bounced Ingraham Hotel 11-5 in Victoria Senior Women's League play.

Sandy Milliken tossed a five-hitter to lead Vicettes to victory and Sandy Smith set the batting pace with a triple and three singles in four turns at the plate.

Debbie James was also four-for-four to spark the MacDonald's offense.

In Heywood Men's League action, Hygrade Radio topped Capital Builders, 7-5. The win boosted Hygrade four points ahead of the second-place Builders.

At Sanscha Park, Ron Frampton, Dale Ewasiuk and Jack Lusk hit home runs to lead Brentwood to a 12-3 Sidney Men's Association decision over Harvey's Sporting Goods.

NANAIMO UPSETS BURRARDS IN OVERTIME

Marshall Proves That He Belongs

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

For a player that nobody in the west really wanted, Scott Marshall made a believer out of more than a few observers in a Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena, Wednesday night.

Marshall, who was making his first start in goal for the Shamrocks, was positively spectacular in the first period as he blanked Coquitlam Adanacs, and he carried on from there to help the Rocks post a well-deserved 14-6 victory over the visitors.

Marshall made the big stops when the Shamrocks needed them most and he held the Adanacs to only two goals until the third period, as the Shamrocks pulled away from a 2-0 first-period lead to jump in front 10-2.

In the third period, the Adanacs managed to get four goals by him, three in one minute and 30 seconds, but by then the Irish had more or less forgotten their checking chores as the game was beyond reach of the A's.

Victory kept the Shamrocks in first place, two points ahead of Nanaimo Timbermen, who surprised Vancouver Burrards, 17-16, in overtime.

But the Marshall story deserves more than that.

For it was at the insistence of regular goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer that the Rocks gave Marshall, who comes from Fergus, Ont., as does Smeltzer, a tryout in the first place.

Originally, Smeltzer, who had urged Marshall to come west, had tried to get him a trial with Coquitlam Adanacs, but they didn't need a goalkeeper; then Nanaimo Timbermen, but they weren't interested; and finally the Shamrocks, who really didn't need anyone either as they had Smeltzer and George Grover, the No. 1 combination in the league from last year.

However, Smeltzer persisted, the Irish relented, Marshall passed his test, Grover retired and Wednesday night Marshall was named the game's No. 1 star.

Not bad for a debut, wot?

Or as Smeltzer quipped after the game: "Gee, I was sure glad when they (the Adanacs) scored on him."

"Actually, I knew he could play in this league," said a more serious Smeltzer; "and he proved it tonight."

There should be no argument on that score — from the Rocks, the A's or the fans — as Marshall blocked 43 shots, 31 in the first two periods, when it mattered most.

Meanwhile, Greg Thomas and John Lewis were blocking 46 between them for the A's.

Ivan Thompson scored three goals, and had three assists to pace the Irish attack, while Ron MacNeil, Charn Dhillon and Jerry McKenna each had a pair. Singles went to Norm Baker, who also had four assists; Dave Thomson, on a floor-length dash as he outran all the defenders; Joe McCrea, Rick Baker and Gerry Cadwallader.

For the Adanacs, who hope to have coach Bob Salt in uniform for the balance of the season, Dan Piotrowski got a pair while singles went to Mark Valastin, Moe Jodoin, Dave Durante and Frank Neilson.

Coquitlam has asked permission to use Salt, who is the property of Burrards, as a player. A meeting will be held tonight between representatives of Coquitlam, Burrards and WLA commissioner Roy Burton to see if an arrangement can be worked out, Burton announced.

Burton also revealed that officials have been decided for the lacrosse exhibition at the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton in Agust. They are Sid Lougheed and Ron Mason.

In Vancouver, Kevin Alexander scored his third goal of the night to lift the Timbermen to their win over Burrards.

Nanaimo trailed 14-9 in the third period before rallying to tie the score to force overtime.

Alexander and Ken King each scored three goals for Nanaimo. Bob Cool, Jim Lynch and Rookie Tej Labh counted twice. Pete Rushton, Ron Swyak, Frank Alexander, Ian Kennedy and Ron Sage added singles.

Pat Ryan and Taki Vohalis each scored three goals for Vancouver, which outshot Nanaimo 59-54. Dave Tasker, John Krgovoch, Ron Pinder and Brian Davidson added two goals each. Doug Hayes and Joe Morello scored singles.

More Than a Billion Fans Ready to Watch World Cup

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The waiting is over and today the gladiators enter the arena to launch the year's most spectacular sporting event—the World Cup soccer finals.

For two years, more than 100 countries battled for the right to play in the 16-team finals, held every four years and the pinnacle of the world's most popular game.

The Argentine referee will blow his whistle in the River Plate stadium and 75,000 fans plus a world television audience estimated at more than one billion will follow the action as world champions West Germany play Poland.

Argentina has spent $700 million providing all the required facilities and has also survived a bloody guerrilla war which at one stage led to calls for the tournament to be transferred elsewhere.

Although the guerrilla threat has all but disappeared, Argentina's military rulers are taking no chances with security and the River Plate stadium in northeastern Buenos Aires will be the safest place in town.

Police will move into position eight hours before the kickoff and unauthorized traffic will be barred from the area surrounding the stadium. The two teams, which arrived Wednesday from their out-of-town training camps, have been given especially heavy guards.

The match will be preceded by a colorful opening ceremony, including a gymnastics display and speeches by Argentine President Lieutenant-General Jorge Rafael Videla and Joaoa Havelange, Brazilian president of the International Football Federation.

The tournament, the 11th since the series began in 1930, is one of the most open ever staged and many experts fear that the defensive strait-jacket worn by most modern teams could lead to excessive physical contact and the risk of violence both on and off the field.

No European team has ever won the world cup in South America and the signs are that this tradition will not be broken.

Brazil, the only country to have won the title three times, again is among the favorites and could face its stiffest opposition from host Argentina, whose 27 million inhabitants will embark on an orgy of celebration if their team lifts the Cup for the first time.

Top European contenders are West Germany and the Netherlands, the 1974 finalists. But both have lost some of their glitter with the departure of such stars as flying Dutchman Johan Cruyff and lethal striker Gerd Muller, scorer of Germany's winning goal in their 2-1 victory over the Netherlands.

Beaten in successive matches recently by Brazil and Sweden, West Germany knows it must start with an impressive performance against the Poles if they are to emerge as serious contenders.

For 62-year-old West German manager Helmut Schoen, a third World Cup would be a fitting end to his 14 years in charge of the team. He will retire after the tournament, win or lose.

But Poland, third in the 1974 tournament, is thirsting for revenge over the team which beat them in the 1974 finals. Polish manager Jacek Gmoch says it now is Poland's turn to win.

Schoen has opted for a defensive 4-4-2 formation designed to counter the attacking power of the Poles, who will be looking for goals from Grzegorz Lato and Andrzek Szarmach, the top two scorers in the 1974 tournament.

This time Poland will have additional firepower in the shape of Wlodzimierz Lubanski, their all-time top scorer with 48 goals who missed the 1974 finals through injury.

The three other groups start first-round competition in the next two days. The top two teams in each group will qualify for the two second-round pools, each of four teams, and the winners of these two groups will meet in the final on June 25.

Combined Squad Tops Track Entry

A combined team from Norfolk House and St. Michael's University School leads the list with 74 qualifiers going into the Friday's finals in the Greater Victoria junior high school track and field championships at Centennial Stadium.

Arbutus and Oak Bay are tied for second with 59 qualifiers each and are followed by Landowne (55), Central (48), Cedar Hill (33), S.J. Willis (25), St. Margaret's-Glenlyon (23), Colquitz (22), Shoreline (15), Lambrick (15), Harbour View (13), Reynolds (11) and Esquimalt (4).

Mark Hicks of Oak Bay highlighted the qualifying section of the meet by setting a new meet pole vault mark of 3.38 metres.

The finals are scheduled to get underway at 11 a.m. and will finish around 4 p.m.

SAUTER SELECTED FOR CALGARY POST

CALGARY — Doug Sauter, who finished the 1977-78 season behind the bench of New Westminster Bruins while coach Ernie McLean was serving a 25-game suspension, has been named as coach of the Calgary Wranglers.

The Western Canada Hockey League switch was announced Wednesday.

Sauter, who coached Abbotsford Flyers of the B.C. Junior League while doubling as McLean's assistant, replaces Doug Barkley as coach of the Wranglers, who were recently sold by Gerry Brisson.

Seaver: On Track Or So-So?

By The Canadian Press

They watched the same thing, right-hander Tom Seaver, 5-4, winning his fourth consecutive game as the Reds pounded the Braves 10-4 in a National League baseball game Wednesday night on home runs by Pete Rose, George Foster and Mike Lum.

The managers didn't, however, agree on what they saw.

"He should have had a shutout," said Anderson. "We've been having our troubles catching the ball."

Cox said: "If Seaver is no more impressive than he was tonight, they (Cincinnati) may be in trouble. He was still good, but I don't think he was as good as he's been. He should win with that club. They are a great fielding club."

In other National League games, Montreal Expos whipped Chicago Cubs 9-1, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Philadelphia Phillies 2-1, St. Louis Cardinals nipped New York Mets 5-4, Houston Astros blanked San Francisco Giants 1-0 and San Diego Padres downed Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1.

In American League play, Detroit Tigers blanked Milwaukee Brewers 3-0, Toronto Blue Jays beat Boston Red Sox 6-2, Chicago White Sox whipped California Angels 17-2, Baltimore Orioles edged New York Yankees 3-2 and Kansas City Royals defeated Seattle Mariners 8-3.

Milt Wilcox, 4-2, scattered eight hits and rode Auerlio Rodriquez's two runs batted in to pick up the fifth of his big-league career and his second with Detroit. He stepped into the starting rotation April 25 and has since spun four complete-game victories.

That's not bad for any team in search of a pitcher, and it's especially good for a team that has lost its two top starters, Mark Fidrych, the ace of the staff, and Dave Rozema.

Could Wilcox be the new ace?

"I don't think this club really has an ace at the moment," manager Ralph Houk said, shrugging off the suggestion. "Our ace is in Florida, trying to get his arm in shape."

Seaver, who fanned eight and allowed nine hits in eight innings, was touched for four runs in the third when the Braves got four hits, including a two-run homer by Biff Pocoroba, and benefited from a pair of Cincinnati errors.

"I won 10 to 4," he said. "I was very pleased with the 10. Tonight everything was fine.'

Young B.C. Squash Players Proved Good Ambassadors

max low

They said he could never do it.

But he has done it — and well — and now he and the boys are back home again.

When Phil Green of the Racquet Club of Victoria announced a few months ago he planned to take a 10-member B.C. junior squash team to Britain, everyone thought he was a little mad. It had never been done before.

"An Ontario under-19 team has been taken to the U.K. twice now but it had only five players," explains a tired-looking Phil. "No one has ever taken as many as I took and at this age group."

Officials and others told Phil he'd never raise the money in time nor be able to get all the kids out of school. But it all fell into place.

The projected budget of $10,000 for the three-week tour looked formidable but the provincial government came up with a $2,250 grant from the Amateur Fitness Fund.

"Then Gudewill Bottling let the boys work there on an incentive program," says Phil. "They sorted something like 211,000 Coke bottles and ended up earning $2,100.

They also went on a jog-a-thon which made $600 and did things like run a car wash. So successful, in fact, was the fund raising that parents of the boys who went had only to contribute $50 each and supply spending money.

Probably the biggest problem Phil ran into was lining up suitable games. An official in England who had said he'd handle it, arranged only seven matches in three weeks and that allowed for a lot of spare time in between.

Phil wasn't happy about that so he scratched it and started again, arranging a new itinerary from here. They managed 15 matches in the time but the trouble was he wasn't too sure of what to expect regarding standards over there.

Consequently, he trained a strong team — Mike Montgomery, Mark Kuhn, Bob Ballinger, Richard Jackson, David Proctor, Tim Proctor, Mike Purdon and Sher Horne (all of the Racquet Club) and Mark Heaney and Eric Barclay of Vancouver — and they ended up sweeping all before them. Or almost all.

Of the 15 matches completed, the B.C. under-16 squad won 13 and lost two while the under-14 boys came home unbeaten in all 15 encounters. And that was against some of the best school and county sides in Britain.

Phil and his boys had been expecting the opposition to be much tougher.

"I didn't have any real indication as to the depth over there so I trained them like a fiend and as it turned out we were much too strong for most of the schools and counties over there," he says. "I believe it would take a national team to beat our under-14 side. For example, our under-14 No.2 kid David Proctor beat the fourth-ranked junior in Britain."

Expecting some problems, Phil lectured his boys on behavior and just what they could expect English schoolboys to be like.

"I found that in almost all cases our kids were better mannered on and off the court than their English opponents," he says. "Our boys created a very good impression over there. They didn't let me down and never forgot they were representing B.C."

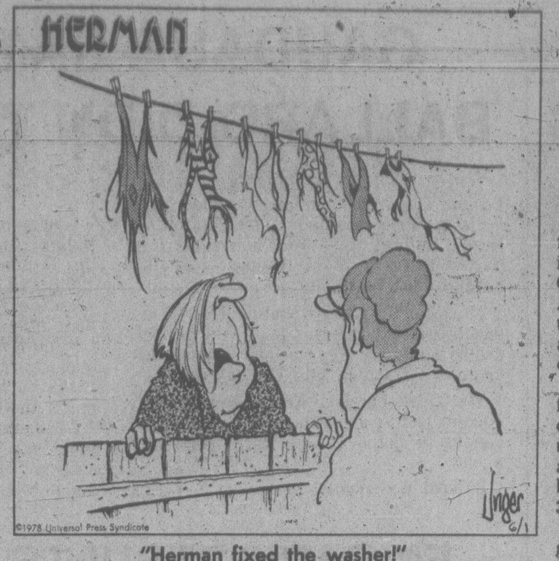
Funny enough, baggage turned out to be the only real headache on the trip.

"We always seemed to be having problems with someone's gear," Phil says with a grin.

"You know, British Rail gives you the impression they're very slick and thorough. Everything has to be done in a hurry. So we always seemed to be jumping on and off trains and then panicking about the baggage.

"At Taunton, we threw our bags out of the train and leapt out onto the platform," Phil remembers with a smile. "But when we started sorting through the heap we found we had an extra bag. The train was just leaving and one of our boys, thinking I'd be mad because they'd brought someone else's bag off the train, ran along the platform and tossed it back onto the moving train through a open window.

"I had just finished complementing the boy on his quick thinking when we noticed this poor old guy wandering along the platform asking if anyone had seen a black bag!"



"Herman fixed the washer!"

Express Back In NASL Lead

By Canadian Press

Detroit Express regained first place Wednesday night in the American Conference Central Division of the North American Soccer League, thanks in large part to newly acquired star Trevor Francis.

Playing his second game for Detroit, the British player collected two assists and set up a penalty shot that led to another goal as the Express blanked Philadelphia Fury, 3-0.

Francis had the winning goal and an assist in his Detroit debut last Sunday.

In other games, San Diego Sockers shaded New England Tea Men 2-1, Dallas Tornado beat Colorado Caribous 2-1, Seattle Sounders topped California Surf 2-0, Rochester Lancers nipped San Jose Earthquakes 2-1 and Oakland Stompers edged Fort Lauderdale Strikers, 2-1.

Butler broke a scoreless tie at 40:50, scoring with an assist from Paul Crossley.

Steve David, last season's leading scorer in the NASL when he was a member of Los Angeles Aztecs, showed signs of returning to form Wednesday, collecting a goal and two assists for the Express.

City Runners Perform Well

EUGENE, Ore. — Debbie Campbell and Brent Fougner of Victoria recorded the top Canadian performances here Wednesday in the Prefontaine track and field meet.

Campbell finished third in the women's 800 metres with her best time yet, two minutes, 4.7 seconds.

Fougner placed third in the triple jump with a leap of 50 feet, 1½ inches.

The meet also featured a near-record discus toss by Mac Wilkins, the current world record holder and Olympic champion.

Wilkin hurled the discus 231 feet, three inches to come close to the standard of 232 feet, six inches he set May 1, 1976, at San Jose, Calif.

HOW DID YOU AFFORD THIS CAR?
I'M LEASING.
BUT YOU DON'T USE YOUR CAR FOR BUSINESS.

I looked into this ideaLease by Chrysler and they came up with a plan that suits me just fine.

What about the monthly payments?

They worked out to be less than if I'd bought this beauty. And I don't have all that money tied up in a car!

You're starting to make sense.

GAUDAUR SATISFIED BALLARD DIDN'T MEAN IT

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Football League commissioner Jake Gaudaur says he is satisfied Hamilton Tiger-Cats owner Harold Ballard won't order linebacker Ray Nettles to try to main Toronto Argonauts running back Terry Metcalf.

"I called Mr. Ballard and he assured me unequivocally that it was an offhand remark and he would not even consider issuing such an order," Gaudaur said Tuesday night.

Ballard was quoted as saying Nettles's first assignment would be to break Metcalf's legs.

Gaudaur said he recognized that when Ballard, president of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, bought the Ticats the CFL would be subjected to some controversial statements, most of them uttered with tongue in cheek.

"But it's still regrettable that he'd be quoted as making a statement that a specific player would be given an assignment to maim another specific player."

Gaudaur added that if a club did in fact issue such instructions it would be considered "clearly detrimental" to the CFL and he would take strong action.

Game Called

Gorge Hotel and Greaves Movers battled to a 2-2 deadlock through nine innings before darkness forced an end to play in their Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game Wednesday at Lambrick Park.

The game will be completed June 13.

Bowman Hints He'll Stay

NEW YORK (AP) — Sounding suspiciously like a man who is not nearly as anxious to change addresses as some reports make him out to be, Montreal Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman said Wednesday he will begin contract talks with the club's management next week.

Bowman completed his seventh one-year contract when the Canadiens won their third straight Stanley Cup championship last week and there has been speculation he might be interested in moving to another team.

"I like the ownership and management in Montreal," Bowman said. "I'm happy where I'm working. They are good people to work with. It's always easier to work with people you know."

The Canadiens' coach shrugged off reports that he might be coming to New York, either as coach or general manager of the Rangers.

"I'd rather not have had all that speculation," Bowman said, indicating that he was happy with the Canadiens.

Ironically, Sonny Werblin, who has taken over operation of Madison Square Garden, which owns the Rangers, had used the same phrase in discussing his possible search for new front office personnel—a search that was said to include Bowman.

CANON LENS 40mm 1:2.8
CANON INC.

CANON IS POPPING UP ALL OVER

Introducing the Canon A35F snapshooting camera. This remarkable camera makes photography virtually goofproof, because it's automatic. It won't take pictures if the light's not right. You just focus—and shoot. Easy as pie.

But the really great thing about the A35F is the quality of the pictures it gives you. You see, unlike other point-and-shoot cameras, the A35F uses 35 mm film, which is larger than 110 cartridge film—so less detail is lost during processing and enlargement. And the A35F has another plus the others cannot claim—a Canon lens. Canon's lens technology is world famous. You're in for some really great pictures!

Oh, yes. One more thing. The Canon A35F comes with a built-in pop-up electronic flash. You just flick a switch and up it pops. To give you night-time pictures that are just as good as your daytime ones. The Canon A35F. Pop into your Canon dealer soon and check it out for yourself.

Home Clubs Win Handily

Home-course advantage may have been significant, but the odd upset also helped host teams to score convincing victories in the opening round of the 1978 Inter-Club Golf League competition for the Willie Park Driver.

Assistant Mike Parker upset tour professional Cec Ferguson two up as Victoria humbled Uplands 8-1. Robin Burrell, a last-minute substitute for Mike Gray, scored Uplands' lone point by defeating Dave Fowles one up.

Gorge Vale defeated Cedar Hill and Glen Meadows knocked off Royal Colwood, both by 6½-2½ scores, in Wednesday's other matches.

Dave Donaldson's 2 and 1 victory over professional Lyle Crawford helped Gorge to its easy victory.

Wednesday's results:

UPLANDS 1, VICTORIA 8

Cec Ferguson lost to Mike Parker, 2 up; Ted Pollard lost to Paul Harris, 2 and 1. Victoria won best ball, 2 and 1.

Dave McCall lost to Terry Karpluk, 6 and 4; Ian Barrodale lost to John Hough, 8 and 7. Victoria won best ball, 8 and 7.

CEDAR HILL 2½, GORGE VALE 6½

Lyle Crawford lost to Dave Donaldson, 2 and 1; Greg Barnes lost to Grant Milliken, 3 and 2. Gorge won best ball, 3 and 2.

Jim Cook defeated Jeff Jones, 1 up; Gary Doherty lost to Stu Holroyd, 2 and 1. Gorge won best ball, 2 and 1.

Fred Worthington lost to Robin Steffanick, 4 and 2; Rick Gibson defeated Ted Sarkissian, 4 and 2. The best ball was halved.

COLWOOD 2½, GLEN MEADOWS 6½

Bob Hogarth defeated Rick Kent, 6 and 5; Mike Mousseau lost to Al Robertson, 2 and 1. The best ball was halved.

Art Carey lost to Don Gowan, 2 and 1; Steve Hambleton lost to Mike Foreman, 5 and 4. Glen Meadows won best ball, 6 and 4.

Dave Mick defeated Hal Jacobsen, 5 and 4; Bruce Pelmore lost to Reg Effa, 7 and 5. Glen Meadows won best ball, 1 up.

Former Plan Members Lose Windfall Pension

TORONTO (CP) - Millions of dollars in windfall earnings of company pension funds resulting from inflation should be distributed equally to former plan members and to pensioners, representatives of major trust companies said Wednesday.

They told the Ontario royal commission on pensions that employees who leave their pension contributions behind when they change jobs often lose out on the extra money the funds earn because of inflation.

Many pension funds project benefits using interest-rate assumptions set years ago when inflation was virtually non-existent.

But a pension fund that experts estimated would earn four per cent a year might now be earning twice that because inflation has pushed up interest rates.

Often the windfall earnings are used only to raise benefits of current pension plan members, the Trust Companies Association of Canada told the commission.

"The terminated employees in effect have subsidized the active employees," the association said in its brief.

John Trace, a pension specialist with Canada Trust, said in an interview later "millions of dollars are involved."

The private pension industry, including the trust and insurance companies, administers about $30 billion in assets.

Trace said the extra money accumulated in pension funds because of inflation has been used to increase the benefits of current plan members as well as to reduce the pension costs of employers.

PEIGAN WATER TO FLOW

BROCKET, Alta. (CP) — The three-week-long blockade of an irrigation dam on the Oldman River appeared to be coming to an end today with the surprise announcement Wednesday night that the Peigan Indian band will allow officials to open the weir.

A band official said Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District workers would be allowed to open the weir within 24 hours "at the longest."

The band has been blockading the irrigation dam on the river, which runs through the Peigan reserve, for three weeks. LNID officials had been denied access to the dam in defiance of an Alberta Supreme Court injunction.

The Indians claim ownership of the land and are trying to negotiate with the provincial government for a levy for use of the Indian land on which the weir sits.

The blockade also was intended to draw attention to unemployment on the reserve, which he said ran at an 85- to 90-per-cent rate.

Sun Life Agents Quitting

MONTREAL (CP) — Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada has lost about 70 agents to competitors and about 30 per cent of its Quebec market since the company announced in January it was moving its head office to Toronto, according to a survey of the company's competitors and figures supplied by the Quebec government's superintendent of insurance.

Pierre Boileau, recently-appointed head of Sun Life's new "Quebec Division," would confirm only that there had been losses and declined to give any details.

Boileau said in an interview published today that the political furore over the head office move, combined with a weak economy, resulted in a loss of new business in individual policies.

But the company says it has not detected any "wave of cancellations" of policies already in force, and group insurance has not been affected.

"We are certainly losing young sales representatives but we are keeping our career people, barring a few exceptions," Boileau said.

CARAMEL NOW SUSPECTED

TORONTO (CP) — Caramel, one of the oldest and most widely-used food colorings, is being investigated by the federal government, says the head of the federal health protection branch.

In a telephone interview, Dr. A. B. Morrison said the government is concerned about the amount of caramel used in food products such as cola drinks, beer and whisky.

"The average Canadian consumes a great deal of caramel — several grams per day — compared with amounts measuring in milligrams for artificial dyes," Dr. Morrison said.

Although caramel is a natural product derived from burnt sugar, it can also be produced synthetically. Dr. Morrison said there are many different processes for making it and the government is asking the food industry for details.

Last year, the government of Denmark ordered manufacturers of soft drinks to limit the amount of caramel used.

Muscle for CLRB

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective today, the Canada Labor Relations Board (CLRB) has authority to impose a first contract if disputing parties under federal jurisdiction cannot reach agreement.

The measure is one of a number of Canada Labor Code amendments passed earlier this year by Parliament.

The code covers 560,000 persons in industries such as air transport, banking, broadcasting, railways, shipping, grain-handling and pipelines.

The labor code amendments are expected to make it easier for unions to organize employees of banks and radio stations, which are still largely non-union operations.

Provisions dealing with safety committees and the right of workers to refuse to work if work conditions pose "imminent danger" to their health will take effect Sept. 1, Labor Minister John Munro said in a news release Wednesday.

Minerals Swapped

WARSAW (AP) — Armand Hammer, chairman of Los Angeles-based Occidental Petroleum Co., has announced a $1-billion deal with Poland for a 20-year exchange of minerals. Under the agreement, Occidental will deliver one million metric tons of phosphate rock to Poland a year and Poland will ship half a million tons of molten sulphur to the United States.

CMHC CONFLICT CHARGED

OTTAWA (FP) — A four-month leave of absence granted Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation chairman William Teron is "an obvious and blatant conflict of interest," Manitoba Tory MP Dean Whiteway claimed Wednesday.

The CMHC official and former builder has taken the time off, the MP said, in order to re-arrange his blind trust as well as other personal business, "most of which hes to do with housing."

Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, whose department is responsible for CMHC, said he had told a parliaentary committee that "there is no conflict of interest in this arrangement."

However, Whiteway insisted the conflict was "obvious." He urged the minister to reconsider allowing the four-month leave.

Besides being CMHC chairman, Teron is secretary of the ministry of state for urban affairs, a position comparable to that of deputy minister.

Que. Sales Tax Talks Open

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy finance minister Thomas Shoyama met a Quebec government delegation for more than three hours Wednesday, but neither side had any comments after the meeting.

The meeting, called a working discussion by federal officials, was the first face-to-face talks between the Quebec and federal government on their sales tax dispute since the controversy began seven weeks ago.

Answering questions from Conservative Roch La Salle (Joliette) in the Commons, Chretien would only say Caron arrived in Ottawa Wednesday.

He said the House would be informed as soon as any progress is made.

Chretien told reporters: "They (Caron and his officials) just arrived an hour ago. I don't know any more than you do. I don't know what they have in their books."

Chretien refused to say whether he considered the meeting between the two deputies the formal request for talks from Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau for which the federal government has been waiting more than two weeks.

The minister has told MPs and reporters he and Prime Minister Trudeau are prepared to meet members of the Quebec government on the sales tax deadlock as soon as Parizeau requests such consultations.

Chretien rejected charges by Conservative Flora MacDonald (Kingston-and-the-Islands) that the federal government's position in the sales tax dispute is an intrusion into provincial jurisdiction.

"I am free to cut my income tax and that is what I am doing," he said.

The minister was referring to his plan to issue each Quebec taxpayer with a 1977 income tax rebate of up to $85, as a way of making sure Quebecers get the money set aside for their province in the federal budget of April 10.

Chretien announced this plan two weeks ago when it became clear Quebec was unwilling to reduce its retail sales tax on all items as the federal government had proposed.

The federal finance minister refused to finance a counterproposal by Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau under which sales taxes on footwear, furniture, clothing and textiles would be abolished and all other provincial sales taxes left intact.

Chretien offered the province $40 million to help defray the cost of this plan, but told Parizeau the province did not qualify to receive the remaining $186 million set aside for it in the budget.

The two governments have been deadlocked since late April over the sales tax question, but Chretien has continually said he is willing to meet Parizeau and hear any counterproposal he wishes to offer.

Asked if the long-awaited counterproposal could be the subject of Wednesday's meeting, Chretien shrugged and smiled.

Grisly Case Found Under Bed

GUELPH, Ont. (UPI) — Police said Wednesday they believe the grisly contents of a suitcase has revealed a secret kept for a quarter-century by a reclusive, 62-year-old woman.

Elizabeth Ryan, a carpet mill worker who lived with a boyfriend in an apartment above an electrical store for the past 25 years, died earlier this month in a Hamilton hospital.

After her death, the old suitcase was found under her bed by two cleaners, who tossed it into a garbage bin. It was recovered and opened last Friday by a curious passerby, who called police when he saw the bizarre contents.

The suitcase contained the skeletons of two infants, one partially mummified, with a length of cord around its neck, wrapped in a pillowcase and an Oct. 29, 1953 edition of the Guelph Mercury. The other skeleton was wrapped in 1950 newspapers, with a piece of cord beside it.

Investigators at the Forensic Sciences Laboratory in Toronto said the infants had been strangled, probably within hours of their birth.

"We're treating this as a double infanticide," Inspector Bill McCart of Guelph police said.

Anti-Boycott Attacked

OTTAWA (CP)-Industry Minister Jack Horner faced criticism in the Commons and from the Jewish community Wednesday over his policy statement the previous day on the government's position on the Arab boycott of Israel, but continued saying Canada's anti-boycott policy is working well.

The minister was attacked by both the Conservatives and New Democrats in the Commons because in his department's second semi-annual report on international boycotts he didn't declare compliance with Arab demands for an Israeli boycott to be illegal.

Earlier in the day, the Canada-Israel Committee, an organization representing all Canada's Jewish groups, announced it was so angry and frustrated with Horner's statement it was launching a national advocacy campaign to push the government into establishing a tougher anti-boycott policy.

Horner's report made a number of minor changes in the existing policy to discourage Canadian firms from complying with requests by Arab countries that they cut off all business dealings with Israel.

Under the 18-month old guides any firm signing with an Arab nation a contract which contains a boycott clause considered unacceptable by the Canadian government forfeits all government assistance in relation to that contract.

The policy was modified this week so that firms which lose government assistance will also be publicly named by the government every six months. This naming provision was promised by External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson in 1976.

WESTINGHOUSE AN OFFENDER

TORONTO (CP) — Westinghouse Canada Ltd. is one of the companies the federal government has not named in connection with the Arab boycott of Israel, the Globe and Mail says.

The newspaper, in an Ottawa dispatch, says "a deal by the federal government to keep secret the identity of a Canadian company that contravened Canada's policy toward the Arab boycott of Israel backfired" when the government was accused in the House of Commons of "making a charade out of its policy of opposition to boycott-related discrimination."

The story noted that Trade Minister Horner's second semi-annual report to the Commons, tabled Tuesday, "only referred to the case in general terms, although the government has been promising it would make public the names of any companies it found had complied with Arab boycott attempts."

THAT'S FRIENDLY, EH?

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The idiom eh, peculiar only to Canadian speech patterns, makes a conversation friendlier and folksy and reflects the Canadian character, a sociologist says.

Marian Johnson of the University of Western Ontario told a seminar of Canadian anthropologists and sociologists that eh expresses a willingness to accommodate others.

"People who use eh a lot don't like to be aggressive or impose themselves on others and I think that goes with the Canadian character," she said.

In adding "eh" to an order, such as "Wash the dishes, eh" the speaker gives the listener an opportunity to respond either way and reduces the chance of confrontation, Mrs. Johnson said.

She added that there are several situations, particularly official functions, in which producing an element of doubt as expressed by eh would be advisable.

"I now pronounce you man and wife . . . eh?"

From Door Knockers To Chastity Belts. . .

LONDON — British-made chastity belts are in demand all over the world.

David Renwick, 40, has been turning them out from his home near Sheffield for the last 13 years.

He has made over 100 for eager customers in Hong Kong, United States, Australia, and other countries. These are by no means just modern copies in plastic or leather of the Middle Ages relics but the real thing — hand-forged in best quality iron.

Renwick's wife Rosemary, who sometimes lends a hand in the forge, says they have made five belts this year, two of which went to the U.S.

Each belt takes at least eight hours to complete and is made strictly to the customer's specifications for about $80.

The Renwicks began the project almost as a joke.

In 1965, David set up shop to revive the long-dead art of forging iron by hand, making weather vanes, gates, door knockers and other ornamental items.

One day he told his agent, who was leaving to seek orders in the United States: "Tell them we can make anything — even chastity belts."

To everyone's suprise, the agent came back with an order, and then enquiries came flooding in — from Europe, Scandinavia and the Far East. There was even one order from Italy for 150 belts; but this was more than the tiny operation could handle.

Public Announcement

BROADCASTING SERVICES TO SMALL REMOTE COMMUNITIES

The Commission, on May 18, 1978 issued a Public Notice calling for applications to bring service to the remote communities of Northern Ontario.

The Commission will be available to answer any questions that communities may have and to assist them in clarifying some of the issues and requirements involved and in preparing broadcasting licence applications.

Inquiries in this respect should be addressed to the undersigned at CRTC, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0N2.

The Commission will also work with communities, broadcasters, cable licensees, program producers, copyright holders and any other interested groups and individuals to find a viable means of extending licensed broadcasting service to Northern Ontario in the immediate future, exploring such possibilities as:

—Upgrading and extending the present over-the-air and cable service in small communities by using such techniques as "breakouts" from and extensions to existing microwave routes;

—Delivering Canadian program services via satellite; and —Videotaped delayed rebroadcasting by low powered transmitters, by cable systems or by some combination of the two.

The Commission will also seek the advice and co-operation of federal government departments, the CBC and representatives of the Government of Ontario to assist in the extension of service.

In order to permit the responsible evolution and development of broadcast services, the commission has decided to limit the call for applications to Northern Ontario for the present time, and will call for applications for other areas in the future.

The commission intends to hold a Public Hearing to consider applications received in response to the Public Notice at the Airlane Hotel, 698 West Arthur Street, Thunder Bay, Ontario on October 17 and 18, 1978. Applications and comments should be received on or before August 1, 1978.

The complete text of this Public Notice is available at the CRTC office, Ottawa, Ontario, the Vancouver Regional office, Room 1860, Daon Building, 1050 West Pender Street, Vancouver, British Columbia and the Montreal Regional office, suite 2114, 800 Victoria Place, Montreal, Quebec.

Patsy Strikes Rich

MONTREAL — Two-time Juno award winner Patsy Gallant has signed a multi-show contract with the CTV television network which could make her the highest paid Canadian performer in the history of Canadian television.

Ed Richardson, executive producer of The Patsy Gallant Show, said in an interview from his Toronto office that the series of 24 half-hour shows is scheduled to debut in September.

He refused to be pinned down on the contract's value because reruns and possible sale of the series to the United States and elsewhere would increase its value.

Ben Kaye, Gallant's personal manager, said the initial contract may be worth more than $200,000 for the 28-year-old bilingual performer, adding that this would make her the highest-paid Canadian performer in the history of Canadian television.

Gallant, the blonde-haired native of Campbellton, N.B., won the Juno award for top Canadian female vocalist in 1976 and 1977 and has had several internationally successful recordings.

Richardson said the show will be "strictly music and dancing" and will feature "top line" Canadian and international stars.

Before the Judge

Judge Fred Green handed out a six-month jail term to a 19-year-old found guilty of assaulting a Wilkinson Road jail guard Jan. 10.

Maurice Damis Demontigny, 450 Simcoe, was convicted May 11 of assaulting a peace officer and was also convicted on May 19 of possession of a dangerous weapon, a cutlery knife, and possession of a concealed weapon, the same knife.

During the trial, court was told that corrections officer Rudolph Zichy went to the day room area of the prison on the afternoon of Jan. 10 and told Demontigny he was being moved from the east wing to the west wing. Demontigny resisted, pulled the knife from his sock and made a slashing motion towards Zichy.

Crown counsel Richard Law, in his summation, described Demntigny as a rebellious, unwilling, mouthy bully who was trying to become a "tier heavy."

Law told the court Demontigny had spent five days in isolation earlier for hitting another inmate.

Demontigny was given a six-month sentence on the assault charge, a concurrent six-month term on the possession of a dangerous weapon and a three-month, concurrent sentence on the concealed-weapon charge.

A 21-year-old who pleaded guilty to breaking and entering was given an eight-month sentence by Judge William Ostler.

Ronald Clifford Metcalfe, 2014 Fernwood, entered the change of plea through lawyer Douglas Christie.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court Metcalfe and another person were observed on the afternoon of May 16 taking stereo equipment out of a home at 323 Skinner. The witness, a neighbor, told police the pair drove away when he came over to inquire. Police discovered the interior of the house in disaray and the owner claimed that approximately $4,000 worth of stereo equipment and records were taken in the break-in.

Laughton also said that not all of the stolen property had been recovered.

Metcalfe had a criminal history including a conviction on March 11, 1975, for breaking and entering for which he received a five-month sentence and a year's probation and a conviction on March 30, 1976, in Edmonton for possession of stolen property for which he was sentenced to three months in jail.

Christie said it was an impulsive act, aided by alcohol and depression over a lack of a job.

Ostler imposed the eight-month sentence and placed Metcalfe on two years probation.

Richard Smith, jointly charged with Metcalfe, entered a plea of not guilty and a trial date of June 19 was set.

"You might have at least chosen a cheaper cut of meat," Ostler suggested to a 30-year-old who pleaded guilty to obtaining food by fraud.

Larry Abbott Jones, no fixed address, entered the plea and Laughton told the court Jones went to Scott's Restaurant, 650 Yates, Tuesday evening and ordered a porterhouse steak and glass of milk, which came to $8.25.

After he left the restaurant without paying, Laughton continued, police picked him up and escorted him back. Jones told police he lost his wallet but it was subsequently found on him with $1.63 in it.

Jones said he was receiving unemployment insurance benefits of $122 a week but had not received his first cheque yet.

Ostler suspended the passing of sentence for six months, placed Jones on probation for two months and ordered him to pay the bill within two weeks.

A 32-year-old man was fined a total of $150 after Green noted that the man was the soul supporter of two small children.

David Frederick Olmstead, 831 Ellery, was convicted of hit and run and driving while suspended Dec. 24, 1977.

Court was informed Olmstead was convicted of hit and run on April 20, 1976, and June 6, 1977, and was fined $300 and $100, respectively, and was also fined $450 for dangerous driving Oct. 12, 1977.

Green said he would not consider incarceration in this case, "only because of the particular and tragic circumstances and my concern for the welfare of your children." He fined Olmstead $100 on the hit and run and $50 on the driving while suspended.

However, Green imposed a three-year probation period, ordered Olmstead to perform 200 hours of community service work, and prohibited him from owning, possessing, or driving a motor vehicle for the period of his probation.

$301,250 In Rural Grants

Three projects have received grants totalling $301,250 under the federal-provincial agriculture and rural development subsidiary agreement, the two governments announced Wednesday.

The Milligan Creek area in the Peace River region of British Columbia received $200,000 for construction of a 77-kilometre single-phase power line, the governments said in a news release.

Another $60,000 will go towards an intensive review of all aspects of the B.C. swine industry.

The governments also said they will contribute $41,250 towards a project to examine tree fruit handling systems in the the Okanagan area.

craig claiborne

NEW YORK — Once in a rare while, we discover a formula for a dish that seems the ultimate, the definitive the ne plus ultra of its kind. Over the years, we have printed recipes for a score or more desserts called chocolate mousse. We are convinced that the finest chocolate mousse creation ever whipped up in our kitchen is the one printed here.

We first made this dish for a recent holiday meal. Remembering we'd made a sweet brioche the same morning, we served the two dishes together. It seemed a happy liaison, and thus we print recipes for both. As if you don't know, mousse means foam in French. This mousse is the foamiest.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

½ pound sweet chocolate
6 large eggs, separated
3 tablespoons water
¼ cup sweet liqueur such as Chartreuse, Amaretto, Mandarine or Grand Marnier
2 cups heavy cream
6 tablespoons sugar
Whipped cream for garnish
Grated chocolate for garnish.

1. Cut the chocolate into half-inch pieces and place the chocolate in a saucepan. Set the saucepan in hot, almost boiling, water and cover. Let melt over low heat.

2. Put the yolks in a heavy saucepan and add the water. Place the saucepan over very low heat while beating vigorously and constantly with a wire whisk. Experienced cooks may do this over direct heat such as a low flame or electric burner. It may be preferable, however, to use a metal disk such as a Flame-Tamer to control the heat. In any event, when the yolks start to thicken, add the liquieur, beating constantly. Cook until the sauce achieves the consistency of hollandaise or a sabayon, which it is. Remove from the heat.

3. Add the melted chocolate to the sauce and fold it in. Scrape the sauce into a mixing bowl.

4. Beat the cream until stiff, adding two tablespoons of the sugar toward the end of beating. Fold this into the chocolate mixture.

5. Beat the whites until soft peaks start to form. Beat in the remaining sugar and continue beating until stiff. Fold this into the mousse.

6. Spoon the mousse into a crystal bowl and chill until ready to serve. When ready to serve, garnish with whipped cream and grated chocolate.

SWEET BRIOCHE

4 cups flour
1 tablespoon salt
3 packages granular yeast
5 tablespoons lukewarm water
½ cup lukewarm milk
¼ cup sugar
4 large egg yolks
4 whole eggs
Three-Quarters pound butter, at room temperature but not too soft
1 egg yolk for glaze
2 tablespoons water.

1. Combine the flour and salt in the container of an electric mixer fitted with a dough hook, or place the flour and salt in a mixing bowl if you wish to prepare the dough by hand.

2. Add the yeast to a small warm mixing bowl and add the lukewarm water. Stir to dissolve. Let stand in a warm place about 10 minutes. Combine the milk and sugar and stir to dissolve. Add this to the yeast mixture.

3. Start beating the flour and salt with the electric mixer set on low, or start stirring vigorously with a wooden spoon. Add the yeast mixture and beat slowly. Start beating on high and add the four egg yolks and four whole eggs (there should be about one and one-quarter cups combined volume). Beat vigorously about 10 minutes and then gradually beat in the butter, bit by bit. Continue beating vigorously until the dough is thoroughly beaten. The dough may remain a bit sticky.

4. Turn the dough out onto a lightly floured board and knead until it is smooth and satiny, about 10 to 15 minutes. As you work the dough, continue to add flour to the kneading surface as necessary to prevent sticking, but take care not to add an excess or the finished product will be tough.

5. Lightly butter a clean mixing bowl and add the ball of dough. Cover with a clean towel and let stand in a warm place about one hour or until double in bulk. Punch the dough down. Turn it out once more onto a lightly floured board. Knead about one minute and return it to the clean bowl. Cover and let rise again. Punch down a second time. Cover closely with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight.

6. The next morning punch the dough down a third time.

7. Butter and eight-to-nine-cup charlotte mold.

8. Pull off about half a cup of the brioche dough and wth floured palms shape it into a round ball. Set aside.

9. Shape the remainder of the dough into a large ball and place it in the prepared mold. Make an indentation in the centre of the dough. Beat the egg yolk for the glaze with the water and brush this mixture all over the broiche in the mold, covering all the exposed surface. Place the small ball of dough in the indentation and brush this all over with egg wash. Cover with clean cloth and let stand about two hours until double in bulk.

10. Peheat the oven to 400 degrees.

11. Bake 25 minutes and reduce the over heat to 375 degrees. Bake 15 minutes longer.

12. Unmold immediately.

'No-Names' Are Low Quality

MONTREAL (CP) — "No-name" grocery products may be low-priced, but for the most part are low in quality, says a study by the Montreal Consumers Co-operative.

The co-operative studied 77 products — national brands, private labels and no-name products — and said the results showed consumers weren't really better off buying the generic products.

Savings are generally in proportion to the decline in quality, Jean-Charles Goude, a spokesman for the co-operative, said.

Production Of Lentils To Quadruple

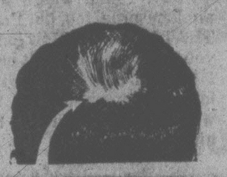
WINNIPEG (CP) — Production of lentils in Canada is expected to more than quadruple this year, says the Canadian Grains Council.

The council said an estimated 1,336 hectares of lentils were grown last year. Most of the production was in Saskatchewan under a three-year research project conducted with the assistance of public agencies and private firms.

The project was begun last year after the council discovered good market potential for lentils, but limited knowledge of production methods by farmers.



LET BIOSCAL®
HELP KEEP YOUR HAIR!

Finnish scientists have developed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

Among volunteers who applied the formula to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The product, called Bioscal, contains a synthetic detergent which clears away dead hair and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which has resulted in the growth of new hair. If not available (at your hairdresser or stylist, obtain yours at

The Wagonmaster.

All-new Ford Fairmont: Most room for the money of any wagon in its class.

Again this year, your Ford Dealer has the widest range of wagon sizes available anywhere. His newest—Ford Fairmont, with more cargo room than any wagon in its class plus comfortable seating for five 6-footers. If you want a wagon that combines good looks, roominess and fuel economy at an attractive price, Fairmont's the one!

Fairmont with Squire option

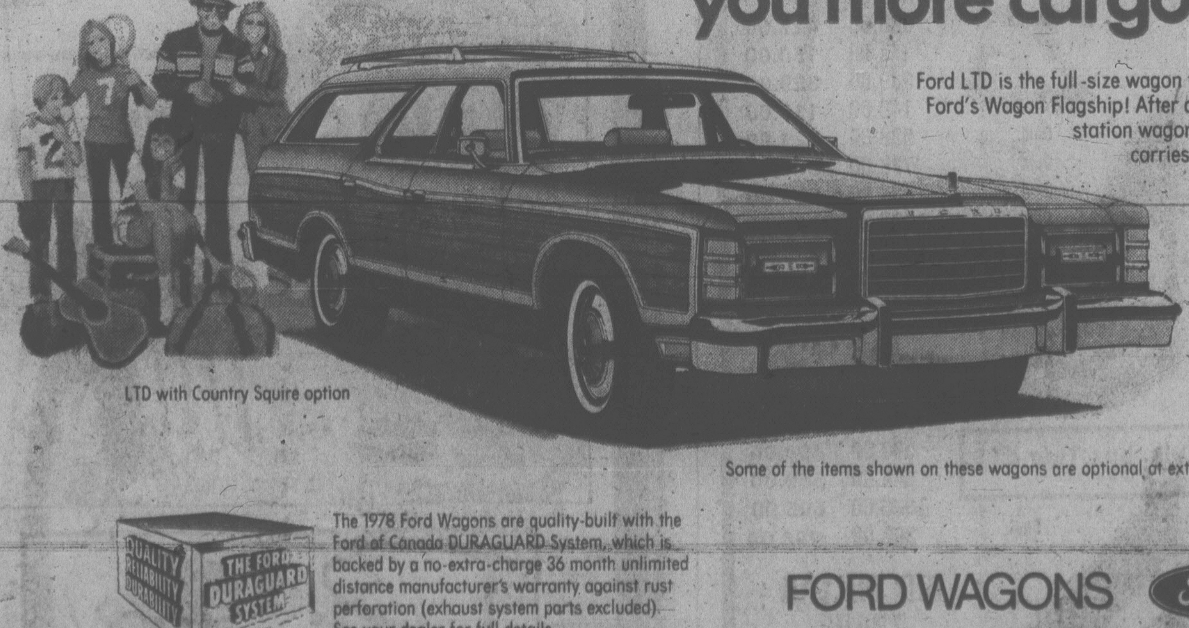
Ford Pinto: Little cash, lots of carry.

The small but roomy Ford Pinto Wagon has been a popular seller ever since its introduction—and for good reason. It has more room to hold things than most other wagons in its class, including some selling for hundreds of dollars more. If you want plenty of room in a compact size, Pinto Wagon is for you!

Pinto with Squire option

Ford LTD: No other wagon gives you more cargo space.

Ford LTD is the full-size wagon for your full-size needs... Ford's Wagon Flagship! After all, isn't cargo space what station wagons are all about? Ford LTD carries more cargo, and with the optional trailer towing package it's rated to haul a half-ton more than its nearest competitor. And all LTD's come with Ford's convenient three-way tailgate too.



LTD with Country Squire option

The 1978 Ford Wagons are quality-built with the Ford of Canada DURAGUARD System, which is backed by a no-extra-charge 36 month unlimited distance manufacturer's warranty against rust perforation (exhaust system parts excluded). See your dealer for full details.

Some Practical Pointers Towards Blueprint for More Active Life

By Dr. JEAN MAYER and Dr. JOHANNA DWYER

It's that time of year when thoughts of summer activities are sprouting like spring flowers. For some, it may be the first real exertion since they began "hibernating" late last fall. No matter what the season, however, human beings are meant to be physically active, and we look, feel and function better when we get plenty of exercise.

At one time, work provided much of this exercise. Our farmer ancestors, for example, had no problem getting enough physical activity. But most of us today spend eight to 12 sedentary hours, five days a week, behind a desk or the wheel of a car. Still, it's possible to add exercise to the modern lifestyle.

Food for Thought

Here's our blueprint for living a more active life — not just during the summer, but all year round:

First, start with a physical checkup by your doctor. This is particularly important if you're over 40 and lead a sedentary life, or if you are 20 or more pounds overweight. Also, persons with bone or joint problems, a history of heart disease, elevated blood cholesterol, high blood pressure or diabetes should consult a physician for individualized exercise programs.

To determine how much exercise you can safely tolerate, many doctors now give an exercise stress test, in which you walk on a slightly elevated treadmill at a steady pace while your heart action is monitored via an electrocardiogram. Using this test, your doctor can spot any possible cardiac risks involved in exercise and can give you an "exercise prescription," if need be.

Next, you need to select activities that fit your "prescription" as well as your personal preferences andlifestyle. There is a common misconception that things like weightlifting, push-ups or touching your toes 20 times a day do the trick. These sorts of activities, like isometric exercises, are useful in strengthening isolated groups of small muscles and improving muscle tone and function. But they do nothing for the heart, except possibly hurt it if done to an extreme. Nor do isometric exercises do much for weight control, since you do not work up a sweat and you burn up comparatively few calories.

The exercises of choice are aerobic (oxygen-requiring) types of activity, which involve some degree of endurance and activate many muscles. Aerobic exercises include vigorous walking, jogging, cross-country skiing, swimming, jumping rope (yes!), tennis, bicycling and even folk dancing — all of which work to strengthen the heart and burn a good deal of energy. When you think of leading a more active life, these are the types of exercise you should seek out.

Here are some other practical pointers to keep in mind when choosing the right exercises for you:

—THE LIFETIME TEST. Choose activities you can continue through most of your life. Walking is an exercise almost everyone can enjoy. Swimming, jogging, bicycling or hiking are other especially good lifetime activities, as opposed to basketball or soccer, which need others to play and are considered young people's sports.

—THE SOLO TEST. If you need a lot of paraphernalia or company to participate in a sport or activity, chances are you will do it less often. Seek activities you can fit in whenever and wherever you may have the opportunity.

—THE COMPATIBILITY TEST. Obviously, some types of exercise fit better into some lifestyles than others. It may be easy to walk to work, for example, but difficult or unsafe to travel by bicycle.

—THE ACCESSIBILITY TEST. There's no sense deciding to swim every day if there's no pool that's open during the hours you're available. So consider what facilities are around, and how convenient they are.

One last bit of advice: Start slowly! You cannot remedy months, or even years, of inactivity overnight.

1928 Jubilee Grads Hold 50th Reunion

About two-thirds of the 1928 graduation class of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's school of nursing are gathering here this week for a 50th anniversary reunion.

Mrs. Tom Little, 2623 Richmond, says about 25 of the 39 graduates in her class will be in Victoria for the get-together. Among them will be Miss Thema Attewell, who will be here from Britain where she ran a nursing home for about 45 years.

Others will come from California, Seattle, Vancouver and up-Island.

Registration will take place Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Iris Stokes, 2097 Windsor. There will be a coffee party in the home of Dick Cavaye, 2098 Windsor, Friday morning. Cavaye is the son of Mrs. Mayford Cavaye, one of the 1928 graduates.

On Friday afternoon there will be a tour of the hospital to see the changes made since their graduation, ending with tea in the Harmony Room.

The tour will include visiting the part of the children's ward which was called the Strathcona ward when the 1928 class were probationers and used as their dormitory.

On Saturday there will be a dinner in the home of Mrs. Audrey Pollard at 1682 Hampshire.

The reunion will end Sunday morning with a church service in the hospital's chapel, which was built in 1909.

Also invited to the reunion are Edith Bailey, who was night supervisor for many years; Mrs. Les Eastman, the former Sally Getty, who was the dietician; Joy Phillips, who started with the class but was unable to complete her studies, and Robert (Pat) Patrick, who was an orderly.

Those of the 1928 class who live close to Victoria have been attending reunions every five years since their graduation.

Dancers Promoted

TORONTO (CP) — The National Ballet of Canada has announced the promotion of Luc Amyot and Clinton Rothwell to principal category. Promoted from second soloist to first soloist are Cynthia Lucas, Karen Tessmer and Gizella Witkowsky. Sergiu Stefanschi, principal, will leave the company this fall to teach at the National Ballet School.

Did you know that the word salad is derived from the Latin word for salt, 'sal', and that originally, salads were seasoned only with edible herbs and salt?

This is some of the information gleaned from the 24-page booklet Salads, which also offers dozens of recipes for all kinds of vegetables, fruit, jellied and main course salads as well as many tasty dressings and pretty garnishes.

In addition, the booklet tells you how to store salad ingredients. For instance, iceberg lettuce should be trimmed, washed and drained and refrigerated in a tightly closed plastic bag or container.

Instructions on how to store other salad ingredients such as asparagus, cauliflower and mushrooms are also included.

To obtain a copy of the 24-page booklet Salads send your request to: Information Division, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0C7. Please indicate your postal code and allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: What do you make of a man who buries his wife on a Thursday and asks you for a date for the following Wednesday? I accepted, thinking he needed someone to console him, but I got the surprise of my life. He acted like a sailor on shore leave after six months on a ship.

His wife and I were very good friends and I realize that she has been sick for a year, but I can't see any excuse for the rush this man was in to make up for lost time. When he asked me out for the next night, I told him I didn't think we should be seen in public together because people might talk. So he's been parking himself over here every night telling me how lonesome he is, and how much he needs "female companionship."

Abby, I'm a widow and I am lonesome, too, but I'm not THAT lonesome. How long do you think I should wait before I let him court me? I know lots of women in this town who would be glad to have him. — EUNICE

DEAR EUNICE: The man shows a shocking lack of respect for the memory of his wife. Put him on ice for about a year. He could use some cooling off.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am a very poor hostess — at least I think I am. It's not that I can't relax around people, because when I'm a guest, I'm perfectly relaxed and have a wonderful time. But when guests are in my home, I am nervous and tense and I am just not myself.

I am not the fussy kind of hostess who runs around emptying ashtrays all the time, but if there's a lull in the conversation I feel embarrassed and worry that I'm not giving my guests a good time.

When I invite people over, they say, "Why don't YOU come HERE instead? — which leads me to believe that they have noticed my nervousness, too, and would rather spare me the agony. What's wrong with me? And is there a solution? — POOR HOSTESS

DEAR POOR: Guests can't relax unless the hostess is relaxed. The secret of being a good hostess lies in getting compatible people together in a comfortable atmosphere. No host or hostess can give guests a good time. The guests must make it themselves.

DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with one of the smartest women in town who's so convinced she can't pass the driver's test that she's been driving without a licence for six years?

I try to tell her that all she has to do is read the driver's manual, then go take a test and maybe drive around the block a few times with the examining officer. But she won't believe me.

What can I do? She's a good driver, but I can't persuade her to get a licence. A husband can't turn his wife in to the police, but I am tempted. — NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: The "smartest woman in town" could be the sorriest, and her husband could be the "brokest" should she become involved in an accident. So, if you can't talk some sense into her head, ask your insurance agent (or lawyer) to try.

CONFIDENTIAL TO NEW MOTHER: I could write a book on advice to the new mother, but if you want happy, well-adjusted, secure children, never say:

1. "If you do that once more I'm going to punish you."
2. "Why can't you be good — like your sister?"
3. "When daddy comes home you're going to get a spanking!"
4. "If someone calls, say I'm not home."
5. "Go away and don't bother me. I'm busy now."

MARMALADE SAUCE TOPS THIS PUDDING

American Rice Pudding
5½ cups milk
1 cup uncooked rice
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 jar (12 ounces) orange marmalade
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ cup cream sherry
½ cup chopped nut meats

In a 3-quart saucepan combine milk, rice, salt, and butter. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover, and simmer 35 to 40 minutes, or until thickened, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; fold in ½ cup marmalade and vanilla. Heat the remaining marmalade with sherry. Fold in the nut meats. Serve pudding warm or cold topped with marmalade sauce. Makes 10 servings (½ cup each).

Bio-dex

Your computerized biorhythm

By Ken J. Michaels

© BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

|---|---|
| 0-5 Negative Cycle- | You need to talk to someone about a specific problem. Seek a listener you can trust. |
| 6-10 Neutral Cycle- | You may feel out of sorts. Keep mum and work hard to forget your troubles. |
| 11-15 Positive Cycle- | Start a novel. Design the dress: You're unusually creative and should get into action. |

Oh those wonderful high Bio-dex days when you can't keep up with your own fount of good ideas? One after another they leap through your mind, but how can you implement them? Some may be too zany, others could take a lifetime to perpetrate. I suggest you try to keep track of your ideas, for they are not only rare and beautiful, but one day could change your life.

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I'm expecting my first baby soon. I've definitely decided to breast-feed her (I'm hoping for a girl). Is there a special diet for nursing mothers that will not put too much weight on me? — Mrs. T.G.

Dear Mrs. G.:

During the nursing period the diet should be fairly simple and well-balanced. A few glasses of milk are advantageous because of their calcium content. Generally, there is an extra intake of about 500 to 700 calories. It is interesting that despite these additional calories there is usually relatively little weight gain during the lactation period. The body acquires some layers of fat during pregnancy. This fat is used up to make breast milk. The result is that women may reach their pre-pregnancy weight even faster if the baby is nursed.

It is suggested that spicy food, garlic and onions be eaten in moderation in order to avoid the baby's discomfort. Sometimes cola drinks and chocolate may cause intestinal upsets in the infant. If they do, they should be avoided. Alcoholic drinks should be taken in moderation, even though the infant receives an insignificant amount of it during breast-feeding.

Usually, the infant does not need any supplementary vitamins, minerals or iron. Drugs of any kind should be taken only with the very specific permission of the doctor. Anxiety-reducing drugs and tranquilizers can easily be passed on to the infant.

The psychological advantages of breast-feeding your infant, both for her and for you, are great,

Can a doctor really tell if a throat infection is caused by a virus simply by making a culture of the throat? I was told that I had a virus infection by a doctor. It later turned out that I had a germ that caused it. — Miss G.T.

Dear Miss T.:

Smears and cultures taken from the throat and the nose are incubated, hoping that some bacteria or fungus will be found to account for a specific infection. The bacteria that are found are then tested against a variety of antibiotics. In this way, the ideal antibiotic can be chosen to fight the specific germ.

It is impossible to isolate a virus by this technique. Highly complex laboratory procedures are the only way to determine if a virus is the offender in producing the infection.

Beware High Protein

QUESTION: Do athletes require more protein in their diet than the ordinary person?

ANSWER: Athletes have a unique nutritional requirement in that they have a high requirement for energy. Energy is provided more efficiently by carbohydrates, a lesser extent by fat and least efficiently by protein. When protein is metabolized in the body to provide energy, it requires water for metabolization. Therefore, a high protein diet can be detrimental to an athlete's performance, for it can aggravate the dehydration which is often a significant problem for the athlete.

QUESTION: Is it true that you build strong, rich blood with highly colored foods such as beets, tomato juice and grape juice?

ANSWER: No, the most important constituents of blood are protein and iron. The foods that you mentioned are poor sources of these nutrients. The only thing they have in common with blood is their distinctive color. Good sources of protein are meat, fish, poultry, legumes, milk and milk products.

QUESTION: Fresh vegetables are so expensive right now. Could I use frozen vegetables and still serve my family nutritious meals?

ANSWER: Fresh vegetables will be expensive until our own local produce is on the market. Carrots, cabbage and turnip, which are presently available, do offer valuable nutrients but for added variety the fresh broccoli, cauliflower, etc. is too expensive for the average homemaker. Frozen vegetables are a good buy in that they are less expensive and there is no waste in their preparation. Nutritionally, they are very similar, in some cases the frozen product may even have slightly higher nutritive values than the fresh. value.

Key Byelection Win Sparks Labor Hopes

HAMILTON, Scotland (Reuter) — Britain's ruling Labor Party early today scored a morale-boosting victory in a key byelection, fuelling speculation that Prime Minister James Callaghan might call a general election in October.

Trade Union official George Robertson dealt a stunning setback to the hopes of the Scottish nationalist movement by gaining 18,880 votes compared with 12,388 for the Scottish National Party's (SNP) Margo Macdonald.

The result was particularly bad for the SNP as 34-year-old Mrs. Macdonald is considered one of the most dynamic politicians in Scotland.

Robertson increased the Labor vote, an unusual achievement as candidates of the ruling party traditionally fare badly in byelections.

Labor ministers and officials heralded the result as magnificent.

"People are returning to Labor," said Energy Minister Anthony Wedgewood-Benn.

The Hamilton result was also seen as backing for the party's Scottish policy. While the SNP campaigns for Scottish independence, Labor is proposing that Scotland be offered limited home rule but remain within the United Kingdom.

Conservative party candidate Lord Alexander Scrymgeour was third in the byelection, while Liberal Fred McDermid finished last.

CUBANS RAKE CHINA

HAVANA (Reuter) — Cuba today delivered a sharp attack on China whose new leaders were accused of being faithful allies of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the "most rancid world bourgeoisie."

In an editorial, the official government daily Granma referred to intensified contacts between Chinese military men and NATO's "war merchants."

"This infamous and base policy of Chinese leaders perfectly relates to the strategic interests of American imperialists," it said.

In an editorial Wednesday, Granma bitterly assailed the recent visit to China by President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, describing it as "a dirty marriage between Peking and Washington."

Starvation New Threat In Zaire Massacre Town

LUBUMBASHI, Zaire (UPI) — An estimated 100,000 black residents of the massacre town of Kolwezi risk starvation unless food supplies are rushed there quickly, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said little food has reached the town and surrounding areas for many days. They said townspeople mob the scarce Red Cross aircraft or trucks that do carry in supplies, the sources said.

The Zaire newspaper Elima, meanwhile, said President Mobutu Sese Seko has commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence passed on the local army commander for cowardice during the rebel attack.

Hundreds of rebels have been reported lurking in the bush surrounding Kolwezi following a French and Belgian paratroop operation to rescue Europeans May 19-20.

Fear for their lives is making many white residents leave the rebel-infested Shaba province in apprehension of what may happen when the French and Belgian paratroopers are withdrawn.

In Brussels, the Belgian development cooperation ministry said 67 whites had been buried during a sanitary cleanup of Kolwezi, of whom 42 were identified.

But the ministry also issued the names of about 240 other whites believed to have been living in Kolwezi at the time of the rebel attack who have not since been heard from. Officials believe many of them were killed, bringing the unofficial death toll of whites to about 200 and the total death toll from the nine-day rebel occupation and its aftermath to more than 1,000.

The Zairean news agency AZAP Wednesday had announced the death sentence against former Kolwezi commander Brig. Gen. Shikeva, who was charged with "cowardice" in a court martial. The agency said Shikeva pleaded not guilty and had appealed to Mobutu.

Baby With Two Heads

HAIFA, Israel (UPI) — Surgeons at the Rambam hospital removed an extra head from the abdomen of a newborn baby boy Wednesday, the Israeli news agency Itim reported.

The infant was in good condition after the operation, which lasted several hours, the report said.

Itim quoted hospital sources as saying the fully developed extra head was attached to the baby's abdomen. It was connected to the baby's blood system, but not to its lungs.

Doctors said the extra head was that of an undeveloped twin, Itim said.

Golda Hits Begin Plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — Former premier Golda Meir attacked Menachem Begin's government Wednesday, calling his peace plan "a concrete, terrible danger" for Israel.

Mrs. Meir, in a rare television interview, also accused the premier of luring Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Jerusalem last November by agreeing to concessions she would never stand for.

Asked about Begin's plan for granting autonomy to the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza, Mrs. Meir said: "I see this is a concrete, terrible danger to Israel."

The Democratic Movement for Change, Begin's largest partner in his governing coalition, threatened Wednesday to leave the coalition if the peace talks are endangered by Begin's stand. The absence of the movement's 15 seats still would leave Begin with a majority of 63 seats in the 120-member Knesset, or parliament.

Mrs. Meir, 80, charged Begin mishandled the peace talks launched by Sadat's visit.

She mentioned reports that Begin offered to return all the occupied Sinai desert to Egypt before the Sadat visit. The reports say the offer, later embodied in Begin's peace plan, was a decisive factor in Sadat's decision to make his visit.

"If this is true," she said, "then the government accepted pre-conditions for him to come," and made concessions before negotiations.

"Sadat was always ready for direct talks, but on his conditions," she said. "The question is whether we were ready to accept pre-conditions before negotiations. I say no."

Climber Killed In Rainier Slide

PARADISE, Wash. (AP) — A 24-year-old Sitka, Alaska, man died in an avalanche while climbing on Mount Rainier, a park spokesman said Wednesday night.

It was the second avalanche to trap climbers on the mountain in two days.

Spokesman Larry Henderson said Todd Davis was buried for more than half an hour Wednesday after his climbing party was engulfed by a slab avalanche at the 12,500 foot level of the 14,410-foot mountain. The snow slide carried the climbers 2,000 feet down the mountain.

David Jones of Ward Cove, Alaska, and David Betcker of Everett, Wash., were climbing with Davis.

Jones suffered a sprained ankle, Henderson said, but walked out to Paradise to report the accident. Betcker suffered minor injuries and also walked out.

The National Park Service warned against any further climbing until avalanche activity subsides.

Recent high winds have deposited snow in gullies and on eastern aspects of the mountain, Henderson said, while recent sunshine has produced a lubricated snow layer to increase the instability of the snow pack.

Security Not Defined: Blais

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais said today the government has no definition for "national security," the ubiquitous phrase used by police and government to justify the concealment of certain activities.

"There is no definition of the term national security," Blais told the Commons justice committee as it opened study of a bill that would give police power to intercept and read private mail.

The phrase, Blais said, refers to the protection of sovereignty. And sovereignty was "a vast concept."

Blais also acknowledged the government may be acting inconsistently by pressing forward with legislation to make Mountie mail openings legal while the issue is being studied by a royal commission.

But, he said, mail-opening authority now is needed to deal with a growing drug traffic problem.

William Jarvis (PC—Perth-Wilmot) said he found Blais' position on the legislation "very hard to accept." The government had set up a royal commission under Mr. Justice David C. McDonald to look into Mountie misdeeds and illegal practices. Then it introduced the mail-opening bill before giving the commission a chance to say whether it was needed.

Further, Jarvis argued, Blais and other members of the Trudeau government refused to discuss in the Commons subjects under study by the McDonald commission. Yet it now was asking the House to pass legislation based on matters the commission was studying.

Blais agreed that there "could be an appearance of inconsistency" in the government's action. But he argued that the mail-opening bill would grant police open-and-read powers for only a limited time — the law would expire one year after McDonald reports — and that it is needed to cope with illegal drugs sold through the mail.

Any Mountie Can Get Tax Data

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP Sgt. Tony Kosij of Winnipeg, head of a seven-man unit with access to confidential income tax information, testified Wednesday he would pass along such data to almost any Mountie seeking it in a criminal case.

Kosij and his detail are among 75 Mounties designated as "authorized persons" under the Income Tax Act and thus able to get such information.

Under a 1972 agreement with the national revenue department, they are supposed to use it to attack organized criminals through income tax prosecutions.

However, Kosij said tax data was given to criminal investigators in the drug, customs and excise and other RCMP sections on the theory that a tax benefit would result.

"Do you assume everybody is engaged in criminal activity until the opposite is proved?" John Sopinka of Toronto, counsel to a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing, asked Kosij.

The question came after Kosij admitted giving another RCMP unit in Winnipeg data from tax records on an individual's employment, income, taxes paid and wife's name. There was no indication in the file of why the information was sought.

Kosij said he wasn't prepared to assume that the person wasn't involved in crime.

"Our members hardly investigate people who aren't involved in criminal activity," he said.

"Isn't that a dangerous concept?" Sopinka asked.

After an embarrassed silence, Kosij replied: "It seems to me that when police are investigating, there is some basis to their suspicions."

Sopinka asked Kosij about another case in which his unit had given the RCMP customs and excise section in Winnipeg tax data, including the names of employees of an individual, his accountants, his shareholders, the number of shares he held and the rental properties he owned.

Driver Blamed In Dock Plunge

A coroner's jury in Sooke Wednesday found the driver of a car that plunged off the Port Renfrew Wharf Feb. 7 killing himself and a passenger was negligent.

The jury, however, added the condition of the pier was a contributing factor and recommended a flashing red light and warning sign be erected near the approach to the wharf.

The jury was inquiring into the deaths of Alexander Topper, 38, and Kim Annette Joyce, 17, both of the Victoria area.

Two other passengers, Richard James Kurahara, 19, and William Alfred Friers, 35, also of Victoria, got out of the car before it sank in 25 feet of water and swam to safety.

Friers told coroner Roy Girling and the jury that Topper, the driver of the car, had thought he was on the Shawnigan Lake Road at the time of the accident.

Friers said he and the other three had left the Port Renfrew Hotel about 9 p.m. for Shawnigan Lake and Topper mistook the 515-foot wharf for a bridge.

Topper didn't realize his mistake until the last moment and cried out "Hold on . . . Hold on" and swung the car sharply to the right, Friers said.

Sooke RCMP Cpl. Blake Tidsbury said the brakes of the car were never applied. He noted it was a dark, rainy and windy night and that the planks on the pier were extremely slippery.

Divers found the bodies of Topper and Miss Joyce inside the car. A pathologist said both had died from drowning.

'Relative' Rule Rapped

Saanich council will ask the provincial government to amend a section of the Municipal Act which allows acreage to be subdivided to provide a home for the owner's relative.

Nicknamed the relative clause, section 713 (a) of the act has been subject to abuse in Saanich as a means of bypassing subdivision regulations, and the planning department has expressed concern about the resulting development which has occurred in rural areas outside the urban containment boundary.

The Saanich Greenbelt Association has also written to Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis seeking changes to the legislation.

The group suggests that a relative sign an affidavit that he will live on the subdivided property for a minimum 10-year period, and that no such parcel be less than two acres.

Under the present system, lots as small as half an acre have been created, and in several cases the home of the so-called relative is now occupied by persons who have no relationship whatever to the person who owned the original property prior to subdivision.

WELFARE GYP NETS JAIL

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Jenny Christine Davies, 30, of Prince Rupert has been sentenced to three months in jail for welfare fraud after filing welfare applications containing false information.

Court was told Davies worked for a two-month period while collecting welfare in Prince Rupert from March, 1976, to May, 1977.

She then moved to Prince George in May, 1977, where she applied for and received welfare after claiming she had never received assistance before.

Neil Lauder, counsel for Davies, said he would appeal the sentence. He told the court the woman was the victim of an alcoholic husband and that while the amount collected amounted to $4,300, she would have been entitled to all but $1,000.

Top Spot for Cunliffe

Victoria consulting engineer Joseph Cunliffe is the new president of the Association of Consulting Engineers of Canada which is holding its annual meeting in Toronto this week.

Cunliffe, president of Willis, Cunliffe, Tait and Co. Ltd., said in an interview he wants to expand the industry by obtaining more government business and to create a public awareness of consulting engineers.

Consulting engineers have been getting a share of work contracted to the private sector recently by the federal government, said Cunliffe.

He said he would like to see the association's provincial organizations work for more jobs at the provincial and municipal level.

It costs the Canadian taxpayer expensive long-term commitment of funds for governments to undertake the work themselves, Cunliffe said.

There are more than 900 firms and about 30,000 personnel across Canada offering engineering services in 70 large, specialized fields, according to Cunliffe.

But engineering is still imported, done by in-house staffs, or publiely-funded universities and government subsidized research institutes.

Region Gov't Death Urged

The Capital Regional District and three Lower Mainland regional districts should be eliminated, says the Urban Development Association, a group representing real estate companies and developers.

The brief, presented to the provincial government's regional district review committee, says the regional boards should be replaced by provincial government committees and utility corporations.

The UDC has about 300 member companies in Canada, 50 of them in the Pacific region.

"UDC believes that the public interest in the Lower Mainland and in Greater Victoria would be best served by the elimination of the regional level of government in those centres," the brief states.

"We feel that in this way, provincial policies and tax dollars can be best translated into action, minimizing the animosities and inefficiencies which have characterized multi-level government in the past."

The brief suggests the provincial government develop a "growth strategy and a transportation system for each of the metropolitan centres" in close consultation with the municipalities.

Regional responsibilities, says the brief, should be taken over by provincial representatives made up of selected MLAs from each of the metropolitan areas, working with the elected municipal officials.

Supermarket Probe Sought

The issue of supermarket kickbacks was thrashed out again in the legislature Wednesday, with Norm Levi (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) asking the government for an investigation.

He said Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair's refusal to back the call for an investigation is assinine.

Levi, the NDP opposition's consumer critic, said somebody has to do something to put the finger on supermarkets if they are involved in kickback schemes.

There have been charges in the legislature that supermarkets are forcing producers to pay kickbacks of up to 15 per cent of costs to have their products stocked.

Mair reiterated his previous position that his ministry doesn't have the authority to look into the matter.

He said that even if he supported the call for the legislature's standing committee on agriculture to examine the subject in a public hearing, such a hearing would have trouble conducting business.

Mair said that while the committee has the power to subpoena witnesses, it doesn't have the power to search and seize records — something the federal combines investigation branch does.

A committee investigation into the matter has found the allegations of large-scale kickbacks to be unfounded, a source said recently.

Save Children Leader Changes

The B.C. Save the Children Fund has a new Victoria representative, Heather Siska, who succeeds Gertrude McGill.

Mrs. McGill is stepping down after 30 years of service. She will continue as the organization's honorary vice-president for B.C.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In the dog-eat-dog world of tournament bridge, it is refreshing to unearth a situation where defeat did not sour the vanquished. Such was the case in today's deal, which ws played in the 1975 Life Masters Pairs Championship event. Sitting East and West were two of the U.S.'s top-ranking players. Grant Baze and Peter Pender, both of San Francisco.

East-West vulnerable.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

On Pender's opening lead of the spade king, Baze played the six. On the next lead of the ace, Baze followed with the deuce. When the queen of spades followed to trick three, Baze discarded the unusually high nine of hearts.

To trick four Pender made a fine play: he underled his ace of hearts! When the six-spot was played from dummy, Baze inserted his jack. Now came another heart to Pender's ace. Pender's next lead was a fourth spade, Baze ruffing with the ten and declarer overruffing with the queen. Pender's jack of trumps had just been promoted into a winner. The result was that North-South incurred a set of four tricks, for a loss of 700 points.

It should be noted that if Pender had led a fourth spade at trick four (instead of a heart), declarer would have gone down only three tricks, since on the fourth spade lead she would have discarded one of dummy's two hearts; and she would then have lost only one heart trick.

On the next deal, against the same pair, Pender and Baze again doubled South, this time in a vulnerable four-spade contract, and defeated that contract 800 points.

The lady sitting South, far from turning sullen and angry as many players do when two disasters in a row strike, turned to Pender at the end of the second deal and said: "I love your city of San Francisco. It's one of the loveliest places in the world."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, June 2
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on determining values, pushing aside inflated prices, getting rid of superfluous material, streamlining techniques. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Cash flow, recently impeded, will resume, come to life and make you feel more vital.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle is such that you get results. One who is older, more experienced lends support. Accent on breaking with restrictions, determining your own policy — and fate. Be a self-starter, take initiative. Capricorn, Cancer could figure prominently. The number 8 plays key role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finish project — get media attention. Improve distribution, display and image. Gain indicated through correspondence, the opening of communication lines. Aries, Libra figure prominently — so does the number 9. You receive credit for past effort.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Creativity is emphasized. Don't follow crowd — imprint your own style, personality. Member of opposite sex is drawn to you and makes no secret of it. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. A marvelous, new contact is on horizon — leads to challenge and ultimate fulfillment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on business, dealings with those in authority, making room for yourself at top, teaching and learning, following through on hunch. Your intuition works overtime. One who aided in past makes reappearance. Cancer, Capricorn, Aquarius individuals figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be ready for movement, change, perception — analyze, make deductions, cast aside the superficial. Get to bottom of mystery. Don't be satisfied to know merely that something occured — find out why it happened. Gemini, Sagittarius and another Virgo figure in scenario.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be persistent, thorough — reject schemes, shortcuts, chain letters, con games of all colors, shades. Hold tight to principles, protect valuables. Partner or mate would like an "accounting" — and that is reasonable. Aquarius, Scorpio, Leo figure in scenario.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be careful, analytical; take nothing for granted. Accent on public relations, contracts marriage. Surprises are featured, emanating from family, home base. Do more listening than asserting; someone is trying to tell you something.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Home, basic issues, security, ability to harmonize elements that seem incompatible — these dominate. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently — so does the number 6. Give plenty of attention to employment, diet, getting together with those who share goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appears a setback is due to boomerang — in your favor. Emphasis on defining terms, learning truth, being wined and dined, creative endeavors, impulse, emotional responses, intensified relationship. Whew!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get dollars-and-cents figures. Leave speculation for another time. Adhere to facts; be "hard-nosed." Means stick to main course, get appraisal, accounting. Base actions on profit, loss potential. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish project, extend invitations to those who can see beyond their noses. Refuse to be painted into corner by those of little vision — or faith. Aries, Libra figure in scenario. Relatives, short journeys on agenda.

IF JUNE 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, restless, emotional and have a "delicate stomach." Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. Major residence change or domestic adjustment featured this year. September and November are highlight months. Few persons know the "real you." You often appear carefree, happy-go-lucky. If the truth be known, you are dedicated, serious, a humanitarian and you would sacrifice much for children, family, friends.

True Value of a Garden?

In an affluent society where an extravagant proportion of our income is expended on luxuries, the home vegetable garden is again being developed to supply as much as possible of the family's food requirements.

This time a national crisis is not the cause, but rather the fact that fruit and vegetables are attaining their proper status.

No longer are they the cheap product of underpaid farm hands working from dawn to dusk, but the result of a scientific approach to production, trained skills, the use of sophisticated machinery, and a large capital investment.

The young and the fit have not been drafted for military service, leaving the lame and aged to work gardens and allotments. Instead we have well-fed, yet overweight people of all ages wondering what to grow in order to reduce the expenditure on food, which is now a substantial item in the family budget.

After a year or so of experimenting and recording the results, some gardeners are not sure the savings are worth the effort when the harvested produce is converted to prevailing market prices.

The question is, can we reduce gardening to harsh economics? Can the true value of home produced vegetables be computed in dollars and cents?

We would be wrong to make gardening a prime money matter. Gardening is essentially a pleasant pursuit which improves the health of body and mind. If it reduces expenditures on medications and treatments, that reduction should be credited to the garden.

There are other points we are likely to overlook. When producing our own food we can use the thinnings which have no market value because they are not available at this stage of growth, yet they can be the basis of several meals therefore should be credited with some reasonable value.

We can grow vegetables which produce an edible root and edible greens, thus increasing their monetary value over the stripped roots offered for sale.

If we use our beetroot when no bigger than a golf ball, immature yet delicately flavored, our total weight of crop will be considerably less than it would have been had we left them to reach the size of tennis balls. What monetary value can we place on texture and flavor? We certainly should add something.

We can gather our vegetables young and tender, or use freezing varieties which give the whole crop in a few days. If we prefer to freeze, should the crop be valued at the price when harvested, or at the prevailing price when eaten in winter, a time when their imported price is high?

Should the returns in dollars still seem small it is possible that some common gardening mistakes are lowering the total output.

Maybe the first spring day raised our ambitions and we sowed too much at one time, instead of small amounts adjusted to the family's weekly needs. If some goes to the compost heap it has a value as it makes new soil for future crops.

Maybe we have a good summer garden with no thought of providing for winter crops, the most valuable crops because of the high price of imports.

We may have slavishly followed a calendar of sowing dates instead of waiting until soil and weather conditions were perfect for the crops we wanted to grow. We could have used the wrong varieties for the time we hoped to harvest, and lost a substantial amount while away on our summer vacation.

If we make full use of our vegetable plot in all seasons; make frequent small sowings to extend the harvesting period; grow short term crops interplanted with long term crops; we can increase the output of the smallest vegetable plot to a satisfactory level and make a positive reduction in the food budget.

HOW TO WRITE

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

UVic Dean Appointed

Dr. Robert Walter Payne has been appointed dean of the new faculty of human and social development at the University of Victoria, effective July 1.

Payne, 53, a Canadian citizen, is currently professor of psychology and senior medical research scientist at Temple University and the Eastern Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute in Philadelphia.

He will take over the deanship from UVic physicist and dean of graduate studies, Dr. John Dewey. Dewey has been acting dean of the new faculty since last fall when it was formed from UVic's schools of social work, nursing and child care.

Payne's appointment was approved by the Uvic board of governors after he was selected by a university search committee which advertised in publications throughout the country.

Payne, who holds an Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Alberta and a diploma in clinical psychology and a PhD from the University of London, received the Stratton Research Award of the American Psychopathological Association in 1964.

Human Clones 'Impossible'

By VICTOR COHN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Cloning, or making exact biological copies of any adult human being, may remain forever impossible, four leading biologists told a Congressional health subcommittee Wednesday.

But astonishing developments, they said, may still be expected from research on cloning.

Animal scientists could learn to clone valuable beef or dairy cattle "in a few years," said Dr. Clement L. Markert of Yale University, who is working with Colorado State University on just such a project.

Within a short time, said Dr. Beatrice Mintz of the Institute for Cancer Research in Philadelphia, she may be able to produce "at will" large numbers of mice, who — though not clones or identical one to the other — all possess almost any human genetic disease desired.

This would be a huge advance in understanding and learning to treat such diseases, since most of them cannot be produced now in animals.

Drs. Markert, Mintz, Robert Briggs of Indiana University and Robert McKinnell of the University of Minnesota agreed on these and several more points as they were asked to "comment definitively" on the state of the cloning art by Subcommittee chairman Paul Rogers, D-Fla.

Scientists — these scientists said — don't yet know how to produce either human or mammalian clones. No one has produced a shred of evidence, they said, that there exists any human clone, and the recent book, In His Image, by David Rorvik that maintains so is "fiction."

So far, they reported, the only animals that have been successfully cloned are frogs and some other amphibians, like toads and salamanders.

But frog cloning, the scientists agreed, has been accomplished only by starting with cells from a frog embryo. In thousands of attempts, no one has been able to create a clone from any more mature cell.

PAY-OUT FOR BUMPING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any passenger bumped from an airline flight in the United States may receive immediate compensation up to $400 under a new rule issued today by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The board also decided not to outlaw overbooking of flights, but warned it would consider doing so if airlines do not sharply curtail the practice.

Overbooking results in bumping — the denial of a seat to a passenger with a confirmed reservation. The board said the practice has been increasing and it noted that the number of persons bumped reached an all-time high of 133,000 in 1976.

The airlines contend they often must sell tickets to more customers than they have seats to compensate for air travellers who make reservations they do not keep.

The new rule, which takes effect Sept. 3, requires that if a flight is oversold, the airline first must ask passengers to volunteer to be bumped and offer them monetary compensation agreeable to both parties.

B.C. Withdraws Brief to NEB

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. government may have withdrawn its submission to the National Energy Board hearings because of concern over its effect on inter-provincial relations, the general counsel to the hearings said Wednesday.

Fred Lemar said representatives of the government had filed a report to the NEB but withdrew it at a pre-hearing conference Tuesday.

He said government representatives told him they wanted to review the report before resubmitting it when the hearings continue in Ottawa next week.

Premier Bill Bennett said in Victoria later that the brief was withdrawn because it has yet to receive cabinet approval.

Lemar said he understood the government was taking the position that "it should be entitled to Alberta crude oil."

The National Energy Board was told in Calgary last week that B.C. should be prepared in the long term to depend on foreign crude oil to meet its future needs.

Meanwhile, two major B.C. business organizations told the hearing Wednesday that the province should receive Alberta crude before Eastern Canada if shortages force the government to allocate fuel to different regions.

James Angus, economist with the Council of Forest Industries, said B.C. would encounter among the highest costs in adapting to a foreign crude oil supply.

"B.C.'s refineries are designed for Alberta crude, and it would require massive capital expenditure, estimated at between $100 million to $300 million to make the necessary conversions to accept imported crude," he said.

Angus said Eastern Canada already has both the port facilities and the refining capacity to import and process foreign crude oil.

Angus said that the B.C. forest industry suffers from higher material and labor costs than its closest competitors in the United States Pacific Northwest. Continued access to lower-priced Alberta crude is necessary for B.C. firms to remain competitive on the world market.

He said the pulp industry is making efforts to reduce energy consumption, which accounts for three per cent of the cost of forest products, by 12 per cent by 1980 but is not moving as quickly as was originally hoped.

Part of the reason is a reluctance by companies to risk switching to an alternative energy supply such as hog fuel, derived from milling of forest products, he said. Some pulp mills, the largest consumers of fossil fuels, are committed to natural gas contracts as well.

Availability of hog fuel is also a problem, particularily for Vancouver-area pulp mills and the industry is currently studying where surpluses of hog fuel might occur, he said.

He said three pulp mills in B.C., spent an estimated $75 million to $80 million on conversion to hog fuel. The decision, though costly, was based on earlier projections that conventional fuels would be costlier and that the supply was less secure.

Bruce Pepper, managing director of the 3,000-member Vancouver Board of Trade, said B.C. should continue to have access to Alberta crude because its supply of foreign crude is less secure and more costly.

Pepper said imported crude would be subject to conditions beyond the government's control, including marine transport conditions. B.C. refineries would be forced to build additional storage to house imported oil and to buy the land for receiving facilities.

B.C. also faces a greater environmental risk than other parts of the country, he said, referring to proposed supertanker traffic from Alaska travelling down the West Coast. The fishing industry, which could be adversely affected, plays a larger role in B.C.'s economy than does fishing in other provinces.

In other briefs, a Richmond consulting engineer said Canadians would use energy wisely if they paid a price for petroleum based on what it cost to produce it.

Brian Redway, who told the board he was appearing as a private citizen, said inflation and massive government subsidies now hide the true price of petroleum products.

"We're paying too little for what we use," he said.

The waste is demonstrated by the person who can "mobilize a couple of hundred horsepower to go to the corner store for a pack of cigarettes."

Lead Threat Feared After Blast

TEXAS CITY, Texas (UPI) — Health officials who learned Wednesday that 43,000 pounds of toxic tetraethyl lead were stored at a refinery devastated by explosions and fire have begun checking for pollution or poisoning by the substance.

Tetraethyl lead is the most common anti-knock compound added to gasoline.

"Based on the data available, we don't believe there is any hazard, but we need to look at this promptly and agresively to assess what we're dealing with," said Dr. W.W. Kemmerer, Galveston County Health Department director.

Clean Porn Area

NEW YORK (CP) — A pornography-pocked block in Manhattan's West 42nd street has been renovated at a cost of $1.5 million and designated by the city as a legitimate theatre district. Mayor Edward Koch, joined by Vice-President Walter Mondale and his wife, led festivities at its recent opening.

Fish Talks Seen As Threat to City

Victoria's economy will be seriously damaged if the federal government doesn't change its stand on West Coast fishing boundaries being negotiated with the U.S., says a B.C. submission to Ottawa.

The B.C. paper says Ottawa must negotiate a boundary giving more rights to B.C. fishermen on the Prairie Banks outside the Juan de Fuca Strait or significant economic hardships both to the fishermen and to the fish-processing sector, particularly in Victoria, will result.

The proposals are contained in a position paper presented by the provincial government to the federal negotiating team hammering out the new fishing agreement.

The paper, made public Wednesday by Prince Rupert NDP MLA Graham Lea, also wants Ottawa to negotiate a northern fishing boundary giving Canadians a big chunk of the Alaska Panhandle fishery.

Lea's release of the B.C. paper brought an angry response from Premier Bennett, who accused the MLA and his party of jeopardizing the negotiations "for the sake of cheap political headlines."

He said Ottawa had asked B.C. to keep the paper secret so the Canadian negotiators could present a united front to the Americans.

"It's a tragedy what he has done," Bennett said. "The effects will have to be measured against the request of the negotiators for confidentiality. They, the leader of that party, the member from Prince Rupert and the caucus, have set themselves up as perhaps the villians."

But Lea later replied everyone but British Columbians knew the content of the B.C. position paper.

He said Canadian contacts in Washington heard Americans talking freely about the B.C. paper at cocktail parties.

They obtained a copy and Lea later got it from Canadians in Canada.

He said he feels the B.C. position is a good one, but if an unfavorable decision comes down B.C.'s good position will be lost once it's over.

Now that it has been made public, British Columbians will know if they've been sold

Man Held After Gun Incident

Greater Victoria police's emergency response team spent a tense two hours in Saanich early today trying to talk an armed man into surrendering.

A Saanich police spokesman said Tattersall and Savannah residents heard two shots shortly after 2 a.m. and saw a man walking down the street carrying either a rifle or shotgun.

Police arrived just in time to see him enter an apartment at 944 Tattersall.

Members of the specially-equipped response team were called in and for two hours tried to contact him by phone and loud-hailer.

There was no response. At one point a muffled shot was heard from the apartment.

The spokesman said the man had apparently been involved in a fight in a beer parlor earlier in the evening and received superficial cuts.

He was treated at hospital and then kept in custody to appear in court later today on charges of dangerous use of a firearm and causing a disturbance by discharging a firearm.

Food Prices Up 13.9% In Past Year

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canadian food prices over-all were up 13.9 per cent from a year ago as of May 19, according to an Anti-Inflation Board survey released today.

Higher prices for beef caused most of a 3.2-per-cent rise in food costs during the four weeks ending May 19.

The board said retail beef prices now are 13.5 per-cent higher than a month ago as strong demand combined with the start of a long-anticipated decline in supplies affects the market.

Further substantial increases in beef prices can be expected during the next few years as cattle slaughter continues to decline, the board says.

The board said price movements for other foods are comparatively modest.

Dairy product prices rose by 1.2 per cent between mid-April and mid-May, with the largest increase for powdered skim milk. The termination in April by the government of a 34-cent-a-pound subsidy on skim milk resulted in price increases of up to 50 per cent, the board says.

Ice cream prices were up four per cent in the month due in part to higher industrial milk prices and the board says cheese prices will also rise as a result of the new dairy policy although it may be several weeks before consumers feel the bite.

Pork prices rose by 2.2 per cent since mid-April, reversing an earlier decline. Poultry prices rose 4.1 per cent in the last four weeks and egg prices rose 4.5 per cent.

Improved supplies of tomatoes and lettuce resulted in price declines for those vegetables, but there were higher prices for potatoes, carrots, cabbage and onions.

Fresh fruit prices were up 3.7 per cent in the four-week period.

BANNED DES TRACE FOUND IN LIVER

TORONTO (CP) — DES, an artificial hormone banned in Canada, has been found in nine out of 10 samples of beef liver purchased in stores here, according to CBC radio.

Diethylstildestrol, a growth promoter used to fatten cattle in the United States, was banned in Canada in the early 1970s as a health hazard, possibly a cancer-causing agent.

A spokesman said the CBC decided to have imported beef liver tested and, as a check, liver sold as Canadian was also tested.

The spokesman said DES levels as high as 1.94 parts per million were found in the Canadian liver while results showed as much as 3.72 parts per million in U.S. liver.

CLC Boss Rapped

VANCOUVER (CP) — Statements by Dennis McDermott, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, that a 32-hour, four-day work week is impractical drew sharp criticism Wednesday from two of British Columbia's top labor leaders.

Len Guy, out-going secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said "there just doesn't appear to be any consideration any more for the considerable number of unemployed or the disasterous results if that situation is not turned around."

Guy said the Canadian trade union movement should be taking care of the citizens of Canada.

Roy Gautier, secretary of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council, said the trades wanted to "completely disassociate themselves from McDermott's position.

Guy said that while the number of jobs decline and corporations increase their profits through technological change, some of the "profits could go to paying the cost of the shorter work week."

McDermott said in Toronto this week that the 32-hour, four-day work week — a resolution adopted in April by the CLC — would place Canadians in an extremely uncompetitive position in trade relationships.

Gautier said his reaction was a mixture of "anger, dismay and frustration." He said the CLC president was going contrary to Congress policy and "there has to be some rebuttal from the trade union movement."

African Involvement Feared by Trudeau

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday cautioned against turning Africa into another East-West battleground as a two-day NATO summit meeting ended here.

He told a news conference he does not want to get involved in "African adventures" and advised other foreign powers to keep out of Africa.

His comments came as he was asked about a Paris meeting of Western powers next week called to discuss ways of countering Soviet and Cuban influence in Africa. Trudeau said Canada has not been invited and probably would not have gone anyway.

While Canada disapproves of Cuban military activity in Africa, it believes Africans should be helped in peaceful ways, particularly through development aid, the prime minister said.

"I think external powers should keep out of Africa — the Africans should attempt to solve the problems themselves," he said.

"I predict that those who attempt to solve these (problems) for them will get no thanks from the Africans in the long run, whether they be Cubans or anyone else."

Trudeau's stand on Africa contrasts with statements by U.S. officials who have urged a tougher Western response to the Communists in Africa. He found an ally in British Prime Minister James Callaghan who said some members of the U.S. administration seem to be over-reacting

Macdonald Roles Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative MP said today he questions whether it was proper for former finance minister Donald Macdonald to accept appointment to the boards of directors of three major companies.

Ray Hnatyshyn said he worries there is a danger of conflict of interest and plans to raise the issue with Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons today.

Macdonald resigned as finance minister in September and from the Commons in February.

Since then, he has accepted appointments to the boards of McDonnell Douglas Corp., Shell Canada Ltd. and Boise Cascade Corp.

McDonnell Douglas has a $2.3-billion bid to provide new fighters for the Canadian Forces. Shell is involved in talks on a proposed new multi-billion dollar plant for the Alberta oil sands.

Macdonald was defence minister from 1970 to 1972 and energy minister from 1972 to 1975.

Hnatyshyn said even if there is no direct conflict of interest, Macdonald as a cabinet minister would "have vast knowledge of government intentions" in many fields.

B.C. NOW TOPS IN DIVORCES

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta, long the divorce haven of Canada, has lost that title to neighboring B.C.

But it's still the province with the highest marriage rate, the latest Statistics Canada figures show.

For many years, Alberta led Canada in the number of divorces granted — and Edmonton had the highest divorce rate of any Alberta city, making it Canada's divorce capital.

Statistics Canada official Dhruv Nagnur said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that B.C. now leads all provinces in divorce rates.

In 1976, the latest figures available, there were 333 divorces per 100,000 people in B.C., compared to 310 divorces in Alberta. The national divorce rate in 1976 was 235 per 100,000.

In 1975, the last year Alberta was the divorce leader, there were 309 divorces per 100,000 in Alberta and 306 in B.C.

Marriages, however, remain Alberta's strong point. In 1976, there were 9.7 marriages per 1,000 people in Alberta, compared to 8.7 marriages in B.C. and a national rate of 8.4 marriages.

More Travel Agent Failures Predicted

THE BYRDS
HE'S REQUESTING SOLITARY CONFINEMENT. CLAIMS HE CAN'T SLEEP WITH ALL THE CLACK CLACK OF THE TYPEWRITERS.
© 1978 TES

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Public are not travelling as much or as far this year and as a result 20 to 30 marginal travel agencies will likely fold by the end of the year, B.C.'s registrar of travel agents said today.

Alec Burden said the problem is it was not a buoyant winter for the travel industry and the summer isn't expected to be much better.

"When you have two troughs in a row without being able to pull out, the marginal operators will automatically topple," Burden said.

He said it appears the politicians are right, that Canadians have come through a tough 12 months.

"People appear to be saying we had better hang on to some of our money."

Burden said those in the industry had thought the days had passed when the holiday was the first thing to go during periods of restraint.

"Perhaps the holiday is not on top of the list but it is certainly among the top 10 of the things that are affected," Burden said.

Burden is the province's first registrar of travel agents. The Travel Agents Registration Act under which he was appointed came into effect Feb. 21.

Since that date, travel agents must register with his office. And agencies must pay into a fund which will cover bills for B.C. tourists who have paid for their vacation but get stuck when an agency folds.

Burden said despite the fact that it is tougher now to get into the travel industry and to stay in more people are registering.

Pubs Soon Go Metric

B.C. pubs will soon convert to metric glasses — and imbibers will get a little less beer in the bargain.

Within the next few weeks beer parlors will start to change from the nine-ounce beer glass to the quarter-litre glass. The metric glass contains about one-fifth of an ounce less.

The price is expected to remain the same.

Something Scary About This Farm

But a group of provincial investigators are uncertain about what, if anything, is taking place.

More than two months ago members of the family began to complain of headaches, nausea, dizziness, skin burns and difficulty in breathing.

The symptoms were evident while the family was in the farm house or in the yard but did not occur when they left. Visitors did not experience the same conditions.

Whelan turned the mystery over to the provincial Emergency Measures Organization (EMO).

"I've never experienced anything like this since I've been director of EMO," Jim Eaton, head of the emergency measures organization, which is being assisted by the departments of environment, labor and health and the Saskatchewan Power Corp.

John Tkachuk, an official of the SPC, said his department has done extensive tests in the home.

Supply lines were tested and no gas leaks discovered. The power corporation also tested power lines and connections in the yard and in the house.

The environment department took soil, water and air samples for analysis and conducted radiation tests — and got no answers.

The agriculture department did testing for insecticides and herbicides and found nothing.

Tests were also done on the family's cat and budgie, both of which had died.

Dr. Russell Kelly, a veterinary pathologist, said he suspected the cat died of a vitamin B deficiency.

Dr. Kelly said it is possible a dormant allergy could be responsible for the skin and respiratory problems.

But, he said, he is having trouble establishing a relationship between the family and pets and stories of paint peeling off machinery on the farm.

The Bradfords have bought a trailer and placed it two miles away from the farm.

Bradford, 69, and his wife, Alice, 67, are reported to be recovering from whatever illness they are suffering.

Their son Cecil said that one would have to live on the farm for at least a month to experience the phenomena.

He said there are patches of ground on the farm on which one can experience a tingling numbness on the face, arms and shoulders. Other strange events include earth tremors and blistering bark on trees.

The family has moved its equipment off the farm and refuse to go anywhere near it, even to seed.

A Penny a Mile

Drivers May Soon Charge Around Town In Electric Vans

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Two Victoria business partners are using a converted Volkswagen to spark interest in electric cars.

Wayne Allen and Bill Pipes have a management company, as yet unnamed, which proposes to lease their version of a battery-powered delivery pickup for urban-oriented commercial firms. The project started after they did some convincing research on the subject.

Between them, they tore the engine from a Volkswagen beetle, sliced half the body off, installed a deck and replaced the power with batteries and electric motor that can give 30 to 40 miles on a single charge at a penny-a-mile for electricity.

Just under the deck are 12 high-output six-volt storage batteries connected to solenoids that deliver power in either of two ranges with or without the standard Volkswagen transmission. The motor, bolted at right angles to the differential housing, is a surplus aircraft direct current generator.

The result is a pollution-free, pint-size, manoeuvrable delivery van ideal for short runs along busy streets. From a standing start, its low-range torque is something to behold.

Ultimately there will be opportunity for domestic electric autos, but for two years at least Allen thinks the best prospects are for commercial and industrial vehicles running comparatively short distances at low speeds.

He noted that battery technology so far has not developed electric car capacity to equal the speed and range of the internal combustion vehicle for practical highway use.

But he points out that anyone who believes in the future of the electric car might justifiably buy one today using conventional batteries, then switch to super duty batteries when they are perfected.

"Batteries are the big thing," Allen said. "A person could buy a car now and when batteries improve put in a new one, and you've got an improved version of the electric car. Can you see doing that with a gasoline engine?"

He put the approximate cost of the prototype delivery van at $7,000 — about the same as conventional full-size pickups and vans. But he said he prefers to quote cost in terms of monthly leasing at $175 plus three cents a mile including electricity for battery charging. Rates for gas-powered trucks are comparatively higher.

In addition, Allen said the costs of buying or leasing can be spread over a longer period because the vehicle will last longer than internal combustion autos.

As electric cars become established it is anticipated that hydro companies will offer lower rates for charging batteries during off-peak hours, thereby dropping operating charges even lower.

Within a few days the electric pickup will become a service truck for the business machine firm of J. R. Pipes, first in Victoria to switch on electrically.

Temperature Ties Record; Sunny Skies Forecast

Temperatures matched record highs Wednesday and the sunshine is expected to continue until the weekend, chief forecaster Norm Dressler said today.

The temperature hit 26 degrees, matching the previous high for May 31, which occurred in 1964.

Dressler said the weather outlook is for sunny skies and a stable pattern, which is a break for the weather office as well as for the public.

"Nothing is more pleasing than to have a nice, stable weather pattern, especially a sunny one," Dressler said.

Most days the job is much tougher — because he has to make one forecast for two very different areas.

"The weather at Pat Bay is not like the pattern in downtown Victoria," he said.

North of Royal Oak the weather is cloudy, cool and wet, compared to the banana belt of Victoria City.

For example May was dryer than normal south of Royal Oak — but wetter than normal to the north.

Rainfall in the downtown area totalled a mere 15.4 mm, the length of an average fingernail, down from the average May rainfall of 22.3 mm.

But north of Royal Oak it was a wet month. The precipitation totalled 42.3 mm, almost enough to come to the top of a man's shoe, compared with a normal rainfall of 30.9 mm.

But May was cooler than normal both north and south of Royal Oak.

At Gonzales the average night-and-day temperature, during the month came to 11.7 degrees, down from the normal average of 12.1.

Out at Pat Bay, the average temperature was 11, down from a normal average of 11.9.

Unfortunately one of the cool periods came during the Victoria Day weekend when daily highs slipped from 16 down to 14.1 at Pat Bay and to 13.2 in downtown Victoria.

The cool weather stayed until May 27.

While it was nippy on occasion, the sun shone often. There were 320 hours of sunshine in downtown Victoria during May, up from the normal 277.2 hours.

At Pat Bay there were 287 hours of sunshine, up from 260.8 hours.

Since Saturday, the weather has been good over all of southern Vancouver Island, thanks to a high pressure ridge both at ground level and aloft.

"All the Pacific storms are being diverted to Alaska or The Yukon," Dressler said.

"This pattern should continue until the weekend. The long-term outlook is for clouds to begin forming on Monday."

Philip Here Aug. 7

Prince Philip will visit Victoria Aug. 7 as part of the Captain Cook bicentennial celebrations.

The royal couple will be in Edmonton for the opening of the Commonwealth Games. Philip will fly to Victoria, arriving at 11:30 a.m.

He will be greeted by newly-appointed Lieutenant Governor Henry Bell-Irving and government officials.

His overnight stay includes a visit to the legislature, a reception at CFB Esquimalt, a Government House garden party and a concert by the Victoria Symphony at Centennial Square.

Local officials say Philip will travel to Government House by "the most publicly exposed route."

While at Government House he will present Duke of Edinburgh awards for physical fitness to young people from around the province.

There will also be an 8 p.m. dinner for him at Government House.

Rip-Offs Feared On Tourist Digs

The Visitors Information Centre today expressed concern that some Victoria homeowners may turn into rip-off artists by charging tourists too much for emergency accommodation this summer.

VIC accommodation committee chairman Ken King said: "It will give Victoria a bad name if they charge too much or offer unsuitable accommodation to tourists."

He said homeowners wanting to open their homes to tourists should list with the Causeway tourist bureau and have their homes inspected.

"The inspectors will decide whether the accommodation is suitable and will suggest a rate."

The rate would be about what similar accommodation would cost in a motel.

King said the bureau already has a list of 70 homes willing to participate and is hoping for at least 30 more.

As soon as the 100 are in, VIC inspectors will begin making their rounds, he said.

He said his greatest fear was that some homeowners might advertise directly to tourists offering accommodation that has not been inspected and approved by the VIC.

If this happens, the tourist office could be receiving complaints about poor accommodations that it did not have the chance to inspect.

Those householders operating through the VIC will have the advantage of being part of the emergency housing program for the summer, he said.

The VIC office on the Causeway has a status board listing all the VIC member hotels and hotels in the region. At a glance it will be evident if there are any hotel or motel rooms available.

If the sold-out sign goes up, the householder book will be opened and tourists will be directed to these homes which have been inspected and for which a rate has been indicated in advance.

"Some householders want to provide accommodation for nothing or for very little. Many people want to help. Others are asking the going rate."

Some have put restrictions — asking for an elderly couple or specifying no children.

The householder units are expected to be needed in July, especially during the period of from July 20 to 24 when the talll ships arrive. They may be needed in August as well.

The emergency accommodation service will be operated through a special phone number, 388-4313.

. . . SO THEY BOOKED HIM

The Greater Victoria Public Library at 1153 Esquimalt Road has been broken into several times in recent months.

But an early morning break-in today is one police and library staff will be talking about for a while.

A nearby resident spotted a man on the roof of the library at 2:15 a.m. and watched as he broke a skylight and disappeared inside.

Police surrounded the building and ordered the person to give himself up. Soon a young man crawled out a rear window (the doors were locked).

Police asked him what he was doing.

"Reading," he replied.

That was too much to swallow and a search of the man revealed $3 in small change which police believe was taken from the staff coffee fund.

Lukewarm Support For Beer

Victoria city council's downtown economic development committee today gave lukewarm support to a proposal to have a beer garden on the Inner Harbor this summer.

Mayor Mike Young and Ald. Robin Blencoe voted to endorse the plan put forward by Dave Gerrand of the Associated Canadian Travellers Club.

Gerrand asked for permission for his association to sell beer at either the Black Ball ferry site or the old Ocean Cement location from July 25 to 30 inclusive. He said all the profit would go to charity.

Gerrand said it would cost around $7,000 to set up the beer garden and he planned to have about $20,000 worth of beer in stock.

The beer garden would operate from noon until 3 p.m. and then again from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The proposal is subject now to approval by city council and will not get the go-ahead if there are any problems providing electricty and water to the site.

DIAL-A-CLAIM BEGINS MONDAY

The Insurance Corp. of B.C. will begin a dial-a-claim service in Victoria on Monday to eliminate lengthy waiting periods at the local claims centre and speed up the estimate process.

The move follows pilot projects conducted in Prince George, Kamloops and Duncan which ICBC says resulted in a good start-up ratio of 60 per cent of claims being phoned in.

Under the new system, a motorist who has a claim or is involved in an accident will telephone the Victoria claims centre and report the details to an adjuster.

If there is vehicle damage, an appointment will be made for the driver to bring the vehicle to the claims centre at a convenient time for appraisal by an estimator.

Tom Holmes, senior vice-president, auto insurance, said those in Sooke, Port Renfrew and Jordan River can call collect at 388-7822 to report their claims.

Police Team Mockup Study

A team policing squad will be set up on paper to demonstrate what effect the deployment of necessary manpower will have on the over-all efficiency of the Victoria police department.

The team policing mockup was ordered Wednesday by the Victoria police board, as the first step towards possibly establishing a pilot project somewhere in the city.

If team policing looks good on paper the board is likely to put the squad into operation, possibly in James Bay or Fairfield, for a test run. If succesful in the second stage it could lead to the entire force switching to the team policing method.

MOTTERSHEAD STEPS DOWN

Deputy city police chief Les Mottershead is stepping down for health reasons, Chief Jack Gregory said Wednesday.

Mottershead will become an inspector in the patrol division.

Mottershead had asked to be reasigned to a position of less responsibility on the advice of his physician.

Gregory said the deputy is not moving because of any conflicts.

The chief said candidates to replace Mottershead will be interviewed between now and mid-July.

Car Crash Fatal

A 63-year-old North Saanich woman died early today of injuries from a single-car accident in the 9600-block West Saanich Road Wednesday night.

Sidney RCMP said Kathleen Peters of 1268 Lands End Road died in Saanich Peninsula Hospital three hours after the 10 p.m. mishap.

A spokesman said Mrs. Peters apparently lost control of her car when she reached for some eggs which had fallen to the floor.

Indian Curse on Developer

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Bad luck will befall Victoria businessman Bob Wright and his associates if a housing development is allowed on 15 acres on a peninsula on Tsehum Bay, the site of an ancient Indian burial ground, Gus Bill of the Tseycum Band at Patricia Bay said today.

Bill submitted a band letter at a Wednesday night meeting of the North Saanich advisory planning committee protesting Wright's plan for housing units on the peninsula and expansion of the North Saanich Marina, formerly Bosun's Marina.

Bill said the spirits of the dead will haunt Wright who is president of North Saanich Marina Ltd., owner of the land and marina.

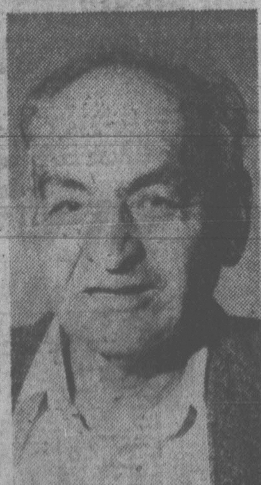
Wright's proposal was rejected by North Saanich council last year after nearly 1,500 residents signed a petition against the project, but it was submitted to the planning committee for further study.

After hearing submissions including one from Wright, the committee decided to hold a further public meeting Tuesday, June 27, at 8 p.m. at Parkland Secondary School, 10640 McDonald Park Road.

The band letter noted that "our ancestors buried their dead at the place, under the presumption that they would rest in peace forever. This procedure was a sacred tribal ritual and that area was to remain undisturbed for all times."

"Our people wish to protest any land alterations which might disturb our forefathers in any way," the letter added.

Bill, 65, a staunch Roman Catholic, has appealed to Bishop Remi de Roo to help stop any development on the burial site.



BILL
. . . ancestors threatened

The ex-chief today elaborated on the reasons the band opposes development in the area.

"Indians have a lot of respect for the dead," he said. "They (the developers) should not be allowed to bother our ancesters."

He said the graves are no longer visible on the peninsula because trees have grown over them but "the spirits of our ancestors still wander over the land that was ours."

He recalled his mother, Josephine Charlie, who died 10 years ago at the age of 104, was the last Indian born on a reserve adjacent to the burial site.

"Just before she died she was taken in a car to have a last look at her birthplace and at the burial grounds," he said.

He noted there are a few private dwellings on the peninsula but these are not on the burial grounds.

He said if the land is disturbed for housing development, the spirits of the dead will work against Wright and has associates.

"Sometimes the spirit of the dead work on your behalf or against you," he added.

"All I can say is if the burial ground is disturbed, the spirits of the dead will work against those responsible. It will bring about bad luck."

Bill also said the band was opposed to expansion of the marina because it would encompass the habitat of migratory waterfowls.

"We are not against development," he said, "but we say nature comes first.

True Value of a Garden?

In an affluent society where an extravagant proportion of our income is expended on luxuries, the home vegetable garden is again being developed to supply as much as possible of the family's food requirements.

This time a national crisis is not the cause, but rather the fact that fruit and vegetables are attaining their proper status.

No longer are they the cheap product of underpaid farm hands working from dawn to dusk, but the result of a scientific approach to production, trained skills, the use of sophisticated machinery, and a large capital investment.

The young and the fit have not been drafted for military service, leaving the lame and aged to work gardens and allotments. Instead we have well-fed, yet overweight people of all ages wondering what to grow in order to reduce the expenditure on food, which is now a substantial item in the family budget.

After a year or so of experimenting and recording the results, some gardeners are not sure the savings are worth the effort when the harvested produce is converted to prevailing market prices.

The question is, can we reduce gardening to harsh economics? Can the true value of home produced vegetables be computed in dollars and cents?

We would be wrong to make gardening a prime money matter. Gardening is essentially a pleasant pursuit which improves the health of body and mind. If it reduces expenditures on medications and treatments, that reduction should be credited to the garden.

There are other points we are likely to overlook. When producing our own food we can use the thinnings which have no market value because they are not available at this stage of growth, yet they can be the basis of several meals therefore should be credited with some reasonable value.

We can grow vegetables which produce an edible root and edible greens, thus increasing their monetary value over the stripped roots offered for sale.

If we use our beetroot when no bigger than a golf ball, immature yet delicately flavored, our total weight of crop will be considerably less than it would have been had we left them to reach the size of tennis balls. What monetary value can we place on texture and flavor? We certainly should add something.

We can gather our vegetables young and tender; or use freezing varieties which give the whole crop in a few days. If we prefer to freeze, should the crop be valued at the price when harvested, or at the prevailing price when eaten in winter, a time when their imported price is high?

Should the returns in dollars still seem small it is possible that some common gardening mistakes are lowering the total output.

Maybe the first spring day raised our ambitions and we sowed too much at one time, instead of small amounts adjusted to the family's weekly needs. If some goes to the compost heap it has a value as it makes new soil for future crops.

Maybe we have a good summer garden with no thought of providing for winter crops, the most valuable crops because of the high price of imports.

We may have slavishly followed a calendar of sowing dates instead of waiting until soil and weather conditions were perfect for the crops we wanted to grow. We could have used the wrong varieties for the time we hoped to harvest, and lost a substantial amount while away on our summer vacation.

If we make full use of our vegetable plot in all seasons; make frequent small sowings to extend the harvesting period; grow short term crops interplanted with long term crops; we can increase the output of the smallest vegetable plot to a satisfactory level and make a positive reduction in the food budget.

today's markets

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market reversed a morning advance to decline moderately in active midsession trading.

Declines edged advances 178 to 172 with 208 issues unchanged.

Among industrials, Pacific Petroleums dropped 1⅛ to $33⅝, Canadian Cablesystems A ¾ to $16¼, Texasgulf ½ to $24, Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to $28⅞ and Cominco ⅜ to $28¾.

Peoples Jewellers C gained 1⅝ to $10, Consumers Glass ⅞ to $17¼, Cara Operations ¾ to $17¾, Genstar ¾ to $28⅜ and Ashland Oil Canada ½ to $19⅛.

Campbell Red Lake Mines fell ¼ to $37¾, Anglo United Development 16 cents to $2.11 and Gibraltar Mines ⅛ to $5⅞, Conwest Exploration climbed ⅝ to $6¼ and Placer Development ¼ to $24¾.

Numac Oil and Gas slipped 1½ to $32¼, Czar Resources ⅜ to $19⅞ and PanCanadian Petroleum ⅜ to $32½. Siebens Oil and Gas rose ¼ to $27¼ and Coseka Resources ¼ to $5½.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted today, most prices rising and falling within a narrow range as investors tried to figure which way the financial winds were blowing.

"The market is trendless today," said Monte Gordon, an analyst for Dreyfus Corp. "Nothing has happened that has been strong enough to make people buy or sell. The market's waiting for a lead."

Brokers said that investors were analyzing the U.S. government's report on leading economic indicators, which are designed to signal the directionthe economy will take. The indicators rose a moderate 0.5 per cent in April, about what Wall Street expected.

The market has been edgy lately about inflation as investors worry that a rapid expansion in the economy could force prices up. Wall Street also was waiting for the weekly figures on the amount of money in circulation in the economy. That data, scheduled to be released immediately after the close of trading today, gives a clue to whether the Federal Reseve Board will tighten credit to slow the monetary growth and fight inflation.

Sears Roebuck, which reported a 10-per-cent increase in retail sales for May, was heavily traded, climbing ⅛ to $24⅝.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were slightly lower in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Texasgulf slipped ¼ to $24½, CP Ltd. ⅛ to $18⅝ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ⅛ to $28⅞. Bank of Montreal rose ¼ to $21⅝ and Provigo ½ at $18. Among speculative issues, Mount Jamie Mines declined two-and-a-half cents to 42 cents on a volume of 3,000 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices retreated from earlier highs near the close of light trading on the London stock market. The Financial Times index was up 0.2 to 479 an hour before the close. Leading equities moved lower following lower-than-expected British Petroleum Co. Ltd. first-quarter earnings. Gold shares dropped sharply on lower international bullion prices, while platinums advanced. Canadian issues eased.

Drivers May Soon Charge Around Town In Electric Vans

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Three Victoria business partners are using a converted Volkswagen to spark interest in electric cars.

Wayne Allen, Bill Pipes and Brian Palin have a manufacturing-leasing company, as yet unnamed, which proposes to offer their version of a battery-powered delivery pickup for urban-oriented commercial firms. The project started after a managment company they own did some convincing research on the subject.

Allen and Pipes, between them, tore the engine from a Volkswagen beetle, sliced half the body off, installed a deck and replaced the power with batteries and electric motor that can give 30-40 miles on a single charge at a penny-a-mile for electricity.

Just under the deck are 12 high-output six-volt storage batteries connected to solenoids that deliver power in either of two ranges with or without the standard Volkswagen transmission. The motor, bolted at right angles to the differential housing, is a surplus aircraft direct current generator.

The result is a pollution-free, pint-size, manoeuvrable delivery van ideal for short runs along busy streets. From a standing start, its low-range torque is something to behold.

Ultimately there will be opportunity for domestic electric autos, but for two years at least Allen thinks the best prospects are for commercial and industrial vehicles running comparatively short distances at low speeds.

He noted that battery technology so far has not developed electric car capacity to equal the speed and range of the internal combustion vehicle for practical highway use.

But he points out that anyone who believes in the future of the electric car might justifiably buy one today using conventional batteries, then switch to super duty batteries when they are perfected.

"Batteries are the big thing," Allen said. "A person could buy a car now and when batteries improve put in a new one, and you've got an improved version of the electric car. Can you see doing that with a gasoline engine?"

He put the approximate cost of the prototype delivery van at $7,000 — about the same as conventional full-size pickups and vans. But he said he prefers to quote cost in terms of monthly leasing at $175 plus three cents a mile including electricity for battery charging. Rates for gas-powered trucks are comparatively higher.

In addition, Allen said the costs of buying or leasing can be spread over a longer period because the vehicle will last longer than internal combustion autos.

As electric cars become established it is anticipated that hydro companies will offer lower rates for charging batteries during off-peak hours, thereby dropping operating charges even lower.

Within a few days the electric pickup will become a service truck for the business machine firm of J. R. Pipes, first in Victoria to switch on electrically.

Temperature Ties Record; Sunny Skies Forecast

Temperatures matched record highs Wednesday and the sunshine is expected to continue until the weekend, chief forecaster Norm Dressler said today.

The temperature hit 26 degrees, matching the previous high for May 31, which occurred in 1964.

Dressler said the weather outlook is for sunny skies and a stable pattern, which is a break for the weather office as well as for the public.

"Nothing is more pleasing than to have a nice, stable weather pattern, especially a sunny one," Dressler said.

Most days the job is much tougher — because he has to make one forecast for two very different areas.

"The weather at Pat Bay is not like the pattern in downtown Victoria," he said.

North of Royal Oak the weather is cloudy, cool and wet, compared to the banana belt of Victoria City.

For example May was dryer than normal south of Royal Oak — but wetter than normal to the north.

Rainfall in the downtown area totalled a mere 15.4 mm, the length of an average fingernail, down from the average May rainfall of 22.3 mm.

But north of Royal Oak it was a wet month. The precipitation totalled 42.3 mm, almost enough to come to the top of a man's shoe, compared with a normal rainfall of 30.9 mm.

But May was cooler than normal both north and south of Royal Oak.

At Gonzales the average night-and-day temperature during the month came to 11.7 degrees, down from the normal average of 12.1.

Out at Pat Bay, the average temperature was 11, down from a normal average of 11.9.

Unfortunately one of the cool periods came during the Victoria Day weekend when daily highs slipped from 16 down to 14.4 at Pat Bay and to 13.2 in downtown Victoria.

The cool weather stayed until May 27.

While it was nippy on occasion, the sun shone often. There were 320 hours of sunshine in downtown Victoria during May, up from the normal 277.2 hours.

At Pat Bay there were 287 hours of sunshine, up from 260.8 hours.

Since Saturday, the weather has been good over all of southern Vancouver Island, thanks to a high pressure ridge both at ground level and aloft.

"All the Pacific storms are being diverted to Alaska or The Yukon," Dressler said.

"This pattern should continue until the weekend. The long-term outlook is for clouds to begin forming on Monday."

. . . SO THEY BOOKED HIM

The Greater Victoria Public Library at 1153 Esquimalt Road has been broken into several times in recent months.

But an early morning break-in today is one police and library staff will be talking about for a while.

A nearby resident spotted a man on the roof of the library at 2:15 a.m. and watched as he broke a skylight and disappeared inside.

Police surrounded the building and ordered the person to give himself up. Soon a young man crawled out a rear window (the doors were locked).

Police asked him what he was doing.

"Reading," he replied.

That was too much to swallow and a search of the man revealed $3 in small change which police believe was taken from the staff coffee fund.

Lukewarm Support For Beer

Victoria city council's downtown economic development committee today gave lukewarm support to a proposal to have a beer garden on the Inner Harbor this summer.

Mayor Mike Young and Ald. Robin Blencoe voted to endorse the plan put forward by Dave Gerrand of the Associated Canadian Travellers Club.

Gerrand asked for permission for his association to sell beer at either the Black Ball ferry site or the old Ocean Cement location from July 25 to 30 inclusive. He said all the profit would go to charity.

Gerrand said it would cost around $7,000 to set up the beer garden and he planned to have about $20,000 worth of beer in stock.

The beer garden would operate from noon until 3 p.m. and then again from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The proposal is subject now to approval by city council and will not get the go-ahead if there are any problems providing electricty and water to the site.

Philip Here Aug. 7

The royal couple will be in Edmonton for the opening of the Commonwealth Games. Philip will fly to Victoria, arriving at 11:30 a.m.

He will be greeted by newly-appointed Lieutenant Governor Henry Bell-Irving and government officials.

His overnight stay includes a visit to the legislature, a reception at CFB Esquimalt, a Government House garden party and a concert by the Victoria Symphony at Centennial Square.

Local officials say Philip will travel to Government House by "the most publicly exposed route."

While at Government House he will present Duke of Edinburgh awards for physical fitness to young people from around the province.

There will also be an 8 p.m. dinner for him at Government House.

Rip-Offs Feared On Tourist Digs

The Visitors Information Centre today expressed concern that some Victoria homeowners may turn into rip-off artists by charging tourists too much for emergency accommodation this summer.

VIC accommodation committee chairman Ken King said: "It will give Victoria a bad name if they charge too much or offer unsuitable accommodation to tourists."

He said homeowners wanting to open their homes to tourists should list with the Causeway tourist bureau and have their homes inspected.

"The inspectors will decide whether the accommodation is suitable and will suggest a rate."

The rate would be about what similar accommodation would cost in a motel.

King said the bureau already has a list of 70 homes willing to participate and is hoping for at least 30 more.

As soon as the 100 are in, VIC inspectors will begin making their rounds, he said.

He said his greatest fear is that some homeowners might advertise directly to tourists offering accommodation that has not been inspected and approved by the VIC.

If this happens, the tourist office could be receiving complaints about poor accommodations that it did not have the chance to inspect.

Those householders operating through the VIC will have the advantage of being part of the emergency housing program for the summer, he said.

The VIC office on the Causeway has a status board listing all the VIC member hotels and motels in the region. At a glance it will be evident if there are any hotel or motel rooms available.

If the sold-out sign goes up, the householder book will be opened and tourists will be directed to these homes which have been inspected and for which a rate has been indicated in advance.

"Some householders want to provide accommodation for nothing or for very little. Many people want to help. Others are asking the going rate."

Some have put restrictions — asking for an elderly couple or specifying no children.

The householder units are expected to be needed in July, especially during the period of from July 20 to 24 when the tall ships arrive. They may be needed in August as well.

The emergency accommodation service will be operated through a special phone number, 388-4313.

DIAL-A-CLAIM BEGINS MONDAY

The Insurance Corp. of B.C. will begin a dial-a-claim service in Victoria on Monday to eliminate lengthy waiting periods at the local claims centre and speed up the estimate process.

The move follows pilot projects conducted in Prince George, Kamloops and Duncan which ICBC says resulted in a good start-up ratio of 60 per cent of claims being phoned in.

Under the new system, a motorist who has a claim or is involved in an accident will telephone the Victoria claims centre and report the details to an adjuster.

If there is vehicle damage, an appointment will be made for the driver to bring the vehicle to the claims centre at a convenient time for appraisal by an estimator.

Tom Holmes, senior vice-president, auto insurance, said those in Sooke, Port Renfrew and Jordan River can call collect at 388-7822 to report their claims.

Police Team Mockup Study

A team policing squad will be set up on paper to demonstrate what effect the deployment of necessary manpower will have on the over-all efficiency of the Victoria police department.

The team policing mockup was ordered Wednesday by the Victoria police board, as the first step towards possibly establishing a pilot project somewhere in the city.

If team policing looks good on paper the board is likely to put the squad into operation, possibly in James Bay or Fairfield, for a test run. If succesful in the second stage it could lead to the entire force switching to the team policing method.

MOTTERSHEAD STEPS DOWN

Deputy city police chief Les Mottershead is stepping down for health reasons, Chief Jack Gregory said Wednesday.

Mottershead will become an inspector in the patrol division.

Mottershead had asked to be reasigned to a position of less responsibility on the advice of his physician.

Gregory said the deputy is not moving because of any conflicts.

The chief said candidates to replace Mottershead will be interviewed between now and mid-July.

Car Crash Fatal

A 63-year-old North Saanich woman died early today of injuries from a single-car accident in the 9600-block West Saanich Road Wednesday night.

Sidney RCMP said Kathleen Peters of 1268 Lands End Road died in Saanich Peninsula Hospital three hours after the 10 p.m. mishap.

A spokesman said Mrs. Peters apparently lost control of her car when she reached for some eggs which had fallen to the floor.

Indian Curse on Developer?

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Bad luck will befall Victoria businessman Bob Wright and his associates if a housing development is allowed on 15 acres on a peninsula on Tsehum Bay, the site of an ancient Indian burial ground, Gus Bill of the Tseycum Band at Patricia Bay said today.

Bill submitted a band letter at a Wednesday night meeting of the North Saanich advisory planning committee protesting Wright's plan for housing units on the peninsula and expansion of the North Saanich Marina, formerly Bosun's Marina.

Bill said the spirits of the dead will haunt Wright who is president of North Saanich Marina Ltd., owner of the land and marina.

Wright's proposal was rejected by North Saanich council last year after nearly 1,500 residents signed a petition against the project, but it was submitted to the planning committee for further study.

After hearing submissions including one from Wright, the committee decided to hold a further public meeting Tuesday, June 27, at 8 p.m. at Parkland Secondary School, 10640 McDonald Park Road.

The band letter noted that "our ancestors buried their dead at the place, under the presumption that they would rest in peace forever. This procedure was a sacred tribal ritual and that area was to remain undisturbed for all times."

"Our people wish to protest any land alterations which might disturb our forefathers in any way," the letter added.

BILL
. . . ancestors threatened

Bill, 65, a staunch Roman Catholic, has appealed to Bishop Remi de Roo to help stop any development on the burial site.

The ex-chief today elaborated on the reasons the band opposes development in the area.

"Indians have a lot of respect for the dead," he said. "They (the developers) should not be allowed to bother our ancesters."

He said the graves are no longer visible on the peninsula because trees have grown over them but "the spirits of our ancestors still wander over the land that was ours."

He recalled his mother, Josephine Charlie, who died 10 years ago at the age of 104, was the last Indian born on a reserve adjacent to the burial site.

"Just before she died she was taken in a car to have a last look at her birthplace and at the burial grounds," he said.

He noted there are a few private dwellings on the peninsula but these are not on the burial grounds.

He said if the land is disturbed for housing development, the spirits of the dead will work against Wright and has associates.

"Sometimes the spirits of the dead work on your behalf or against you," he added.

"All I can say is if the burial ground is disturbed, the spirits of the dead will work against those responsible. It will bring about bad luck."

Bill also said the band was opposed to expansion of the marina because it would encompass the habitat of migratory waterfowls.

"We are not against development," he said, "but we say nature comes first.

"Man depends on nature, but non-Indians don't like to to recognize this."

Because we care...

Here are some more facts about Drugs and various Medications you should be aware of.

What do you know about Antacids? This is the name given to a specific class of preparations which are used for excess acidity, heartburn, ulcers, indigestion, gas and general abdominal discomfort.

Unfortunately, many of these preparations are advertised quite extensively in the various news media and because they are, they lead many people to think such preparations are harmless and innocuous.

Are you one of these persons? If so you could easily do more harm to yourself than good.

Not all Antacids are the same, and some contain certain ingredients which give rapid relief and to the average lay public this apparently proves that such Antacids are the best.

Actually they can prove more harmful than beneficial. Often one finds oneself taking more of this kind of Antacid and also more frequently.

Also, and this should be of interest to those being treated for high blood pressure and to the more elderly citizen who can be subject to it, there is a difference in Antacids by virtue of the Sodium Content they contain and could have a detrimental effect on the treatment of high blood pressure.

Antacids also have the capability of affecting the action of many other drugs and because they are so readily available to the public, can do more harm than good—unless the right one is being taken and in the proper manner.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES:—or take your medication lightly—ASK your United Pharmacist for advice. He can and will help you—BECAUSE HE CARES.
